OUR STREAK ASSOCIATION – TWENTY YEARS IN THE MAKING

By: John Strumsky

[Editor's note: On 7 August 2000, Dawn and John Strumsky founded and incorporated the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA) in the State of Maryland. John Strumsky was also the first President of USRSA (2000-2011) and, along with his wife Dawn, were the first editors of this newsletter.]

Hi, my name is John Strumsky, and Mark Washburne reached out to me to talk to you about my running, the early days of streak running and the founding of the United States Running Streak Association. So here goes:

I ran as a child, and as most children do, loved it.

Other than in loosely organized gym classes in grade school, and junior and senior high school I played no organized sports until I turned 16, when I pitched and played shortstop on a local baseball team, but only for that one summer. Thereafter, I worked part-time jobs after school and during the summers to add to the family coffers.

We had little in those days and lived in public housing until I turned 12 in 1952.

The week after I graduated high school in 1958, I enlisted in the Marine Corps, and found myself at Parris Island undergoing recruit training. There I had to run most days, and as most recruits do, hated it.

John Strumsky back at Parris Island in 1962.

But that's how I spent the next four years. It was part of the daily regimen of my duty to my country, and though I enjoyed many aspects of the Marine Corps lifestyle, I never warmed to the runs.

Within a week of when I was honorably discharged 4 years later in 1962, I was attending college classes at night, and working both a full-time and a part-time job to pay for it. There was no GI college bill during the period after Korea and before Vietnam, and school and those 2 jobs to pay for it was my life during the next 9 years. Not that I would have, but there was no time for running any more. However, I did run once in 1966.

One dark, cold night that November, I was on my way to school when I heard a scream as I was driving past a side street in rush hour traffic. As I passed the side street, I heard a woman scream, and saw a giant of a man punching her to the ground. I rounded the block and as I came back to their street, I started to stop my car to help her, but she yelled, "He's got my handbag. Please, my rent money is in it." So, I gunned my engine, and drove past him, then jumped out in front of him and chased him up and down back streets and through alleyways. I cornered him once, but he pulled out a knife, and I moved back when he flashed it at me. He took off again, and not being the brightest bulb in the pack, so did I. (He still had the purse.)

After another flurry of runs through side streets and dark alleys, he turned down an old narrow alley that was bricked off at the end. I was stuck. This giant of a man, who was at least a half-a-head taller than me, and probably outweighed me by 20 or 30 pounds, turned with the knife and began waving it at me again. As he started running towards me, I saw a metal garbage can, grabbed the lid and began running back towards him. We hit each other hard, and we both went down hard. We both scrambled for the knife, but as I grabbed it, he punched me hard in the chest, and I threw the knife into the darkness. However, at that instant, 2 other civilians came running around the corner of the alley to help me, and 2 police officers were not far behind them.

The police took him into custody, and for the next several days the story dominated the news. It turned out he was an escaped convict from the Maryland Penitentiary who was serving a life term for having raped an elderly lady. A year later the Baltimore City Police Department presented me with a Certificate of Honor at its next recruit class graduation ceremony and made me a job offer. I felt like the running almost killed me, and refused the job. Further, that night was one of only a handful of evenings that I ever missed class. I had no choice. I had made a promise to my college dean to faithfully attend class.

In retrospect, when I graduated junior high school, I enrolled at a vocational-technical high school, because I realistically knew I could not afford college. (That was why I went directly into the Marine Corps.) However, when I came back to attend college, I decided that for my next round of hell, I was signing up to go to Johns Hopkins University. I called for an application and submitted it. The dean of students sent me a nice form rejection letter. I called to make an appointment to meet with him. He sent me another form rejection letter. I called to plead my case. He rejected me once more. I took a half-a-day off work, and went to his campus office unannounced. I waited a long time. I kept sitting, waiting quietly. (He didn't know it, but I would have sat there all night if necessary.)

His assistant finally went into his office, and she came out to send me in. The dean advised me that he did not want to see me fail, and that if I was that determined, I should apply to a local community college. (That was my original plan. I couldn't afford to attend Hopkins.) I told him that if I could survive the Marine Corps, I could certainly make my way through Hopkins. He strongly disagreed due to my lack of an arts and sciences background. When he stood up to end our very short meeting, I remained sitting. He asked me to leave, but I would not get up. I glued myself to his chair. I knew if I did get up, it was over. We finally agreed to just one semester on probation. I was a Hopkins student.

When I made it through the semester, I was rewarded with another semester on probation. I barely made C's and C-minuses both semesters, and I was totally sleep deprived, but he had challenged me. Finally, my C's became B's, and my B's became A's. Then, on a bright, sunny late morning in June of 1969, I became a college graduate. Fortunately, I had to run only that one night two years earlier.

John Strumsky with Certificate of Honor and Johns Hopkins Degree.

I had begun my full-time job as a teller trainee in the bank 7 years earlier. By graduation, I had been through several supervisory promotions at the bank, and was a department manager. My part-time job as a meat cutter in an A&P I gave up as a graduation present to myself. By the fall of 1970 I met the young lady who was destined to become the future Administrator of the USRSA, but it did not yet exist.

Six months later, in the spring of 1971, the bank made me a junior officer with the unimpressive title of assistant secretary, and three months after that, the young lady and I became engaged. Another 15 months later, Dawn—her name was Dawn; she and I married. A bit over a year after that, in the fall of 1973, I became the bank's newest assistant vice president. I was finally a bit prosperous, and even slightly prosperous bank officers did not sweat in public, so I wasn't about to run.

Strumsky's Wedding Party.

Well, prosperity many times manifests itself through an expanding waistline. The manifestation was fully expressing itself by the time I was promoted to a full vice presidency in 1978, but instead of seeking out a physical challenge, I left my wonderful banking position when I felt I needed another challenge in life, took our joint savings and my stamp collection, and opened a shop for high-end stamp collectors. Soon prosperity was fully manifesting itself around my middle again. So, after just 4 years I sold my great stamp shop to an attorney who also wanted to escape the corporate culture, and I retired at 42 in 1982.

This time I was concerned that I could actually be on the brink of major health problems due to the ongoing manifestation of my middle. I toured several national fitness chains, and purchased a family membership to one for both Dawn and I even though she hadn't gained a pound or changed an iota since our marriage. (She had never been anything other than polite, pleasant and accommodating—except when she was not, but she let this one slide.)

We met with my personal trainer for the first time on November 8, 1982. He showed her a few light exercises to get her started, then turned his wrath on me. (I had a drill instructor all over again.)

There was a running track around the perimeter of the gym. I had not noticed it on our tour of the facility, and I felt dread. He patiently explained to me that it was standard operating procedure to begin each workout with a jog to warm up the body's circulation. In turn, I explained to him that I would rather warm up for my workouts by lifting some light weights—not jogging. We quickly decided to establish and maintain an adversarial relationship. He ordered me onto the track beside him to jog a very pedestrian quarter-of-a-mile. I tried. It was under protest, but I tried. Instead, I fell and passed out. That was it for the day.

A couple of days later—when Dawn reminded me it was time for us to return to the fitness center—I told her I may have picked the wrong trainer in the wrong facility. (Remember how I described her pleasant and accommodating personality—except when she was not. She was not!) Although still apprehensive, I somehow felt safer going to the gym with her, than being alone with her in one of these rare agitated moods. I decided to keep my thoughts about the trainer and the gym to myself for a while.

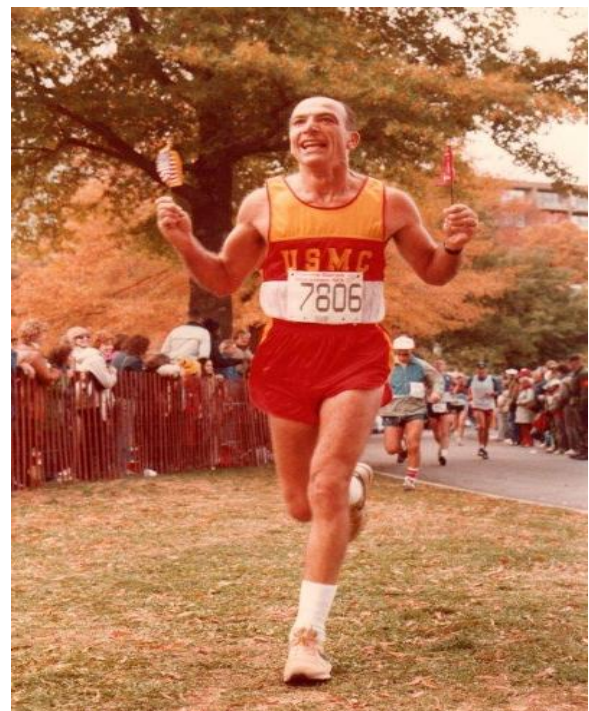

But between the two of them, I worked my much-hated jogs three or four times a week up to 5 miles by New Year's Eve. They would run on either side of me to keep me distracted and moving forward, or Dawn would sit on the side of the track and count down my remaining laps to go for that day. As for me, I hated the hell out of it, but fair was fair. Why did she have to do it with me anyway? I ended 1982 with 22.7 much hated miles logged in my workout book.

Well, another month passed, and on January 30, 1983 I completed my first race, the "Frozen Finger Five Miler" north of Baltimore in 47:28. I was still a big guy, but my fattiness was feeling tighter and more resilient. While I wasn't sure I liked running yet, I discovered that the race was a lot of fun. Who knew I'd run my heart out to finish 283rd instead of 284th out of about 350 runners? I loved the competition and the comradery. It was like being a kid all over again. I started my first streak with that race—a racing streak. I raced 644 races over the next 22 years, of at least a race a month, every month. In April, 1983, I joined the Baltimore Road Runners Club.

Then came the big day. I was now working out every other day, always with a long hard run of up to 5 miles to begin the session. But on May 23, 1983 I decided to try to run every day, first by running through our neighborhood to vary my route, before going to the gym to work out. I also decided to break through my glass ceiling that day and run 6 miles. (I had always stopped at a maximum of 5 miles, but that was my one-time maximum for the month.) Even though I kept working out every other day, I now decided on running every day. So, I went outside again on May 24th and ran 3 miles without a workout scheduled to follow that day. But later that day I ran a second time for another 2 miles. For my warm-up for my next workout on the 25th, I kept running, and didn't stop until I hit 8 miles. However, on the 26th I did 2 runs again, 6 in the morning and 3 in the evening. On the 27th I only did a 3-miler in the morning, and on the 28th I only did 1 run of 1 mile for the day, but decided to never go below that distance on any given day again. I kept running every day, and reached 10 miles on June 6th. By then, even though we did not know what it was called yet, Dawn and I both knew I was in a committed daily running streak.

The daily streak would continue for 25 years and 8 months, or 25.72 years, or 9,395 days in a row. The exhilaration of running and racing had been wonderful. My weight had dropped by 60 pounds, and, thanks to the workouts, my body was rock-solid once again. That is, until February 7, 2009, when I slipped on ice while running in a heavy ice storm, flew through the air, and snapped the Achilles tendon on my left heel when I land hard on it. It was a long limp home, but I completed 2 full miles on that run before the fall. The 8th and the 9th I could only barely complete a mile, but on the 9th, I could not do it without knee and ankle braces. Then on the 10th, I went out 7 different times throughout the day from early morning to late night to attempt to complete a mile, but could not do it. The streak was over.

Approaching Marine Corps Marathon Finish Line in 1983.

But many wonders had happened along the way. Never fast, I broke a 6-minute-mile (5:58) on October 8, 1983. On November 6th, I ran the Marine Corps Marathon in 3:22:18. In January, 1984, I became a columnist and the assistant editor of the Baltimore Road Runners Newsletter. April 25th saw me drive my one-mile race time down to 5:24. On May 14th of '84, I carried the Olympic Torch into Baltimore City on its cross-county relay run. Ten days later, I celebrated the first anniversary of my daily running streak. On Canada Day (July 1st) I ran a double-marathon (52.4 miles) near the magnetic North Pole from what was then a mining town called Nanisivik to an Inuit village named Arctic Bay, and back again, to finish the Midnight Sun Ultramarathon in 9 hours, 42 minutes and 20 seconds for 10th place. In early spring 1985, the Baltimore Road Runners Newsletter was selected by the Road Runner Clubs of America as the "Outstanding Club Newsletter for 1984.") I also joined the New York Road Runners Club and the Annapolis Striders, and began running and racing throughout the world.

John Strumsky carries the Olympic Torch into Baltimore City.

May 31, 1992 saw me begin a twice daily running streak. (I am nothing if not highly obsessive-compulsive once I really get rolling.) The twice-daily streak inside the daily streak would go on for 15 years and 11 days or 5,489 days in a row before I realized it was not fun anymore, and I stopped my second daily run on purpose. (But believe me, I had to psychologically wrestle with myself all day to keep from going out to run a second time on June 10, 2007.) The next day was Dawn's birthday, and I told her that giving up the second daily streak was my present to her. Her comment to me was "Finally got tired of it, huh Bunkie?"

Another highlight was running in all 50 states on the streak between May 23, 1983 and September 17, 1999 when I checked that box off by running in Albuquerque, New Mexico. I also was lucky enough to run in 15 foreign countries during the streak.

For me—and as many others have also discovered—the hardest part of most of my runs was getting out the door and planting that first foot in front of the other. Once in motion, the urge to continue to procrastinate rapidly disappeared.

Bob Ray (center) John Strumsky (far right) at Bob Ray Day Race on April 8, 2000.

Bob Ray of Baltimore, Maryland first owned the longest running streak in the United States, which he began on April 4, 1967. He had started running on a regular basis in 1953, and had accumulated about 22,000 miles before his running eased into an everyday streak occurrence. I first met him late in 1983, when my streak was but 4 or 5 months old.

Bob Ray Day Celebration.

Next is a photo of the Bob Ray Day Celebration in Towson, Maryland on April 8, 2000, the first Saturday after the 33rd anniversary of his highly exceptional running streak. Towson is just north of Baltimore, which, at the time, was a major hotbed of running in the country. Bob is at the lower right hugging one of the runners in the reception line waiting to congratulate him, while other runners are congratulating the other streak runners who came in from around the country to honor Bob. I am at the upper right, serving as the banquet chairman. This was the first known gathering of streak runners from across the United States, and 11 streak runners joined with the 125 runners and guests gathered there to honor his 33 years of running without missing a day.

As a runner, Bob had a feather-like glide that gently kissed the ground, and he could be deceptively fast. At the time of his celebration, I said of this gentle gentleman: "He lifts the human spirit, inspires us all to extend our reach, and makes us happy for having known him." He started his streak three days before his 29th birthday, and finished it on his 68th birthday. He ran 100,000 streak miles for a total of 122,000 miles, and completed 500 races. Astonishingly, Bob was a letter carrier for the U. S. Post Office for many years, and walked a postal route for 6 to 7 hours after running 5 miles every morning. Years later, Bob and I would become known in the Baltimore running community as "Big Streak" and "Little Streak."

George Hancock.

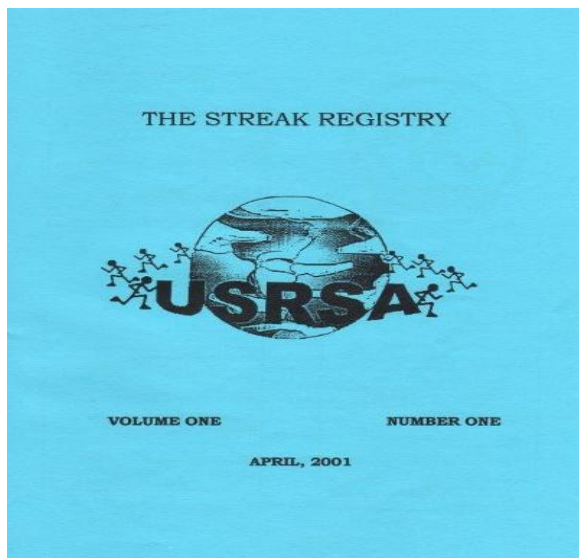

Now we come to a picture of streak runner George Hancock back in the mid-1980s. George started his original running streak on February 26, 1978. It was he who published the first running streak list in the Runner's Gazette. It contained the names and streak starting dates of 50 runners throughout the United States as of December 1, 1994, and was compiled in response to an inquiry about streak running that appeared in the November 1993 issue of Running Times. George then periodically sent out updated streak lists to those on the list.

George's initial running streak started on February 26, 1978 and ended on May 24, 2002 for 8,854 consecutive days or 24.24 years. After a 4-week hiatus, his second streak began on June 22, 2002 and ended on December 29, 2017 for 5,670 days in a row or 15.52 years. And, I recently discovered, his third streak began on September 1, 2018, and continues to be active. You go, buddy!

John Strumsky & Margaret Blackstock

Our next picture is of Margaret Blackstock of Atlanta, Georgia with me in the 1990s. Margaret's "running career" and streak both started on the same day—on September 9, 1979, and she originally had the longest documented female running streak in the United States until it was discovered some years later that Julie Maxwell of Kasson, Minnesota had a longer one that dated back to July 5, 1978. However, it was recently certified that Lois Bastien of Pinellas Park, Florida has a still active running streak that was the first female streak to hit 40 years in length.

First Streak Registry Cover.

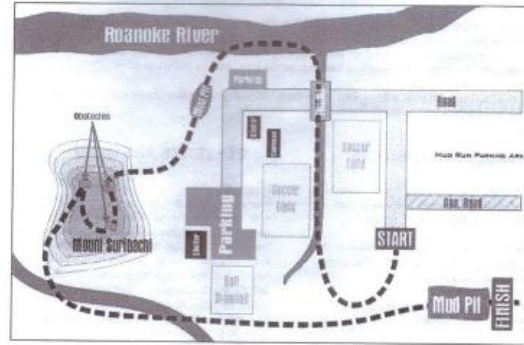

Here we have a photo of the first Streak Registry cover, which was published in April, 2001, and which contained the first of three USRSA logos purchased on behalf of the future association. While George Hancock and I were calling and writing back and forth, we had a conversation about how great it would be to someday have a national organization for streak runners, and back in May of 1999 Dawn Strumsky commissioned 3 different logos for the USRSA through an art contest held at Lansdowne High School in Baltimore. We purchased the 3 best logos on behalf of the future United States Running Streak Association, Inc. through small scholarships to the 3 students with the winning designs, which we then contributed on behalf of the future group, and held in trust on its behalf.

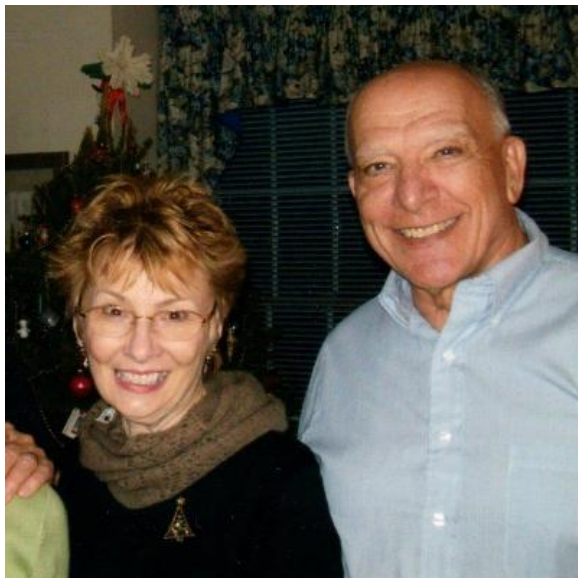

Third of the 3 original USRSA Logos.

We next come to the third of the 3 original USRSA logos. The United States Running Streak Association, Inc. was officially incorporated on August 7, 2000, and Dawn and I both felt the idea for the USRSA was more George's idea than mine, and we offered him the original leadership of the group, but he declined, feeling that he did not then have the time to lead it.

Dawn and I then went about creating the initial USRSA advisory board on November 21, 2000, which consisted of me from Millersville, Maryland as the Founder and President, and Bob Ray of Baltimore, Maryland (the longest male streak runner), Margaret Blackstock of Atlanta, Georgia (the longest female streak runner), and George Hancock of Windber, Pennsylvania (who would accept the title of Honorary Founder), as the rest of the board. On December 12, 2000, we expanded the board to a total of 10 to balance its representation across the country.

John Strumsky and Godchildren at the Marine Corps Mud Run.

Team Strumsky.

Next are the before and after photos of our godchildren and I and the course diagram from the 2004 Marine Corps Mud Run held in Roanoke, Virginia. During the summer of 2004 I shared with my godchildren that at 64 the time was nearing for me to stop racing, so they decided to find a memorable race that we could all do together, and this is the result. Running through a river, several obstacles and a mud pit turned out to be a surprisingly enjoyable way to run one of my last races. Think kids running and playing in the mud!

A picture of Team Strumsky is next. The USRSA commenced operations on January 4, 2001, and while I assumed the role of President, Dawn promptly became the glue that bound the group together. She became the Administrator of the Association and Editor of The Streak Registry. Immediately, she sent out press releases about the formation of the organization to all the running publications in the country, and it was she who would faithfully keep the records of the organization in good order for the next 10 years. In July, 2001, the Internal Revenue Service approved our tax-exempt status.

John Wallace III.

Our next picture is of John Wallace III, who, at the time, was Vice President of the USRSA, and was running across the country from the West Coast to the East Coast, with all his clothes and supplies in his running cart. He covered 3,805.9 miles through a dozen states in 124 days from September 26, 2004 to January 27, 2005. His transcontinental run started at the Pacific Ocean at Westport, Washington, and finished at the Atlantic Ocean at Tybee Island, Georgia, where a group of USRSA runners, including myself, were on hand to run the final few miles with him to the finish line.

John Strumsky Nearing the Finish Line.

John and Karen Wallace.

Next, we have a picture of John and Karen Wallace with the running cart that contained their sleeping bags and supplies that they pushed from north to south across the United States. These 2 north/south transcontinental streak runners are the parents of the west/east transcontinental crosser, but their foot-tour of the country “only” involved 1,300 miles of running over 82 days. They left Marquette, Michigan on July 7, 2007, and arrived at Biloxi, Mississippi on September 26, 2007.

Our final photo is of me nearing the finish line in the Field of Honor 5K Race at the Charlestown Retirement Community in Catonsville, Maryland on May 22, 2015. The race was held in conjunction with the 2015 Memorial Day festivities at the retirement home where Dawn and I now live. At 75, after a 10½-year absence from racing and a 6-year hiatus from running I returned one last time to finish this race as the first male Charlestown resident and the winner of the 70 to 79 age group.

There are so many other great USRSA memories, and so many other great streak runners I wish we had the time to include here, but this has to end for now.

STREAK RUNNING AT 20 YEARS

--George A. Hancock
runnergah@comcast.net

The SRI/USRSA organization has reached the 20 year milestone. A milestone that nearly eluded me. Perhaps, it was our tumultuous current year or various episodes that define my retirement life. I had no idea. A recent email request from Mark Washburne alerted me to this milestone. Mark asked me to pen a few words about this historic occasion.

The running streak project for me actually began back in 1994. My running streak at that time was 16 years old. I often wondered how my streak ranked among other streak runners. A letter to the Editor in the November, 1993 Running Times magazine by George Messenger sparked the project. Messenger inquired whether anyone was tracking running streaks across the United States. I was intrigued. My thought was simple. I can do that. And, I did.

I started writing for the monthly running newspaper Runner's Gazette and editor/publisher Freddi Carlip in 1986. So, by 1993 I had amassed 7 solid years writing about numerous running events. I decided to compile an active running streak list.

I located an extensive list of running clubs, groups and associations across our country. I prepared a letter detailing my project while asking for running streak information. Running Times magazine also printed my letter requesting running streak information. The Runner's Gazette newspaper also printed my request for streak running information.

The response was phenomenal. Remember, this occurred before the internet and emails. Streak runners replied by letter through the U.S. Mail. A few phoned this running writer.

I collected the data and prepared a running streak list. This streak list and my article appeared on page A-8 in the December, 1994 Runner's Gazette newspaper. The article and information request created a tidal wave. My initial running streak list featured 51 runners.

This original list featured one John J. Strumsky with his May 23, 1983 running streak. Strumsky would later play a pivotal role in the running streak culture.

My data base in 1994 was index cards. I recorded the streak runner's information on lined cards. The information was updated as needed. I used this method until computers, software programs and email were readily available in the late 1990's.

Email and the internet quickly transformed the running streak world. Information flowed freely now. Streak runners no longer toiled alone. Folks across the country were aware that people were running every day and some for many years without taking a day off.

I wrote a book about my running life. The book My Running Odyssey was published by the Daily American in 2018. I cover in detail these same points concerning the development of my original running streak list. My book provides more background information on the running streak culture. This book is available from Amazon or the Daily American's online web site www.madeinsomersetcounty.com. My Running Odyssey is also available from the author.

There are two other excellent books available dealing with running streaks. Laura Lee Huttenbach's 2017 book Running With Raven details the extraordinary running exploits of Robert "Raven" Kraft.

The other book is Mark Covert's 2018 book Never Missed. This book describes Mark Covert's lengthy running streak. Both books are available through Amazon.

Every streak runner is different other than running every day. These books give the reader answers to the questions: Why run every day? Are you crazy? Do you ever get bored? Why?

I'm frequently asked the question are you surprised how popular streak running is. My answer right from the beginning was no. Running every day is a common goal. It's no different than training hard to run your best race. The question how long can I run every day intrigues the average runner. Can I run every day for several years? Or, can I run every day for several decades?

Running is a simple concept. Children learn early that running is fun. Running gets you from here to there quickly. Perhaps the main issue for so many individuals loathing running is due to coaches using running as punishment. If you do something wrong at practice or in gym class then you run. Running as punishment remains a key concept. Run for fun? Are you kidding? Running hurts.

I wrote in my book on page 48 "running every day is a popular concept. This concept ranks with the thoughts: How far can I run? Can I run at least one mile every day? How fast can I run this race? Can I run every day when I get older?"

So, how popular running is every day is the main reason why I never attempted to organize a group or club associated with streak runners. I was content with interviewing and reporting on those involved in this unique running subculture. I did not have the time required for organizing a running streak organization.

Enter Mr. John Strumsky, Jr. John contacted me in October of 1998 about developing an organization devoted to running streaks. I explained my concerns. Running streaks and streak runners are more common than thought. I did not have the time necessary for this type of organization but John did.

John and his wife Dawn did an incredible job developing and organizing the United States Running Streak Association. The USRSA was incorporated on August 7, 2000. Several months later the group had a quarterly magazine The Streak Registry devoted to streak running. A quarterly magazine based on the four seasons was my suggestion. Dawn became the magazine editor. Dawn did an excellent job promoting the running words and thoughts of numerous streak runners. We all learned streak runners are average folks that share a common running every day goal.

Today, Mark Washburne heads this vast organization. The Streak Registry magazine is now in a digital format. The active running streak list is incredible. Am I surprised? No, running every day is a nice goal.

I'm the Honorary Founder of this outstanding organization. I remain proud of my early involvement. And, I'm still a streak runner nearing two straight years in my third running streak. I run every day because I can and enjoy running.

My advice is simple. Run well, run smart! Happy 20th Anniversary all!

EARLY RUNNING STREAK LISTS ON ULTRAMARATHON WORLD

By: David Blaikie

[Editor's note: As noted in the previous article, George Hancock first published his United States streak runners list in the December 1994 issue of Runner's Gazette. George Hancock's running streak list next appeared on Ultramarathon World website hosted by Canadian David Blaikie. "David Blaikie contacted me by phone about my running streak list during the early winter months of 1999," noted George Hancock in an email to TSR. "We chatted that Saturday morning about my project. David was familiar with my Runner's Gazette running streak list and article. He offered his Ultramarathon World website as a spot to place my running streak information. So, I updated my information and wrote a new article about running streaks with a new list featuring 66 streak runners." TSR recently contacted David Blaikie for his perspective on streak running before USRSA was founded. Next is Mr. Blaikie's article, along with the original April 1999 story on streak running that appeared on the Ultramarathon World website.]

Streak Runners International is a phenomenal achievement, putting all of that information together in one place. I salute you and all who have made this possible. Who knew when the modern running boom began half a century ago that streak running would become one of its most fascinating characteristics. I've always thought that streak running speaks to something deep and searching in certain runners, and I find it admirable, if not always wise, given the lengths some will go to keep their streaks alive.

A long time ago, I wrote this paragraph about ultrarunners: "Perhaps the genius of ultrarunning is its supreme lack of utility. It makes no sense in a world of space ships and supercomputers to run vast distances on foot. There is no money in it and no fame frequently not even the approval of peers. But as poets apostles and philosophers have insisted from the dawn of time there is more to life than logic and common sense. The ultra runners know this instinctively. And they know something else that is lost on the sedentary. They understand perhaps better than anyone that the doors to the spirit will swing open with physical effort. In running such long and taxing distances they answer a call from the deepest realms of their being – a call that asks who they are..."

I think the spirit I was trying to convey about untrrunners as a group applies as much to streak runners, perhaps even more in some ways. In some fashion, perhaps consciously, perhaps not, streak running is an exercise in self-inquiry. Streakers are genuinely involved in a quest for some sort for meaning in life, even if only as a matter of daily discipline. And what's not noble about that?

There is no big back story to the way my interest in streak runners developed. It was just one of the rabbit holes I went down through a general interest in the vast subject of human endurance. Streakers fascinated me, as did other endurance practitioners, like Everest climbers and those intrepid souls who sail solo around the world.

I think the research I did at the time began with Dominik Machek, who was one of the early modern-day ultra runners in Canada. I tracked him down when I was researching the history of Canadian ultrarunning and trying to piece together Canadian open and age group ultra records.

Dominik mentioned, almost in passing, that he had run something like 14 years without missing a day. I was thunderstruck and fascinated. He also mentioned others at the time whom he knew about, and I began to make inquiries of "streakers" and to write about them in my newsletter (Ultramarathon Canada, and later Ultramarathon World, a website that, by the way, predated the Runner's World website on the internet).

From there, streakers began to contact me. You were one of them, thankfully. And now look what's come of that! I am no longer involved in writing about ultrarunning. I'm also retired professionally after a long career in journalism and communications and I've returned in recent years to creative writing, mainly poetry. But every now and then I'm reminded by a note from someone like you why I spent 25 years immersed in the world of ultrarunning and all the wonderful creatures who inhabit it.

Best wishes, to you and to all streakers everywhere. Long may you run.

"I'm not going to run this again."

- Grete Waitz after winning her first of nine New York City Marathons.

 Windber, Pennsylvania (UW) - Where have all the heroes gone? Professional sports figures, educators, politicians, religious leaders and many entertainers lack basic inspirational qualities. Many professional ball players are crude criminals. These overpaid rude athletes are poor role models. Many professionals loathe this role model label. It's just a business. It's all about money. The attitude is, What's in it for me?

Our schools are no longer a safe haven. Children shoot other children. Guns and drugs darken many school days. Learning is an uneasy chore in this environment. The Runner cringes because children are our future.

Hard work, determination, discipline, and decency often go unnoticed. Once upon a time, craftsmen were a treasured breed. A craftsman spent countless hours perfecting his product. The craftsman enjoyed his trade. Making money never was the objective. Creating a masterpiece was the goal. The craftsman's finished product became a timeless treasure.

Where have all the heroes gone? Ladies and Gentleman, let me reassure you that heroes and craftsmen still exist. Yes, our nation is troubled. The daily news is discouraging. Our political leaders live on a different page. But, a small dedicated, determined group beat the odds and diligently prepares for challenges in the 21st Century. These people perfect their craft daily. They seek neither fame nor money. These people are scattered across our vast United States. Some live in urban centers while others live in rural and suburban regions. These people are from various backgrounds. The vast majority are married with families. These people share a common goal. They have the same daily mission. They run every single day. I submit that today's heroes are the active running streakers!

Brief Biography

Here's a biographical sketch describing the fellow behind the running streak project -- George Hancock. I'm 46-years old and started road running in 1973. My wife Brenda and I were married 10 years ago. We have a son Cory enrolled in the First Grade. Cory is active in soccer, basketball and loves the "lollipop races". I started running road races in 1976. I've raced distances from the 5-k to the marathon. Today, I never race over the 1/2 marathon distance. The 10-K is my favorite event.

I'm employed as a Staff Specialist at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown campus (Pitt-Johnstown) in the Book Center division. I'm also, since 1986, a writer for the Runner's Gazette -- a monthly newspaper devoted to the running/racing scene in the Middle Atlantic States. I'm active in my communities AYSO soccer program as a Head Coach, Coach Instructor and Regional Assistant Head Coach.

I'm also an active running stalker. My running streak began on 2/26/1978. I've missed only seven running days since 9/1/1976. This is how my running streak project began. I wondered how my streak ranked in comparison to other U.S. running streaks.

Running Streak History

My first running streak list appeared in the December, 1994 Runner's Gazette. The list appeared after a year long effort aimed at identifying and contacting runners with active running streaks. I contacted over 140 running groups, clubs and associations seeking running streak information. Every major running publication was contacted seeking streak information. The initial response was phenomenal. The project generated a huge volume of mail. Runners copied the article and circulated it at various road races. This December, 1994 article made other streaking runners aware of my project. Consequently, I received even more data on active running streaks.

I only track active U. S. running streaks. The sole purpose is to keep this project manageable. Tracking running streaks does involve expending time, money and considerable effort. However, this project is educational and very informative. So, the running streak project will continue.

What Constitutes A Running Streak?

Americans love to compartmentalize every aspect of our society. We create labels, categories and slogans for everything. Sports are no exception. This exists in road running and extends to running streaks. We dissect and explore everything to death.

The sole purpose of my running streak list was to recognize and acknowledge the running stalkers. I always believed in Keep It Simple concept. A running streak is a continuous daily running effort. I believe this implies running every day under one's own power. This concept eliminates pool running, treadmill running, roller blades, snowshoes, crutches or any other mechanical means. These activities are great for physical fitness but are not running. Running implies moving over the ground under one's own power. An individual may run fast or run slow.

Some individuals run inside while others run outside. some runners with "running streaks" are not listed on my active list. Despite their athletic accomplishment they failed to meet the one basic running streak concept. Again, this is running every day under one's own power.

One Western Pennsylvania runner relayed a very sad story. his runner had a running streak in progress. This runner also owned a thriving sports business. One day, after working many long exhausting hours, the runner dressed for his daily run. The runner sat down to rest about 9:00 PM. Sadly, the runner woke at 2:00 AM the next day. The runner went out for his run rationalizing that "somewhere in the world it was still yesterday." However, the runner's streak did end. He missed a running day. Yet, this runner considers his streak intact.

Some runners requested the running streak list be subdivided into various categories. I was asked to include categories based on minimum mileage, weekly mileage, regions of the country and racing accomplishments. But, this idea is not always possible. Many streaking runners now run for time instead of accumulating miles. Many streaking runners no longer enter road races. Once again, my intention was to keep this project simple and manageable. Thus the running streak list is only based on the actual streak start date.

This year David Blaikie offered his Ultramarathon World web site to collect information on running streaks. Ultramarathon World first appeared in 1995. This web site features detailed information on ultra events, marathons, running events and various runners. Blaikie's initial article "The Solitary Joy of Streak Running" created a huge renewed interest in the running streak story. Blaikie collected and forwarded valuable running streak information to this writer. Thank you David Blaikie for your interest and support in the running streak story.

Proof?

Just how do you prove a running streak? This is a legitimate question. The whole running streak concept is based on the honor system. Many streaking runners maintain meticulous records. Log books exist which document these daily runs. However, records can easily be falsified.

Here's an important point to remember. There's absolutely nothing gained by being included on this running streak list. We offer no prizes or huge shoe contracts to the streaking runners. This list simply acknowledges runners who run every day. Streaking runners are craftsmen perfecting their trade.

Streaking runners are mostly veteran runners known in their particular communities. It is very difficult to run every day, for 17 years, without your fellow runners knowing about your accomplishment. Runners are a close-knit supportive group. An exaggerated running claim, story or accomplishment eventually is exposed in the running community. The streaking runner's peers weed out the fake stories.

The Streaking Runners

Bob Ray is quietly leading a small army of running streakers into the 21st Century. Ray began his phenomenal running streak on April 4, 1967. Ray owns the longest running streak in the United States. Ray's streak soon will pass the 32-year mark.

Ray, 61, is a retired letter carrier residing in Baltimore, Maryland. Ray has run every day while various events disappeared into murky history. Lyndon B. Johnson was President of the United States on April 4, 1967. Ray ran through 7 different presidential administrations. Ray ran every day while Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter, Regan, Bush and Clinton each lived in the White House. Ray started his streak before disco, the moon landings, Monday Night Football and the Watergate turmoil.

James Earl Jones utters a great line in the classic movie Field of Dreams. James, as Terrance Mann, talks about baseball being a constant in many people's lives. Events, people came and went but there was always baseball. Well, history and time constantly moves forward followed by Bob Ray and the streaking runners.

One year three months and eighteen days separates Bob Ray and the number two running streaker in the U.S. Mark Covert has the second longest running streak in the country. Covert began his streak on July 22, 1968. Covert, a physical education instructor at Antelope Valley College in Lancaster, California, also coaches the track and cross-country teams.

Covert remains somewhat skeptical of the current running streak claims. Covert has always considered his streak second to Ron Hill's 12/20/1964 streak. Covert states in an April 4, 1995 L.A. Times article "Streak Smarts" that "I consider my streak the second longest. I'm not saying these other guy's streaks aren't for real. If they say they've run, they've run. But I have always wondered where these guys were over the first 10 or 15 years. How did they just surface now?" Covert has never responded to this writer's inquiries about his running streak.

Covert's skeptical attitude demonstrates the need for this running streak project. Running streaks were never fully explored by the running press. Consequently, streaking runners never read about the similar accomplishments by their fellow running streakers. Hopefully, this running streak project will change that attitude.

Jim Pearson, a Ferndale, Washington teacher, holds the third longest running streak in the U. S. Pearson began his streak on February 16, 1970. Pearson stated "the key to my survival has been a keen sense of what my body can handle. I'm not afraid to back off not even in a race. The key to running when you're ill is to never let your heart get tired."

Pearson has always maintained a high weekly mileage average. Pearson, 55, an accomplished road racer seldom races today. Pearson now only enters a race when one of his children seeks a road race challenge.

Ken Young holds the fourth longest running streak in the U. S. Young, 58, from Petrolia, California, started his streak on July 6, 1970. Young began his running streak on Okinawa Island after a brutal attack by two GI's. Young was attacked during a 17-mile hilly training run. The military police took Young to the local U. S. air base for hospital treatment. Young needed stitches for his split lip, back head wound and deep gash over his eye. Young stated, "I ran the next day and figured if I could do that, there was no excuse not to run every day."

Young once chaired the National Running Data Center in Arizona. Young retired from the University of Arizona, in 1994, to start a computer software company. Young also is an accomplished marathon and ultramarathon runner.

Young wrote an interesting article for the Buffalo Enquirer. This is the official publication of the Buffalo Chip running club. In the article entitled "Streakers Wanted" Young wrote that "there is a certain pride streakers have in their running streaks. There is even an element of competition among streakers. The competition is weird, too. No matter how fast you run, how many miles you run, or how many workouts you do in a day, you can only catch a runner whose streak is one day longer than yours if he/she quits. And streakers rarely quit for no good reason. Death (one's own) is the only acceptable excuse."

The fifth longest running streak in the U.S. belongs to Rochester, Minnesota resident Steve DeBoer. Forty-four-year old DeBoer began his streak on July 20, 1970. DeBoer is a clinical dietitian at the Mayo clinic. DeBoer began his streak before his high school Junior cross-country season.

DeBoer was featured last year in the Summer, 1994 RRCA Footnotes publication. James Raia's article "Doing the Streak" outlines the similarities which exist in running streaks. DeBoer like the other running streakers simply likes running. So, Steve runs every day. DeBoer's goal, as a married family man, is seeing how long he can run every day. DeBoer remains durable and injury free promising a long running streak.

Running Streak Footnotes

My revised running streak list features 66 active running streakers. Here's the breakdown: 2 runners are over the 30 year mark, 5 runners are over 25 years, 18 runners are over 20 years, 25 runners are over 15 years, 10 runners are over 10 years, 5 runners are over 5 years, and 1 runner is less than 5 years.

The breakdown by states is very interesting. California leads the nation with 8 streaking runners, Pennsylvania and Maryland each have 7 streaking runners. Texas has 6, New Jersey has 5, New York has 4, Massachusetts has 3, and Michigan has 3 streaking runners. The Northeastern states have 21 streaking runners.

Western Pennsylvania has 6 running streakers. Three running streakers, George Hancock, Tony Capon and Dave Molnar live in Cambria County.

Baltimore, Maryland, is another region featuring several streaking runners. Bob Ray, John Strumsky, Jr., and Ray Lorden all live in Baltimore.

The running streak list features 16 runners in the educational field. There are 4 teachers in the top ten. Attorneys, Computer Specialists, Sales Reps, Doctors and Social Workers are other leading occupations.

Ninety per cent (90%) of the streaking runners are married with families. Nine per cent (9%) are married but without children. One per cent (1%) are single.

Again, this revised running streak list features only one woman runner. There must be more woman runners with running streaks. I have never confirmed another woman's daily running streak.

Margaret Owen Blackstock is our only female running streaker. Blackstock, 54, from Atlanta, Georgia, began her streak on September 9, 1979. Blackstock is a Homemaker with three grown sons. Blackstock is also featured in the May, 1999 Running Times article "Running A Blue Streak." Blackstock is 28th on this current revised list.

Our revised streak list has a father/son combination. Jim Pearson is 3rd on our list while his son Joel is 66th. Joel Pearson is also our youngest running streaker. Joel, with careful planning and dedication, could possibly take his streak into the 22nd Century.

Len S. Burton, a retired FBI agent, is our oldest running streaker at 69. Burton began his streak on 6/28/ 1983. Walt Byerly, at age 68, cracks the top ten. Byerly began his streak on 11/5/1974. Byerly is in 8th place.

Two brothers appear on our revised list. Fred Winkel dates his streak to 12/20/1979 while his brother Marty began his streak on 3/21/1985. Fred Winkel resides in New York City while brother Marty lives in Titusville, Florida.

Many streaking runners know each other. For instance, Bob Ray (4/4/1967) and Ray Lorden (10/31/1989) run together.

This writer personally knows Tony Capon (12/16/1986) and Dave Molnar (8/30/1987).

Jim Pearson's streak directly influenced his son Joel's running streak. by Kammerzell (1/1/1983), an Everett, Washington firefighter, was a runner for Jim Pearson's high school team.

John Strumsky, Jr. (5/23/1983) is actively organizing streakers in the Baltimore region for various activities.

Some running streakers believe they toil alone on the dusty roads. However, the growing running streak publicity is putting more of these runners in contact with one another.

Edward Goff (8/13/1980) has the best running streak challenge story. Goff, 55 a teacher with the Department of Defense, is currently stationed in Germany. Goff has run the bulk of his streaking miles on foreign soil.

Edward Goff and his wife Barbara are teachers in the Department of Defense Dependents School system. The Goff's were stationed in the Kwajalein Islands in 1981. This is part of the Marshall Island group. The Kwajalein Islands were used by the U. S. military for various missile tests. The Islands are naturally located West of the International Date Line. However, the military "moved" the dateline East in order to better coordinate missile launches with the test centers in California. This dateline movement upset the native population.

So, in 1993 the military decided to "move" the Dateline East. This effort hopefully would improve foreign relations between the U. S. and the Republic of Marshall Islands. The bottom line for Edward Goff, a running streaker was the elimination of August 21, 1993. This date would disappear from the local calendar.

Goff had several running options. One, do nothing and lose a running day. Two, fly elsewhere and run on August 21, 1993. Goff chose option three. Goff's local running club held an "Ultra Marathon" which started on August 20, 1993 at 11:50 PM. The race concluded, during the early morning hours, on August 22, 1993. As Goff explains, "If I started running on August 20th and didn't stop until August 22nd, how could I have missed August 21st?" Oh, the trials and tribulations of the daily running streaker!

Bill Roger, Sr. earns the "Why Did He Do It?" running streak award. Roger, 60 and retired, is a running streaker from Levelland, Texas. Roger began his streak on November 12, 1986. (Roger is no relation to the famous Massachusetts-based Bill Rogers.)

Roger was diagnosed with prostate cancer in August, 1995. Surgery was scheduled for November 21, 1995. Roger did not want to end his streak. Roger ran the morning of November 21, 1995. Roger informed his doctors he would attempt running after the scheduled surgery. The operation was successful. Roger did run the hospital hallways later that evening. This was witnessed by many individuals. Roger's only pain was climbing out of his bed. The next day Roger ran three different times. Roger ran in the morning, afternoon and evening. Each day Roger ran longer. The doctors had enough. They released Roger several days later. Roger went home and never looked back. Roger informed me that "the surgery was a snap and marathon running is a lot more painful." Roger ran the 100th Boston Marathon the next Spring.

The running streakers are a proud determined group. They accept the daily running challenge. Sometimes their zeal overshadows what many consider common sense. But, this group of running streakers are honest role models.

Conclusions

Streaking runners are an active personable group. Their remarkable accomplishments are difficult to ignore. For example, by July 21, 2000, five runners will have streaks over the 30 year mark. Thirty-six runners will trample the 20-year mark by October 5, 2000. This is over half the running streak list! The running streakers truly are a strong visible force.

There are many more running streakers in the U. S. Many individuals sent information about other running streakers. However, these 15 to 20 runners could not be located or their streaks verified as still active. Another 10 runners, from my original list, were dropped for the same reasons. These runners could be added later swelling the running streak ranks.

The May, 1999, Running Times magazine features a running streak article by Scott Douglas. The article entitled "Running A Blue Streak: The Motivation And Mores Of Runners Who Don't Rest" describes the daily streaks of five runners. The article paints a portrait of five runners who love running every day.

The Road Runners Club of America's (RRCA) quarterly publication Footnotes (Summer, 1998) also features a major running streak article. The article, by James Raia, "Doing The Streak", outlines this running streak phenomenon. Again, Raia reached the same conclusions as Douglas. Running streakers love running. So, they run every day. These ordinary people are physically capable of running every day.

Heroes appear in many forms. Hard working parents raising children are real heroes. Firefighters, police officers, and emergency/rescue personnel also are heroes. We don't need the professional athletes as role models. We can find our heroes elsewhere!

Running every day is a simple concept. A small running army took this concept to a new level. This running streak group continues to establish new running standards. This group will set daily running records well into the next century.

Once again, running every day under your own power. A very simple idea. A runner employing his basic skills. A runner on the road every day for his own benefit. There's no money or prizes earned here. Once in a while, there's a nice magazine or newspaper article about running streaks. Then the publicity ebbs away. The streaking runner is alone on the road. The running streaker enjoys the daily challenge. The running streaker trots on. Tomorrow brings another running day. I'm proud to be a running streaker!

Streak Runners: 1999 United States List

Ultramarathon World

★ Detailed Commentary ★ More on Streaking

April 22, 1999

 Windber, Pennsylvania (UW) - The following list of streak runners in the United States has been painstakingly compiled by George Hancock of Winber, Pennsylvania, in co-operation with Ultramarathon World. While it is the most comprehensive list yet assembled, it is not complete and will be updated regularly as new information becomes available.

"There are many more running streakers in the U. S.," Hancock notes. "Many individuals sent information about other running streakers. However, these 15 to 20 runners could not be located or their streaks verified as still active. Another 10 runners, from my original list, were dropped for the same reasons. These runners could be added later swelling the running streak ranks."

BRIAN CLEVEN'S STREAK REACHES 10 Years! By: Brian Clevén

10 YEARS of RUNNING at least 1 mile every single day! July 2nd, 2010 through July 2nd, 2020 for a total of 3,654 DAYS IN A ROW! So many wonderful things have happened in my 10 years of not missing a day of running: married, built our house, Natasha was born, started the Cardiac Rehab program at Bellin Health Marinette, finished 5 of my 6 IRONMANs, went skydiving, took many trips to see the United States and the World, and so much more! Not every day has been easy with a few badly sprained ankles (good thing I'm an Athletic Trainer and can tape myself), quad strains, a dislocated shoulder, a bad stomach bug in Mexico, and a really nasty flu last year that I probably shouldn't have completed that mile minimum through (which is usually at least 1.05 or 1.11 just in case). At times I'm sure my wife Amy thought I was crazy, but she was the one that enrolled me in USRSA in 2013 as a wedding anniversary gift!

Overall, I am simply blessed with such amazing support from my wonderful wife Amy, my parents Russ and Kathy, and all the rest of our family and friends along with the grace of God! I have enjoyed chasing Mark Jasper (both at races and with the running streak) who reached 10 years last October 24th.

For those who know me best, they know that I love a good spreadsheet for data. Since 2010 when I finished my first IRONMAN I have kept a log of all my running, biking, swimming, rowing, races, and other important moments in life!

Below is a quick glimpse of some of the highlights! 😊 To keep my feet and joints happy and to better continue my athletic pursuits long term my running is more focused with less overall volume and more quality so about 90% of my training is indoor or outdoor cycling.

FUN FACTS:

Competed in 201 RACES between July 2nd, 2010 and July 2nd, 2020 consisting of 1 mile Running Races up to 140.6 mile IRONMAN triathlons. The 201 doesn't count the 13 consecutive weekend IRONMAN VR Races this year.

21 OVERALL RACE WINS and 2 DuTriRun MultiSport Series wins (2014, 2019)

Fastest 1 mile = 5:39 (Ironman VR race 2020, it was outside and not down a hill 😊)

2 mile = 11:23 (New Dublin Dash)

5K = 17:55 (UP Northwoods Triathlon)

10K = 39:27 (Bellin Run)

Half Marathon = 1:31:37 (Oshkosh)

Full Marathon = 3:44:34 (Cellcom)

Half Ironman = 5:12:22 (High Cliff)

Full IRONMAN = 11:53 at IM WI 2012. Went 10:26 at IM LOU 2019, but it had no Swim

TOTAL MILES OVER THE 10 YEARS

RUN = 9,366.25 miles / 3654 days = 2.56 miles per day average

BIKE = 123,404.45 miles (The number just seems so big, but I cycle indoors or outdoors usually every day for around 90 minutes plus or around 30 miles. Running is my challenge or test whereas biking is my escape! For any doubters $30 \times 3654 = 109,620$ and many days were much longer than 30 miles training for Ironman.)

SWIM = 172.6 miles

ROW = 1,900 miles

OTHER NOTABLES

First 5K- Menominee Waterfront 5K Run in 2003 (Long before starting the running streak, but an important event in my life!) A good family friend Glenn Sartorelli spoke words of encouragement that motivated me to give it a try! Never underestimate the power of positive words. You might think your encouragement won't lead to anything, but you are PLANTING A SEED that one day might grow into something GREAT! May 2020 was supposed to be my debut as a Race Director for the Bellin 5K Heart Run at the Marinette Clinic where my community was going to have the opportunity to experience some of the Bellin Run magic right here in Marinette, but Covid-19 put the brakes on. I'm truly looking forward to when this dream becomes a reality!

Greatest Joy- More than winning a race or reaching my own personal goals, my greatest joy with running has been seeing friends, family, and patients cross their own finish lines. There truly is nothing better than watching someone put in the time and effort and then see them so happy when they reach their goal! I truly couldn't be more proud of my best bud Eric Walters who like me never enjoyed running in our younger years, but tackled his first 5K with me in 2007 (La Crescent, MN which just had to be one of the hilliest 5Ks I've ran, LOL You picked Wali 😊). Now he's gunning for his first Marathon. Or my boy from Boston Kevin Marszlek who saw Amy and I race triathlon and being the competitive person he is did a Sprint, a Half, and then became an IRONMAN in 2014. Or Shane Brown who has been a great friend and motivator who started triathlon with me in 2009, became an IRONMAN in 2014 and now is an Ultra runner and several time World's Toughest Mudder!

Favorite Races- Peshtigo Fire Tower Run, Menominee Waterfront Run, UP Northwoods Triathlon/Duathlon, IRONMAN Wisconsin

Strangest Run- Running dozens of circles in a hotel parking lot in Athens, Greece at like 2 or 3AM in 2013 with Amy because the hotel exercise room was closed and the closest road was a major highway.

Most painful Run- The day after the Mountains 2 Beach Marathon in Ventura, California in 2015. Went into the race not recovered from heavy training and then 26.2 miles of net downhill trashed my legs. Shane Brown remembers me being in the hurt locker.

Favorite Run- Tie between running in the magical scenery in Meteora, Greece with Amy or the final 1 mile to the FINISH of my IRONMAN Triathlons!

Still on my running BUCKET LIST is one day running the Boston Marathon and completing the Ironman World Championship in Kona, Hawaii for myself, Team Clevelen, and Tom.

And the question, Will I continue the streak?

Absolutely! I will run at least a mile every day that I possibly can! Now after reaching 10 years I am more open to not running the mile because of injury or a life event, but honestly it will take an awful lot to stop. 😊

Final thoughts! Each and every day is truly a gift, enjoy it! I'll leave you with our Clevelen family motto that is slightly stolen from Ironman and other places. "Be Kind, Be Brave, and Always Believe...Anything Is Possible!" Cheers and a very sincere Thank You to all who have helped me on my journey!

EMBRACING 39 REFLECTIONS ON A RUNNING STREAK

By: Ben Dillow

ben_dillow@redlands.edu

[Editors note: TSR received this article from Ben Dillow on Thursday, 20 August 2020. Two days later, Professor Dillow had a serious fall that ended his streak after 14,248 days. We have reprinted the original article and have included an addendum from the Professor on his accident.]

The “other” Benny, first name Jack, loved 39 so much that long after it no longer passed muster, he would continue, when asked, to claim it his age. I have embraced it at least twice: first 41 years ago, when measuring my age, then again, this past week, when charting the length of my running streak.

The last day I didn’t run was August 19, 1981.

Depending on the set one uses, that’s 39 years. Or, if you’d prefer—14,246 days, or 72,000+ miles, or nearly 3 times around the earth, or a third of the way to the moon. Only Road Runner Sports knows how many pair of sneakers I’ve gone through while averaging a tick above 5 miles a day for nearly half my life.

Unlike the other Benny, if circumstances permit, I’ll gladly embrace 40—and hopefully beyond—but first? There’s a 39 to consider.

The streak started innocently enough. It was hot (did I mention it was August, and did I note I live in the desert?) I was tiptoeing back into my fall routine of responding to a schedule governed by work rather than impulse, and both weather and schedule conspired for running early. The previous two weeks I had not run at all—not that unusual for my running habit in those days. I was being courted, but not yet married.

I ran “short” that August morning—3 miles—and filled in the space in my journal—some blue ink finally after all that open white space—and thought little more of it. That run was followed by runs on Saturday and Sunday—and with little forethought, each of the days the following week. It was an afterthought, I’m sure, when at the start of September, I noted I had run 12 days in a row without a miss. “Interesting,” I thought, but hardly significant, though I do recall wondering how long I might keep that up and so I started keeping the consecutive day total each week along with daily notations of cumulative mileage run.

A short time later, on September 12, a Saturday, after a family pizza gathering, full gut and 10:00 PM notwithstanding, relaxed and comfortable, a notion crossed my mind: “Ben, you haven’t run today.” A month earlier the thought would never have registered, but now the devil whispered, “Get out or start over—”

In retrospect, I think that Saturday was the “real” birth date of all of this for it would be from that date that I would have a hard time denying the pull of “The Streak.”

Along the way there were other, many other, hurdles more formidable than a tummy full of pizza, and anyone who has a streak of a month or more knows them by name. The list chronicles challenges turned aside, sometimes with questionable wisdom, most of the time with simple resolve. Family and work challenges, health and injury issues, weather, travel, time zones, competing priorities—all of which conspire to weaken the will, or make it difficult, or indeed unwise, and ultimately, for us all—impossible to run.

58 YEARS AND COUNTING

So far, since the 19th of August 1981, I’ve met that little Devil and turned him away.

And the payoff and virtue of my labors? A fistful of flotsam, little more. A tale told by an old man, signifying little—a bit of sound perhaps (particularly on up hills) but rarely any fury— (save when the high school boys drive quietly up behind me, honk loudly and then roar off in their pickup filled with raging hormones and laughter!)

Nothing noteworthy about my speed—indeed, I am now running about half as fast (or twice as slow) as I was in 1981—and I wasn’t a speedster then. I inherited neither wealth nor fast twitch muscles.

This past November, I ran in the Annual Redlands “Turkey Trot” on a rare cool rainy day “with” my 14-year-old granddaughter Hailey—. I say “with” while engaging some modest rhetorical hyperbole, since about 25 seconds after the starter’s gun went off, I lost sight of her until the finish line. She about froze to death waiting for me. “You get lost,” she wondered as I finished. “Yah, something like that,” I smiled.

Ben Dillow and Granddaughter Hailey Allen

Nor is there anything particularly significant about my mileage—I still try to post 40 mile weeks—goals are golden—combining running and walking while always getting my one daily running mile in of course. This gives me my 2,000 miles a year. My “long” run/walk each week, on Monday, is generally 10-12 miles; a warmup for some of you. My pharmacist neighbor Huy, all 100 pounds of her, runs ultras—100 miles at a crack; she usually finishes her morning run around 7 AM as I’m heading out—we smile and chat a moment. I inquire, “—how far this morning?” She generally answers, “Oh 20 or so—.”

We’re both “runners,” but our list of similarities is awfully short.

I rarely run races anymore, even though they often are for good causes. I have drawers full of shirts commemorating everything from fun runs to marathons, but of late I take pleasure in knowing I can run out the front door, up the hill, into the orange groves without ever getting in the car to drive anywhere to start—and I determine the starting time and distance—and on most days I even enjoy the company.

For years running meant collegiality. A group of us would gather at the gym at noon and off we’d go, but fate and years have altered that and for the past several years I have run solo. At one time I worried whether I would continue to run without companionship, but it was a false worry for I have developed a deeply valued appreciation for the multiple pleasures of soloing. Now even my iPod seems too much company.

How does one get to over 14,000 consecutive days of running? Well simple—like the words of the old gospel tune, “One Day at a Time.” But in fairness there may be more to it than that.

I’ve thought about this a bit and conclude that there are many routes to a long streak, but for me? I come to this number at the confluence of Luck, Persistence, and Insight.

Anyone with a streak of any length at all must be friends with Good Luck.

I live in Southern California where day after day, year after year, no run is challenged by weather. I grew up in a small town outside Chicago, have traveled around the world, and know that weather alone can be a defining issue for a runner. I've run in Chicago, Buffalo, Minneapolis and Duluth—in the winter—but I did so knowing I was there for 2-3 days, not 3-4 months. Resolve as well as the nose takes a beating in Duluth in the Winter.

The hardest season for runners in Southern California? Well, hands down it's summer. Where I live summers get hot. As I write this in mid-August it hit 110 today. It promises to warm this weekend. And even with the promise of "dry heat," 110 is hot. But if you head out early you will occasionally find a bit of morning cloud cover and not uncommonly temperatures below 70. And as the sun goes down, so too the temps...so solutions are easy to find. And 60 miles from home here in Redlands? 2 sons and a granddaughter at the beach where summer temps rarely slide above the 70s, and an ocean breeze takes the sting out of even that. 80 miles from Duluth or Buffalo in January? Still Winter and the resolve to head out, day after day, in bitter cold and any of its equally challenging brethren, just might be a bit more challenging to the will.

I also was lucky in the gene pool lottery. Buddies who loved to run have stopped running not because they lost interest, but because their knees, hips, back or ankles or doctor (undertaker?) told them to. Mine, at 80, are still submissive and cooperative. That's just luck.

As I write the country is trying to make sense out of a pandemic now reaching into its sixth month. 5 million cases, 160,000 deaths—so far, and "so far," Lady Luck has allowed this crazy virus which seemingly knows no boundaries to pass us by. My wife this past winter had an emergency appendectomy. She likes to walk each day but was forced to take a break—no negotiation, no choice. Hard to run if you're strapped to a gurney.

I read that Serena Williams took offense when someone attributed "luck" in some part to her excellence. "Luck," she responded? Luck has nothing to do with it (my emphasis) because I have spent many, many hours, countless hours on the court working for my one moment in time—"Point taken. She (and almost every other pro like her) work hard—but who can discount her luck? Or Tiger's? World Class but with the gift of birth, circumstance, physical gifts and support that allowed that work to materialize into world class performers. I have to tell you that even if I matched Serena's time on the court (or Tiger's on the practice green) I'd never have been able to compete with them. Their finely honed skills at age 10 already would have soared by mine, and I'm pretty sure no matter how many ground balls I would take, or swings in the batting cage, I would still be consigned to watching not playing for the Dodgers. My luck in the gene pool lottery allows for satisfying mediocrity, not excellence.

Speaking of luck, the support and understanding of family has played a major role in this streak. For nearly 40 years my wife of 58 years and my family has patiently waited and tolerated my "need" to get in a run. Every day. Whatever was on the schedule they, as surely as I, made time for my run. 1 hour? 2, sometimes 3? I've tried to be thoughtful, but they have adjusted, waited, and done so by applauding and supporting rather than complaining, and I can only wonder, "how lucky is that?" If forced to make a choice between family and running that choice would have been easy and this essay would never have been written, but I can honestly say my wife and family have never, not once, done anything but support my running.

But good luck alone is not enough.

Honesty requires each of us to court Persistence, for without her a long streak just doesn't happen. Good luck opens the door for us, persistence causes us to lace up our shoes and go for a run. Every day. For as long as we streak. Persistence is required of the world class athlete, and persistence is required for an old stalker like me—and for each of you as well.

In one of the rare quotes attributed to “Silent Calvin” Coolidge “persistence,” he argues, “is more important than any other quality—.” This stretches it a bit I think—but point made. There are those days when crazy schedules, travel, diminished will, nagging injury, a bug or two, team up and embrace the appeal of taking a day off. It would be so easy, and who would care if we didn't run? Persistence allows us to keep filling in the dates in our running journal when will or weather or—whisper “take a day off.”

We've all heard the little voice, “Not today!” and sometimes a bigger voice, “Are you sure its wise to head out today?” Sometimes it's your voice, “Good Lord I feel—fill in the blank— “awful, tired, lousy, overwhelmed—” today.

Sometimes it's the voice of others whose weight should carry some force with us.

I sat uncomfortably on the examination table as Dr. Watson looked at the x-ray of my right leg and without turning said, “As I thought—a multiple stress fracture of your fibula. Looks like you won't be running for a while.”

I had actually had heard the bone pop 3 weeks earlier on the golf course but wasn't bright enough to head to the doc straight away—there was that trip to Hawaii on the books and ocean breezes are terrific remedies for what ails you I thought. Don't at some level we all believe with inattention pain will just go away—?

The room was suddenly quiet, Dr. Watson turned and looked at me and noted me gazing at the floor. “Wait—haven't I seen you running the past week?” The good doctor lives three houses up the street.

“Yes,” I said, I have been running a bit. Hurt it 3 weeks ago, before our trip.” Watson looked at the X-ray again and said, “You've been running on this for 3 weeks?”

Silence in the room.

“Runners!” he said in resignation. (Not sure that was a compliment.) He looked at the x-ray again and said. “--well it's halfway healed so I guess it's now your call—if you take it easy and can handle the discomfort.”

I said I thought I could if he promised not to squeeze the leg again.

Sometimes the voice is closer to home. My wife, despite all her normally supportive moods, more than once has commented on my intelligence as I arose from a sleepless, sweaty, flu-ish night to “get in a couple of miles.” She likes to ask rhetorical questions like, “Surely you’re not planning on running today are you?”

I said, “Please don’t call me Shirley, but yes I think I’ll try and get in a couple.”

Run for a month without missing a day and you’ll start collecting your own stories, which at their core have in common a bit of persistence that makes the streak possible. It requires little resolve not to run, but you better make friends with Ms. P if you want to steak.

And of course, taken as a whole, and after a bit of time, all of this begins to offer up some insight to us. Running, our tally sheet shows us, makes sense for us—and so we continue, or it doesn’t, and so we stop.

Cost benefits in sneakers. We run, after all do we not, because the benefits outweigh the costs.

Was it not Thoreau who observed that he could not “preserve his health and spirits unless he spent four hours a day, at least, often more than that, sauntering through the wood and over the hills and field, “absolutely free from all worldly engagements.” What’s true of the “saunterer” is also true of the runner.

Does this from Thoreau sound familiar? “I, who cannot stay in my chamber for a single day without acquiring rust, have many times stolen forth at the 11th hour to redeem the day.”

Not overly impressed with his endurance, he observes his astonishment at the power of endurance of neighbors who confine themselves to shops and offices the whole day, for weeks and months, “aye even years—I know not what they are made of.”

And this: “No wealth can buy the requisite leisure, freedom and independence which is the capital that comes to us from the Grace of God” (by walking.)

Insight. Born of experience. Packaged and shipped with each new pair of sneakers.

Perhaps we can’t replicate the eloquence of Thoreau, but the stalker understands much of his sentiment and shares it. Like Thoreau, we come to enjoy what falls to us as “ambulators.”

Each of us can recall with blessed clarity runs we have taken 10, 20, 30 years ago, that in their beauty and profundity remain vivid in our mind—and so we run. Daily. Knowing the promise to us is that today’s run just might post another memory in the bank, and that promise leads us to our front door.

Luck, persistence, and insight. Running is both ends and means.

I turned 80 a few weeks ago and my health care company called for the annual conversation, this time a virtual physical on Facetime—“Medications,” he inquired. “None.” “Hospital stays in the past 5 years?” “None.” “Operations, ever?” “None.” “Weight?” “170.” “How does that compare to 10 years ago?” “Pretty much the same!” “Heart rate?” “Hovers in the low 40s.” “Sleep well?” “Like a log!” “Drink much?” “No.” “Smoke?” “No.” “How would you describe your level of emotional health?”

“Well, I said, as long as I don’t watch Fox News—” “What’s your secret,” he inquired.

I said, “Pure dumb luck, a little bit of persistence and a whole lot of insight. And oh yes—I run a little.”

Ben Dillow

I like my run and I like my streak, but neither are the centerpieces of my life.

That space is deeply crowded and reserved for my wife of 58 years with whom I share a deep love and genuine mutual affection. Nestled not far from us are three young men (well they “were” young at one time) who have transitioned from good kids to good friends. Around them? 5 grandkids who delight. And scattered across the country a large but tightly knit family that loves nothing more than gathering around our gene pool.

Will I continue to run?

I hope so, but I also hope that I can continue to travel, play golf, read good books (maybe even write another), listen to beautiful music, share time with good friends, enjoy quiet dinners and evenings with my wife, puzzle over questions of faith and rejoice in the great good fortune that life—a rich life—provides.

And when it cools, I may even do some yard work, trim the roses, pick some tomatoes, and take a dip in the pool—and pencil in the time I expect to get in my run the next day.

August 19, 2020 Redlands, CA

Addendum from Ben Dillow dated August 24, 2020: Well we plan and God smiles. Ironic my note to you spoke of luck. Good luck. On Saturday, day 2, year 40, I was finishing my Saturday morning jog on fraternity row at the University of Redlands, my professional home these past 50 years. My wife was to meet me for a lovely park like walk— I geared off the asphalt to the dirt for a few yards at the end for variety, heard her car come up behind me, turned to transition back to the pavement, caught the edge of the road full force, mid stride and went down hard on my face on asphalt with very little cushioning from my hands—Crushed my face—so tomorrow I get screwed! And plated. Eye sockets, nose, cheek, jaws, sinus—My sweet granddaughters started a “Run for Grandpa” FB group running to keep my streak alive

(which of course they can't) but how sweet is that? 120 have signed on...So it's done. Finished. I'm sad about that—I really looked forward to 40, but it's not to be. Wish the surgeon good thoughts tomorrow for his important work!

Traversing the Tundra Consistently at High Mileage By: Steve DeBoer

It was 2 years ago that I tallied up the number of years many of our streak runners (who keep track of their mileage and have run over 70,000 lifetime miles) have surpassed 2000, 3000, 4000, and 5000 miles. So it must be time for an UPDATE, again using the names on that 70,000 mile list. If you have run a minimum of 35 years over 2000 miles or 23 years over 3000 miles, or 10 years over 4000 miles, let me know and I will add your name to future UPDATES.

Bruce Mortenson (MN) had his first running streak (about 6 months long) in 1965 and has had 5 that made it to one year. His current one (since 2011) is his longest. But he has run more than 2000 miles (10 years between 2000-2499) every year since 1960, just after his 16th birthday. His lifetime miles were over 179,600 by the end of 2019.

Steve DeBoer (MN) has run at least 2000 (all years over 2500) miles each year since age 17 (1972) and at least 3000 miles since age 20. His minimum 1-mile per day streak began June 1971 (3rd longest in the world), though he ran shorter distances daily since July 1970. He has never run over 4000 miles in one year but had completed over 168,200 through 2019.

Norm Spitzig (lived in OH when he had an unregistered running streak in 1970s) has run at least 2000 miles, except for 1996, every year since age 22 (1972). He currently is not running daily but had completed over 101,500 through 2019.

Herb Fred (TX) did not start running until his late 30s but ran more documented miles than anyone in the world by the time he stopped running in October 2016 at age 87 (253,010 miles). He ran over 2000 miles yearly from age 39 to age 84 (tied for 4th on the list with 46 years), over 3000 miles age 41-81 (2nd on list), and has run over 4000 miles more than anyone else (39 years). He is 2nd place over 5000 (28 years), and 6000 (16 years) miles.

Carolyn Mather (SC) is in 2nd place for years over 4000 and 5000 miles; and 1st with 17 years over 6000, and 9 years over 7000. She has not registered her running streaks but her lifetime mileage through 2019 was more than 224,000.

Alex Galbraith (TX) has also run over 2000 miles for 44 years (including 38 years in a row), having first done that at age 17 in 1968. He has been running daily since December 1971, which gives him the 4th longest streak in the world. He has traversed over 122,800 miles up to the end of 2019.

Larry Baldasari (NJ) is the 3rd person tied for 4th, running over 2000 for 44 years. He first surpassed 2000 miles in 1973, age 23, and has done so every year since except 2011, 2018 & 2019. There have been several years between 2000 and 2500, but he ran only 1800 last year, at which time his lifetime mileage total was over 129,600.

Craig Davidson (AZ, but began in MN) is not in the top 10 for years of 2000 or more miles, but is tied for 5th with 38 years getting 3000 or more miles and is in 3rd place for 4000 or more miles, having done that 33 years. He has more streak miles than any other runner (over 210,300) and second most lifetime miles among those with certified streaks (over 212,700) since Carolyn Mather has not certified any of her times when she ran daily.

PS. I recently celebrated two anniversaries. On June 7th, I made it 49 years running at least one mile daily. It was a slow 10-mile run, as I have been dealing with hip bursitis, for which I eventually had a cortisone injection.

My personal 50th anniversary of daily runs (which were sometimes less than one mile the first ten months) occurred on July 20th, which coincided with my retirement event after working as a clinical dietitian at Mayo Clinic for 33 years. The Rochester Post Bulletin newspaper interviewed me the prior week, as they did when I reached 20, 30, and 40 years. It ran on the front page of the July 18th issue. I ran a typical 8.5 miles the morning of the 20th. In the afternoon, I ran another 2 miles with my son, Nate, as we were videotaped by KTTC TV, which ran a story about the streak on their evening news, which they have done every 5 years since 1990, when the streak was a mere 20 years.

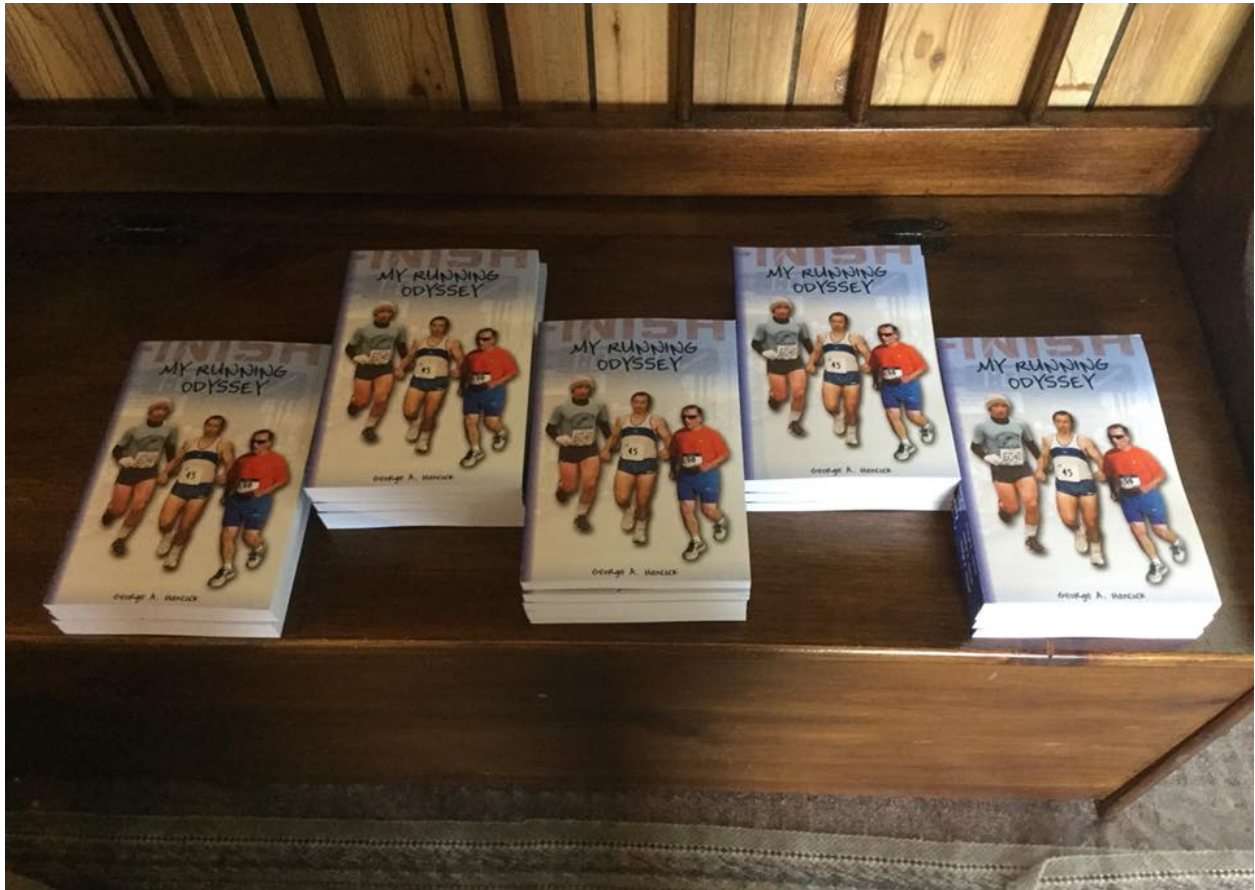

PPS. Speaking of a mere 20 years ago, that was when John Strumsky was working on incorporating the US Running Streak Association. In December, I received a letter from John asking if I would like to join for $20 per year, which I soon did, as well as serve on the board, which I still do. After the first 4 founding members, Robert "Raven" Kraft (12/28/00) and I (1/2/01) were the next. Four more joined later in January (Geza Feld, John Watts, John Roemer IV and John Wallace III), all of whom also joined the board. Many others (including current president Mark Washburne) joined in the spring, membership reaching 34 end of May, 2001 and 53 end of August.

Looking at that first list of 113 active streak runners published in our first newsletter (before the 1-mile minimum was set), compiled by George Hancock in December 2000, there were 3 women, 2 of whom registered that they had done the one mile minimum (Margaret Blackstock & Debbie Ciccati). They both have since retired their streaks. Of the 110 men, all but 15 eventually registered their mile-minimum daily runs. Twenty-seven of them are still on the active list, with Jim Pearson (50 yrs), Steve DeBoer (49 yrs), and Alex Galbraith (48 yrs) now owning the 2nd, 3rd and 4th longest running streaks in the world. They had the 3rd, 5th and 6th longest in the US at the time, but dropped one place when Jon Sutherland registered a couple years later. The others have since retired, but at least 15 of them have gone on to streak a 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th (Jay Kammerzell), even 7th (Terrell Worley) time!

The folks on that December 2000 list ranged in age from 15-year-old Joel Pearson to 71-year old Len Burton and 30 states were represented (31 if you count those on the 16-person retired list back then). Now, of 1915 active in the US (2329 world-wide) as of 8/3/20, all 50 states plus DC (and 46 other countries) are represented (though no women yet in WV and ND), ranging in age from 8 to 83.

PPPS. I was recently interviewed by Carrie Tollefson, 2004 Olympian from MN. Here is the link to her podcast -

DIANE SHUMWAY'S STREAK HITS 20 YEARS

I have been looking forward to this day since I hit 15 years. If there were no leap years, I would be celebrating this accomplishment 5 days ago [message sent on 26 May 2020]. But alas, I have been running the past 5 days for the leap years of 2004, 2008, 2012, 2016, and today 2020 for a daily total of 7,305.

I love to run. But there is one thing I love to do more - run with my dear husband. I love our morning runs together. Besides sharing the same experience, however good or crazy it might be, this is the best time to problem solve or make all our dreams come true. We have even been known to sing, accompanied by barking dogs. And have you ever run with vertigo? That is not fun. That is definitely when having him right next to me was very comforting.

So, while today is fun to celebrate an accomplishment, it is really just another day, because tomorrow I will lace up my running shoes and go out again and say, "day 7,306."

Four years ago today, I stepped on a journey called running streak. The idea came to me after I did a 24 hours relay race with my running club in Cabot Trail Nova Scotia Canada and since then I have never looked back. My run streak has been my saving grace in my tough life days and my celebratory function in my happy days. Thank you Global Running Community for being my support in every step. To many more runs and streaks.

My streak continues but I'm going real slow and most days are just my minimum of 1-1/4 miles. I've officially changed my pace category from glacial, downgraded to the newly created category (by me) of "Plate tectonic." Maybe the streak universe knows of a slower pace than that but it might be labeled "stationary!"

CHRIS MAY'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Still dealing with a bum ankle (2011) and last Halloween I suffered a badly pinched neck nerve (Cervical radiculopathy). Doctors, specialists, physical therapists, x-rays and an MRI followed. Verdict was bone on bone in 4 discs and arthritis. I later suffered a pinch nerve in the lower back as a result of trying to continue my usual core exercises.

Fortunately, both have improved and am mainly dealing with the neck issue. Also, good news is I was able to get off all pain meds except a single one at night. This is a genetic condition in my case and the therapist and doctor said it was just a matter of when as opposed to if.

For now, I limit my runs as the therapist said it's not going to help to go longer and could exacerbate the condition. I'm trying to do more on my hybrid stepper/elliptical Bowflex which is very low impact and then just manage it on a day to day basis.

Getting old is not for the faint of heart, right?! Other than all that, we're all doing well in these trying times and my job and my wife's job are both in the "essential services" category so we're working as usual.

Cheers and streak on!

I continue to run daily. My personal streak minimum is 2 miles. I feel great most days and I am grateful for being healthy enough to run each day. I want to thank my family for supporting my habit, as we all know, running sometimes gets in the way.

My running streak started with just a 37-day challenge. My partner stopped on the 37th day but I thought I might in my wildest dreams be able to push to 100... and now here I am 3 years later!

It's been an amazing experience with ups and downs along the way, but I'm so thankful to God for every day I'm able to run! What a journey this has been! I've run a race every month to celebrate and I can't wait to see where this year takes me! Thankful for the running community as a whole being so supportive of each other!

Today [28 May 2020] is 1096 days - 3 years plus 1 leap day. I feel like the Forrest Gump of streaking, not because I am fast or possess infinite energy (though my IQ may match his), but I just sorta stumbled into it.

I started running later than most (in my 30's). I hated it for years, but I kept going by fits and starts until I found out about streaking in Runner's World. I joined a Facebook group #RWRRunStreak and I didn't post for the first two years. The third year I decided to post regularly. 40 days went by and I said why not all summer, Memorial Day to Labor Day. That was 99 days, so I had to run one more for 100. Then I got a message from the group about a local group. Then it just continued. With no real plan or purpose, just one more day.

Now running is like breathing to me. It has truly been an awesome community of runners that propels and inspires me. I have been blessed with health and the ability to lace up every day and good friends.

I am Jeff Ealey, today is May 31 and my 510 RSD. I have been running for 44 years. I ran track and cross country in high school in Dalles, Oregon. I started running with my dad at the age of 14.

I now live in Sarasota, Florida. The past 2 months I was out of work due to the pandemic so I decided to set a new PR in May for most miles in a month. My previous PR was 244.3 and I finished May with 306 miles, something I didn't think I could do.

I had not heard about running streak until 5 years ago after reading about Ron Hill. I started mine then but sciatica gave me problems. I then began running longer distances and began a new streak in December of 2018. Three weeks into it, however, I sat down to put on my running shoes for a race and my back muscles tightened up on me and I missed 2 days. I started again and have not missed a day since. I found help with the sciatica problem with the Psoas release tool and no longer have that pain.

I love being a part of the Streak Runners International family.

ANTHONY HORYNA JOINS SRI

I am Anthony Horyna, 46 years old. A German-based, UK-born, runner of Austrian origin.

I started my streak running on January 3rd, 2016 and have been at it every day since. I've been very fortunate to be running all over the world - in Japan the same as on the North Cape (the northernmost point in Europe).

I've kept up the streak even while running ultramarathon races, such as the NUTS Pallas 134k Trail Ultra in Finland (2016), the Transvulcania 73k in Spain (2018), or the Persenk Ultra 160k through the Bulgarian Mountains (2019).

In late Summer of 2019, I went on a special challenge: Projekt 19/19. A non-stop through the length of Germany. 45 Marathons in 45 consecutive days. More than 1,900 Kilometers.

The reason behind this special project was to raise awareness on the topics of depression and suicide-prevention. To challenge, inspire and help people. To make an active change. Firmly believing that all of us can make a step towards bettering the world we live in. You'll find Projekt 19/19 on Instagram: @projekt1919

I am hoping, that I can keep this up for as long as possible. You'll find my daily progress on Strava – <https://www.strava.com/athletes/6218635> – and sometimes posts about my runs on Instagram: @anthony.horyna

TRAVIS ENGLISH'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I passed the five year mark this month. Grateful that I found streak running. It's been a boost to my life, for sure. No matter what, I do that mile. I'm not a distance runner, or a fast runner, my streak average has always been in the 3-mile per day range.

This year, I trained for a half marathon, which was a lot of miles for me. Unfortunately, the race got canceled because of COVID. And, my right knee is quite unhappy about the training. So, I've been on one-mile days for the last six weeks.

I joined the Facebook group this year. I don't post much of anything, but, I'm sure glad to be able to check in and see the streakers keep streaking.

I think the 2,000-day milestone isn't far off. If my knee isn't better by then, it might be time to retire. Or, time to train for a 10k?

ANDREW LE'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today (May 31st, 2020), my running streak is at Day 1,095. That is 3 years in a row running.

In 2017, I just wanted to run every day. In 2018, I wanted to be a bit more competitive. In 2019, I made it a goal to run a 5K everyday (there were a few days I had to break the run into shorter distances). In that time, I have run 11 half-marathons in 11 states as part of my long-term plan of running.

The year 2020 has not been ideal for anyone but it has given me an opportunity to really increase my mileage and allow me to further connect with the sport of running. I am excited to start Year 4 tomorrow June 1st. Be safe everyone and continue running!

ED GOFF'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 14,543 DAYS

This is to inform you that I had a very bad fall on Saturday, June 6th, after my run. I broke my collarbone and suffered a concussion which is making me too dizzy to run so I did not run yesterday, June 7th, 2020, after 39 years and 2 months.

It is very disappointing that I didn't make my goal of 40 years but in the abundance of caution, poor physical condition, and oppressive weather conditions I regretfully did not run yesterday, June 7th.

Please include me in your retired list although I may start a new streak as soon as I am well enough to do so. I think I have been on the running list most of my streak.

JANE DIAL'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

Today [15 June 2020] was an exciting day for me... and one that I never even dreamed about reaching. On June 16, 2010, I laced up my sneakers on the first day of summer vacation and vowed to run each day until school started again in September. Somehow the days passed by and summer faded into fall... but I never stopped running... outside... every single day... and today I reached a decade in my running streak!

I have run on some of the happiest days of my life and even some of the saddest and scariest days of my life... it is just a part of who I am now. I have run marathons, half marathons and plenty of "streak saving" solitary miles in between. I have run with friends and with family, but most of my runs I am by myself or with one of my four-legged furry running buddies.

Each evening at 7:13 PM my alarm goes off on my phone to make sure I didn't somehow "forget" to run. My family jokingly will ask, "Did you run yet today?" Fortunately, I have been able to respond with a "yes" each day for the past ten years... I've run at some crazy times of day, in some crazy weather, and even in some crazy places.... I know my streak is short compared to some amazing people in this group, but I'm still proud of how far I have come!

As a school counselor, I start each year by having my students tell me three things that they would like me to know about them. I always share that I have three sons, five dogs, and that "I run every day." This last thing always causes quite a stir when I ask the kids to guess how many days I have run in a row... and then I show them my Streak Tracker on my phone... several of my students have even run at school with me in the morning in our own version of a "school streak."

I would love to make this an annual tradition with them as well, once I can figure out the logistics for setting up this kind of program at my school. Who knows? Maybe I can pass along this rewarding running habit to some of these awesome students that I work with... now that would certainly be an awesome legacy to be able to leave behind!

DAN MILLER'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,400 DAYS

A much-delayed note to inform you I have retired my running streak. In fact, I retired it almost six months ago with my last run being on January 28, 2020. While it wasn't an easy decision, I had been thinking about it for nearly a year. The last thing I wanted to do was stop with regret, and I accomplished that. I went out on my own terms at a nice round 2,400 days number (hopefully my math was right!).

Ultimately, I made the decision as both my body and as importantly my mind we're ready to further expand into other areas of health, including regular yoga with my wife and biking with the hope to do my first tri in the not too distant future. I still have been and will continue to run often and have plans to increase my miles even beyond what I was doing during the streak peaks.

A special shout out to close friend and fellow stalker Barry Sacket for the inspiration to start it. The Streak is one of the things I'm most proud of in life, especially as a Minnesotan, who did it outside everyday no matter the weather. From -60 wind chills to over 100 degrees in the baking sun. No regrets. And not sure I won't start another one again down the road.

Thank you for all you do! Keep Streaking!

GENEVIEVE CLARK'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

I've hit 5 years in my running streak! I had to restart it while on vacation in Europe, as they lost my luggage but started it again in June 2015 as soon as I was reunited with my items. I've run now in 13 states and 11 countries, and can't wait to see what else running will bring me. :D

MASASHI HOTTA JOINS SRI FROM JAPAN

I started running streak on 21/May/2019 and I have kept running until today. By now, I have joined two marathon races, one half marathon race, which are official ones. My PR for marathon and half marathon are 3'01"05 and 1'29"15 respectively.

The reason I run every day is to engrave that I actually have lived my life fully, keeping standing on my own feet. In addition, I love to travel around the world and in fact I've been to many countries by now. I'm an ordinary company person but hate to stay still in one place. That may be another reason why I keep running every single day.

Although I've injured myself a couple of times in the past, I've taken care of it by all means without stopping running not making any excuses. I sometimes slow my pace down or shorten the running distance, but I have never stopped running.

Until now and from now on, I'll keep running at my own pace, enjoying it from the bottom of my heart. I'll make the most of now and enjoy my life not to regret it.

JOHN KRAJEWSKI'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,206 DAYS

Sad to report my run streak ended. The last day I ran was June 20, which by my count was day 1,206. The pain in my knee became unbearable to the point I could barely walk yesterday [21 June 2020], let alone run. I didn't want to risk any further damage to it until I saw the doctor on Wednesday. I haven't tallied up the final list of countries, airports, states and total miles yet because I'm still sort of in mourning. But I'm at peace with my decision.

I really enjoy this group and reading about your accomplishments. I look forward to my next streak!

JAMES UNGER'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Today [30 June 2020] I ran for the 1,827th consecutive day, covering 7,356 miles. I am glad I will now be graduating from the Neophytes. (Not there is anything wrong with a Neophyte.)

When I started the streak on July 1, 2015 it was just to add a little spark to my running which had been lagging. Just go for the month of July, I told myself. Then when I did that, I said, how about till the end of the year? During that time, I heard about RunEveryDay and just had to get to 1 year to register.

The 5th year seemed to take a long time. My pace is slower. It seems to take much more effort. And I'm not sure how much longer I'll go. But then I've always marveled at the number 2,632. Maybe I'll try for that. That was the number of baseball games Cal Ripken played in a row. Truly amazing.

DANIEL WESTFAHL'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

Twelve years ago, I set out to run a minimum of one mile for one week. The date I chose to begin was arbitrary, and the desire to begin was a challenge to motivate myself. My racing days, both in the marathon and triathlon, seemed to be over with the busyness of a new career pathway and growing family. I needed a new challenge, and running every day seemed sufficient to address my constant need to improve. One week led to one month, to one hundred days, to six months, to one year, to five years, ten years, and now twelve.

My streak has taken me to two continents, three countries, and eighteen states. It has spanned four new job locations, two international adoptions, and more than half of my married life. I have been fortunate to share parts of this streak with countless friends, three dogs, and a devoted partner. It continues with the support of three children and my beautiful, supportive wife, Deb.

While this streak pales in comparison to those spanning 15, 20, 25, 30 or more years, it brings me joy to be able to rise before the sun and get three to eight miles in, regardless of the weather. As a lifetime resident of Wisconsin, I am familiar with outside running in heat nearing 100 degrees and cold reaching 60 degrees below zero. Rain, snow, sleet, winds and unpredictability keep me going rather than deter me. It is a gift from God to have the health to run every day.

This group is supportive and motivating. I am humbled to be a part of it.

I completed my first year of running every day on 5 July 2020. This was my second attempt at a run streak - the first one ended after 164 days with an injury caused by dehydration, but I got back on it after two weeks of recovery. In the last year I've done 2,435 miles, building up from a base of about 25 miles per week to about 75 miles per week now. I've been on/off with running since around 2008 but picked it up more regularly again in 2018 before beginning a streak on 1 Jan 2019.

TAMMY ROETHER'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

I am very lucky and pleased to have reached 6 years! I travel a great deal for work, so squeezing in that 1 mile up and down hotel hallways happened more than I would have liked, but I got it in!

Due to COVID shut down- running has been my life line. My work team started a step challenge, and I am a touch competitive.... I am not fast at all, so quantity can be my jam!

I also am stubborn and had signed up for a great deal of races and I was determined to run those distances on the day of the races (not always the time, but the day). I got them all in I am proud to say!

Because I am not traveling right now, I am running. And getting to run in places a bit farther from my home as I have the flexibility with my adjusted hours.

I also have MS and it would have been very easy to just give into the boredom, which would have made my disease worse. I am so thankful to running, and to the running streak for making me move every day!

When there was nothing else to do, I hit the trails and watched 2 baby owls grow up.

Thank you Running Streak!! I hope that I am around to celebrate many more streak-aversaries!! :)

I have always enjoyed running my whole life. It wasn't until a few years ago that a friend got us to sign up for a 5K and we actually got out and started running. My wife and I both went through the Couch to 5k program because that is what we literally were doing! I have lost about 40 pounds since that day! That same friend asked me if I wanted to do a run streak from Memorial Day to July 4th in 2019. I agreed to it and I started on May 27th, 2019 and haven't stopped running. I have had some challenges along the way like bronchitis, high fever, pulled calf muscle and my favorite (not really) pulled hip flexor!

My wife and I met while working as musicians on Carnival Cruise Lines. We actually met while on the ship Destiny! ha! We have been in the Art Auction business, Mortgage Business and realized our love was really in Real Estate. We have lived all over the country and right now reside in Springboro, Ohio. Our hobby is our company... it is actually our family as well! haha! We decided to expand our business in 2017 with our first hire and here we are 3 years later and 30 employees.

PAUL THERON'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Hello to all streakers, from Johannesburg in South Africa. I have passed my 6th year of uninterrupted running every day. I am still loving every outing and consider myself to be very lucky to be injury free at 54 years old.

In the month of April the Covid-19 lockdown in this country prevented us from leaving home, so I ran laps around my garden. After the restrictions were lifted my mileage has risen significantly! I have really valued my morning runs with friends - wearing masks and in smaller groups.

My next goal is to get to 10 years, to be considered "experienced." Onwards!

I have thoroughly enjoyed my running every day. It reminds me of my childhood and brings me back when I was with my friends running around the streets of East Los Angeles and the dirt roads with my cousins in Coahuila, Mexico!

Thanks to the streaking...it has made me so much happier in my life. Just do it every day and you will enjoy it. Every day I see the world in a different light and it is pretty wicked. Just this morning I was feeling tired and decided to push it on those trails. Why? Just because it was nice out there. Find your happy place and it will fall into place!

Lena and Hasse Hedin

LENA HEDIN JOINS SRI FROM SWEDEN

My name is Lena Hedin and I live in Stockholm, Sweden. I started my runstreak in April 2019 inspired by my old colleague Lisa. She said that a runstreak probably would suit me – and how right she was!

My plan in the beginning was to start the running season a little bit different than I used to (often too fast and too long resulting in injuries during the season). So, by running approximately 3 km a day in a slow pace the first 100 days just passed in a big smile.

I live close to the sea and some small forests. I used to run in the morning before I took the train to work in the city. During these morning runs I experienced the sound of the birds and the scents of nature so strong – it was breath-taking!

After RSD100 I decided to continue as far as I could with the runstreak and prepared for running through the autumn and winter. By the end of March I celebrated my 1st year and will soon reach 500 days – still with a smile on my face!

As 2020 is an odd year (Covid-19) and the races I planned to participate in are cancelled or digital I have discovered trail-running instead. I ran parts of the Roslagsleden-trail in the Stockholm area together with my husband this spring and plan to continue the trail this autumn. Stay safe!

ADAM SAYNUK'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [19 July 2020], completes three years of streak running. I've run 3586 miles run in that time, 78% of my runs have been 5k or more, and 37% of all runs have been greater than 4 miles.

One of the experiences I've come to cherish in my streak is how much more I get to see neighborhoods and areas we visit when traveling. Naturally, the streak requires I get out and buzz around several miles of a city or countryside each day (sometimes aimlessly, often exploratory), and that sneaker-level perspective and experience adds memorable details I'd otherwise not have.

Thanks for the shout out on my 25th anniversary of my streak. My heroes have always been those who are committed to doing things they love every day. Cal Ripken comes to mind. He was a true inspiration with his games played in a row. Those who get up every day and commit themselves to a running streak are my heroes also.

To be perfectly honest, had it not been for my Landice treadmill my streak would have been over several years ago. 28,668.6 of my total 93,240.8 logged miles have been on a treadmill. Also my standard is at least a 2 mile run a day. I have really slowed down in the last 25 years, to be expected I guess. Thanks again for helping make the USRSA possible.

All my runs have been outdoors; I have run in all weather conditions from single digit temps to triple digit temps - rain, snow, lightning, 99% humidity - I've challenged them all and have come out the other end.

I started streaking with no goal. I didn't even know this was a thing. I did it for myself. NICOLE WATSON JOINS USRSA

I am a new streak runner, with 379 consecutive running days and a mileage of 589, as of 13Aug. I decided to start streak running after hiking mountains in Colorado to fly fish to build endurance and to maintain health and wellbeing.

Previous to my running streak, I was an occasional runner but would often push too hard, resulting in exertion headaches and shin splints. A friend asked, "why don't you just start slow and try to run at least a mile a day?"

At first, I decided to challenge myself to 30 days straight. As day 30 came closer I decided to make it to 90, then 180, then 365... and now I just keep bugging on.

I am thoroughly enjoying running now and can't think of a day without getting in my run. My favorite runs have been in the snow where all noise is buffered and it is peaceful and when running in the fall at our hunting/fishing cabin.

Since 1Aug19, I have only utilized a treadmill for three runs, all others have been outside regardless of the weather. I have cut my pre-streak 5K time from approximately 45 minutes to 31:02. Whilst I may not be the fastest, or run the furthest, I am happy.

I am a PhD candidate at Michigan State University in the Department of Fisheries and Wildlife. My research focuses on the reintroduction of Arctic Grayling to their native waters in Northern Michigan. My daily running allows me time to reflect on my research and reorganize my thoughts; or to simply think of nothing but the sound of my stride.

My frequent running companions are my husband, Tom, and our 11.5-year old Shetland Sheepdog/Border Collie, Trixie Tornado. We will soon be adding an additional dog to our family, a Ryman type English Setter to be named Clementine. She will be a welcome hunting companion, family pet, and running mate.

When not running or doing research, I am often fly fishing, upland bird hunting, or knitting. If you are interested in learning more about my fisheries research, check out The Fishing Podcast season 2 episode 2 or The Orvis Fly Fishing Podcast (episode to be released shortly).

JOHN WINOWIECKI'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

What a year it's been. After a rough second half of last year I decided to pull back on some goals for the year. Just as 2020 started unfolding I began making good strides again. And then the world seemed to catch on fire. Running through this pandemic has been quite an experience. The way the streets emptied out made for some eerie moments.

Thankfully I've been able to maintain my streak and just noticed I'm approaching the ten thousand mile mark. Should hit it sometime late next year. That, of course, is the number since I've started tracking, which was just before beginning this streak. Lord knows how many miles I ran all those 30+ years prior. Nevertheless, I'm excited about that distance mark and also about approaching the double digits. Ten thousand miles and ten years here I come!

Aside from that and the upheaval we've all been dealing with, I recently began blogging. The focal point is creativity (www.creativefullness.com), and on occasion I toss in some perspective I gain while out for my run. Look for the "On The Run" posts. The stress relief and opportunity to think while running continue to be one of the treasures this streak has ushered into my life. Keep runnin'!

EARL WACKER'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Earl Wacker had attempted to start his streak on March 15, 2015. Unfortunately, a trip to Europe on a river boat that had no treadmill and wouldn't allow running on deck, along with a day when the boat didn't dock, ended his first attempt on August 10, 2015. The good news out of this is that he inspired his daughter, Melissa Wacker, to start her own streak on June 20, 2015. Earl was finally able to begin again on August 14, 2015, by running in the Amsterdam shipyard before getting on a plane to fly back home.

Earl travels for work and for pleasure, so his streak has included running in 26 states, 24 countries, and on 5 continents (still missing Africa and Antarctica). His runs are almost exclusively early in the morning and 99% outdoors.

Earl's daughter, Melissa, achieved her 5-year streak anniversary earlier this year and Earl is most proud that both he and his daughter are no longer "novices."

MERLINA NEWMAN ENDS STREAK AFTER 1,000 Days

Well I started my run streak Thanksgiving Day 2017! What was supposed to be 45 days turned into 1000 this past Tuesday Aug 18, 2020!!!

I have run in snow, cold, rain, heat, on ice, in my living room, right before midnight, you name it! I have run several marathons and half marathons so for me the streak honestly made me a better runner, but unfortunately more prone to injury.

I had my best 2 races during this streak in September 2018. I finally got that sub 2 at the Indy Women's Half and for MCM that same year I shaved an hour off my time and finished with a 4:45!!!!

I have met some awesome people on the page and some I've met in person and it has been an amazing journey!!!

I ended my streak after my 1000th run Tuesday [18 August 2020]. I'm still moving just walking still at least a mile until I get my knee injury figured out. I believe that as soon as I'm running on it pain free, the streak will start again. Until then I will continue to challenge myself and hope to motivate along the way! You can do anything you put your mind to!!!

ADAM FRITZ'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

On Monday 8/24, for the completion of my 10-year streak, I ran a 10k. I attached a picture that we took after it was done. My family went out with me and ran/biked/rode a Ranger during my 10k, so that was nice to have them out there while I was running.

Where I grew up and where I live now (Colman, SD, 500-ish people) we don't have a track, so we just run the city streets, and we have a mile route that starts and ends around the high school. I just ran that back and forth 6.2 times until I got to the end.

My sister, who also has a greater than 1000-day streak under her belt, ended the day her daughter Sadie was born. Now we have Cooper. My sister, who is pregnant again and streaking again, ran about 5k. My brother-in-law ran about a mile and a half. My other sister rode a bike (she's wearing one of the shirts I give to whoever I know that starts the streak, and completes a year, the official ClubMAD RUN MAD shirt). My girlfriend ran probably close to 5 miles off and on throughout the time I was going. My niece and nephew rode Ranger with Grandpa and Grandma back and forth.

At the end of the route, my aunt lives right there, so she had a sprinkler out for all of us to run through when we got done. It was hot and muggy and sweaty, so that was a nice little refreshment to finish off with.

It was cool to get through 3,653 days, but it was pretty cool to have my family there to go through the anniversary run with me. They have been more than supportive of me having to get my run in before we could do certain things, so it was cool for them to take the time out of their night to come and support me again. Definitely a memory I won't forget.

ANGIE MALCORE'S STREAK HITS 12 YEARS

I started my streak planning to simply run 10 days in a row because I was having trouble with consistency. After 10 days, I decided to go for 30. After 30, I went for 100. Then I thought "I guess I'll go for a year."

I was planning to quit after each of these goals, but for some reason, I just kept going.

I just had my 12-year anniversary.

I think about Lois almost every day. What an inspiration!

TOM MITCHELL BECOMES LIFETIME MEMBER OF USRSA

I joined as motivation for losing weight; goal of losing 10 pounds. I have run recreationally since 1999. I enter races but have never finished in the top half. That's okay I'm happy with the effort. I won an age group swimming race once; but I was the only participant. I have completed 10 marathon footraces. In 1980 my first marathon was a cross country ski race in Bemidji Minnesota.

If you can fill the unforgiving minute
 With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
 Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
 And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

- Rudyard Kipling (1865-1936) from his poem If.

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

Happy 20th Anniversary to us! On 7 August 2000, Dawn and John Strumsky founded and incorporated the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA) in the State of Maryland. John Strumsky was also the first President of USRSA (2000-2011) and, along with his wife Dawn, were the first editors of this newsletter. We are pleased to celebrate this double decade milestone by featuring Dawn and John Strumsky on our cover, along with a special article by John on how he began running and how he also started our running streak association back in 2000. Thank you Dawn and John for having the foresight to start USRSA and keeping it going through the first decade of our association's existence.

Another person our running streak association owes a debt of gratitude is George Hancock. In 1993, Mr. Hancock became interested in tracking other streak runners after reading George Messenger's "Letter to the Editor" in the November 1993 issue of Running Times Magazine. "Messenger had a lengthy running streak going," according to George Hancock's account, "and he wondered if anyone was tracking these daily running efforts." George Hancock, who was and still is writing for the monthly running newspaper Runner's Gazette, decided to make it his mission to start compiling a list of streak runners in the country. "I drafted a letter and mailed copies to over 140 running clubs, groups, publications and associations across the United States," said Mr. Hancock. "I tried to blanket every region of our nation." Out of those inquiries, George Hancock published the very first list to identify streak runners in the United States that was published in the December 1994 issue of Runner's Gazette. It was this streak runners list, compiled and expanded, by George Hancock that would be used to form USRSA. On this 20th Anniversary, we are grateful to publish an article by George Hancock on how our association was formed.

A third person that made a significant contribution to keeping track of streak runners in those early days was Canadian David Blaikie, who published some of George Hancock's streak lists on his Ultramarathon World website even before there was a USRSA. "David Blaikie contacted me by phone about my running streak list during the early winter months of 1999," noted George Hancock in an email to TSR. "We chatted that Saturday morning about my project. David was familiar with my Runner's Gazette running streak list and article. He offered his Ultramarathon World website as a spot to place my running streak information. So, I updated my information and wrote a new article about running streaks with a new list featuring 66 streak runners." TSR recently contacted David Blaikie for his perspective on streak running before USRSA was founded. Mr. Blaikie's was kind enough to send us an article that appears in this newsletter, along with the original April 1999 story on streak running and streak list that appeared on the Ultramarathon World website.

As I write this Finish Line, SRI just surpassed 3,500 active and retired streaks in 47 countries listed on our website. It is hard to imagine that a group with such support today was originally lumped in with the "crazy ultra-runners" who ran races beyond the 26.2-miles marathon distance. In comparison to today's 3,500 strong, the list that was originally posted on the Ultramarathon World website in 1999 had just 66 active running streaks recorded in the United States. In reviewing the list, I found just 19 out of the original 66 listed are still active today. The interesting fact to me is that my streak, that started on 31 December 1989, was listed #62 on the 1999 USA list and today that same streak is now tied for #62 on the 2020 USA list.

Given the same #62 USA ranking, it doesn't look like I have made much progress in the last 21 years on my streak but I know I am a better, healthier, even faster athlete having found the joy in running every day now over 30 years ago. The #62 listing might appear confusing to some because in this newsletter we use the World list where my streak ranks tied for #64. By coincidence, my World streak ranking of tied for #64 also corresponds with my age. I am now in a position to answer the question the Beatles asked back in 1967 when they were young men, "Will you still need me, will you still feed me, When I'm sixty-four?" If you are a streak runner, the answer is YES!

As always, I want to wish everyone good luck as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

Addendum: After writing The Finish Line column, I received notice from Ben Dillow that he had a bad fall and had to end his running streak after 14,428 days (39.01 years). A couple days before his fall, Professor Dillow sent an article to TSR after his streak hit 39 years (see page 30). With his streak being moved to our retired list, it changes some facts in my column. It is not the way I wanted to advance but my streak is now ranked #61 in the USA and #63 in the World. We all wish Professor Dillow a fast, and speedy recovery.

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
