“Running can help you loose weight. Running can build muscle tone. Running can improve your complexion. Running can strengthen your heart and make it work more efficiently. Running can increase your aerobic capacity and lower your blood pressure. Running can relax you, help you quit smoking, and reduce the risk of heart disease. Running can reduce depression and lift your spirits. Running can help you think and make you more creative. Running can make you more athletic and energetic and full of vitality. Running can improve your self-image and make you more self-confident. In short, running can change your entire outlook on life and make a new person of you.”

A Look Back Over 50 Years of Streak Running and Beyond By: Alex Galbraith

Notwithstanding that my running streak officially began on December 22, 1971, the events that led up to that day essentially began when I started competitive running as an 8th grader in the spring of 1965. With encouragement from my father, I tried out for both the school baseball team and school track team that spring. Although baseball was my first love, it soon became evident to the baseball coach (who was also the track coach) that I was much better suited for track than baseball, not because I was so great at track! Thus, sometime in March of 1965, I, along with my 6th grade brother and several others, began daily workouts of running lap after lap around the football field.

Eventually, we had time trials at a nearby track. Based on the results of those trials the coach decided I should run the 880 in competition (this was, of course, long before distances run in schools were in meters). In my first meet I was lucky to finish the race because I ran too fast on the first lap. I must have learned my lesson because I did well at the remaining two meets of the season.

In high school I played football and ran track. I was only slightly better in track than in football and that was not very good! However, from the time I was a freshman to the time I was a junior, I slowly progressed from being a runner at the back of the pack to being a runner at the front of the pack in the interval training quarter mile repeats we did in our workouts. Just as I was starting to enjoy my status as a front runner, my parents transferred me to another high school where I was the fourth best distance runner out of the four junior and senior runners on the track team. Paradoxically, returning to the status as a runner at the back of the pack turned out to be a good thing because by staying up with them on their long tempo runs, I became a faster runner. In addition, these group runs fostered life-long friendships for me with them.

Upon graduation from high school and just before my first year in college, I volunteered to coach cross country at my high school. The athletic director agreed, and so in the fall of 1969 at the young age of 18 I had the privilege of coaching some wonderful young men (including my younger brother!) to successful team results at the cross country meets in which they competed.

However, I longed to get back into competition, and so in the spring of 1970 I applied to be a walk-on at the University of Houston track team. To my happy surprise, the track coach consented. Thus, began my college track career that lasted roughly a year and a half. The distance team was pretty talented. Many of them were from other countries (Australia, Canada and Morocco). One of the Americans besides me was Leonard Hilton, a 1972 Olympian (who ran on the same Olympic 5000-meter team with Steve Prefontaine). Leonard was particularly generous in allowing me to run with him on a few long runs and offering me training advice.

By my junior year, however, although I had improved as a runner, I was still a very modest member of the team. Further, I came to realize that I couldn't justify the increased time of doing workouts (sometimes three times a day during the cross-country season!) to the reduction of time available for studies and for the rest of college life. I decided that it was time to make a change, and so I thanked my coach and teammates for a great experience of working out and competing with them, and then departed from the cross-country team in the fall of 1971.

In December of 1971 I reflected on how I could maintain a certain level of fitness and decided that I would commit to running what seemed to me to be a manageable minimum of three miles a day, every day. Thus, on December 22, 1971 the streak was born.

Notwithstanding injuries and other obstacles during the streak, one reason I continue to run is that I have learned running is not an end in and of itself, but a means to an end – helping me to be a better person and thereby enabling me do the more important things in life, including helping others.

Nevertheless, there have been a few streak threatening obstacles along the way for me, just as I imagine there have been for most of my fellow streak runners.

The first one for me was the day after the Inaugural Houston Marathon in December 1972 – my first marathon. I had done a few long runs before the race, but in retrospect I know that there was much more that I could have done in preparation for it, not the least of which would have been to think more strategically about race day management. At 20 miles into the race, I was depleted of muscle glycogen and decided to stop briefly before I received encouragement from a seasoned runner, Mary Ann McBrayer, to find a way to continue on in the race. It was pretty slow going from there on, but I did manage to finish. I made matters worse when I followed some questionable advice and soaked in a hot tub the evening after the race. Consequently, the lactic acid in my legs did not subside the next day. I could hardly walk, much less run, but somehow, I got in my 3 mile minimum nonstop run that day. Fortunately, each succeeding day after that was a little easier.

Sometime in 1980 or 1981 I came across a Runner's World article which suggested that for a run to have real benefit one should run at least a half hour for the workout. As a result of reading this, I decided to increase my minimum distance to 4 miles since a 7 ½ minute mile pace would constitute a comfortable pace for the minimum half hour run. This then became my minimum distance for the next 25 to 27 years or so.

A second serious obstacle to my streak occurred around the year 2007. After having suffered through Achilles Tendonitis and Plantar Fasciitis issues, I fractured a bone in my left foot. So, for the first time during the streak, I reduced my daily run below 3 miles down to about 1 ½ miles for a few days before gradually increasing my daily mileage back up when the pain subsided. Although my foot eventually healed and I recovered from the Plantar Fasciitis and Achilles Tendonitis issues, I began having a gait issue that I still struggle with today that has caused my pace to slow considerably. In retrospect, I expect that had I stopped running completely at that time, the gait issue would not be as pronounced as it is now.

The next serious threat to my streak was that I underwent Thyroid surgery five or six years ago. I ran early in the morning on the day of the surgery. The day after the surgery my plan was to attempt a very slow gentle pace on a treadmill. After saying a prayer and promising my wife I would stop if I experienced hemorrhaging or pain, I proceeded to run very slowly on the treadmill without any problems that day or for the next several days. Thankfully, I had a complete recovery from the surgery.

There have been many highlights for me over the past 50 years. One important highlight has been participating as an active member of Terlingua Track Club since 1972, competing in hundreds of races during that time and enjoying the comradery that goes with club competitions, especially the LP Run hosted by our club.

Another highlight has been travelling overseas to Europe. My first trip was in the summer of 1977 to Exeter, England where I was enrolled in a summer study of law program at Exeter University hosted by the College of William and Mary. It was a great experience for my wife and me since we were able to travel to different parts of England, France and Italy before and after my studies and on weekends during the program and thereby run in so many interesting places. Later trips with our children have been to England, Scotland, Portugal and Italy where on some occasions my children ran with me.

A second overseas highlight in 1993 was a three-week family trip to Chelyabinsk, Russia, east of the Ural Mountains in Asia where I and one of my sons competed in a half marathon at the All Russian Memorial Games. During that trip we also travelled to Moscow and to St. Petersburg where we were introduced to a number of people in the running community and stayed with some of them at their homes.

It has also been a highlight over these years to see each of my children run and participate in competitions. Martha, my wife of 45 plus years, and I have been blessed to continue to have a close relationship with our children, our daughter-in-law and our grandchildren who all live near us.

Fast forward to 2021, I was honored to receive an invitation to Steve DeBoer's 50th Anniversary Streak Celebration in June, but regretfully I had to decline due in part to family immunocompromised concerns. Given Steve's gracious invitation to me, however, I was happy to welcome him to join me at my very low key 50th Anniversary Celebration in December.

Since the completion of 50 years of streak running would be on December 21st, 2021, Steve and I agreed to run together on that day to mark the occasion. When that day arrived, I went out on a morning run of a few miles and then later that afternoon ran with Steve for about 1 ¾ miles on the Picnic Loop trails of Memorial Park in Houston. The weather was great by my standards – 60 degrees and dry humidity, but warm by frozen tundra warrior Steve's standards! That evening, Steve and his wife Gail joined Martha and two of my children and me for a celebration dinner at our home. We had fun comparing notes of running experiences over the past 50 years and learning a lot about each other's families. The next morning – Anniversary Day – I ran a little over 4 miles over the same trails Steve and I had run on the previous day, and afterwards had a good visit with Steve and Gail, wishing them well on their long drive back to Rochester.

Over the next several days I received a number of thoughtful congratulations from teammates, friends and many family members, including a special one from a close cousin in Dallas who had joined with me previously in celebrating my 40th Anniversary Run. I am very grateful to them and to all of the other friends, coaches and family members who have been so supportive. Most of all, I am grateful to Martha for putting up with all of the inconveniences I've caused her over the years with my running and for her cheerleading at many marathons and for her care after the finish! Finally, I am grateful to our Lord Jesus Christ whose answers to my many prayers have lifted me up and carried me so many times in difficult moments over the years.

My family and I extend our best wishes to all of my fellow streak runners for a year of enjoyable running and good health. I am in solidarity with you!

John Liepa: "Coming home after completing 45th year of running streak."

JOHN LIEPA'S STREAK HITS 45 YEARS
"Running Partners/Mentors"
By: John Liepa

Having written four articles for the Streak Registry since reaching my 35-year mark (April 2012; Spring 2017; Spring 2018; Spring 2021), and at the risk of boring my 'fellow streakers' with redundancy, I thought I'd contradict myself as I've repeatedly stated, that streak running is a solitary thing, with 99% of those miles shared only by 'Mother Nature.' Like all of you, I've been inspired and motivated every day by a small group of mentors and partners, some of whom I've never met personally, and others whom I've met, run with, and are near and dear to me. So let's meet some of those 45+year heroes and heroines.

Jack Foster - When I first started running, I heard of this native Brit who started serious running at the age of 32; ran in two Olympic Marathons for New Zealand in 1972 (Munich) and 1976 (Montreal;) set a Master's world record time of 2:11:18 at the age of 41; and made me realize age has little to do with possibilities.

Priscilla Welch - A 'pack a day' smoker until at age 35, she met her husband Dave in the British Army, and under his tutelage turned her life around. When I was Race Director of the Midnight Madness Road Races in Ames, Iowa (1979-1985), Priscilla and Dave honored our race by their coming and her winning; setting a course record; becoming a friend and mentor; and going on to set an age group (W40) world record in 2:26:51 at the London Marathon in 1987.

Jim Streeby - An Ottumwa, Iowa native, close friend and competitor for nearly 50 years, Jim still holds numerous Iowa High School and long-distance records. His 2:31:09 marathon at Grandma's in 1981 is still an Iowa all-time Master's best, and in the late 1970s, he earned my "Iron Man" award by running a 2:30's Boston Marathon on Monday, then winning the Master's 800 Invitational at the Drake Relays on Friday; and winning his age-group Drake Relays Marathon on Sunday. Additionally, he coached my Academic All-American daughter Hillary when she ran for Iowa State.

Joan Benoit Samuelson - I was honored to chase Joan in my second Boston Marathon - about 10 minutes behind. Like many of you, I was in awe when this diminutive 'bundle of courage' recovering from knee surgery, wearing that painter's hat in the extreme heat of Los Angeles won the first Olympic Women's Marathon in 2:24:52. I shared a big hot tub with her, Bill Rodgers, Herb Lindsey, and members of our Iowa Prairie Track Club after the Bobby Crim 10-miler in Flint, Michigan; and I was again honored to meet and visit with her a couple of times at the Bix7 in Davenport, Iowa.

Bill Rodgers - A runner's life is never the same after completing/competing in a Boston Marathon. It was an honor to race in the same race with Bill, America's dominant marathoner in the 1970s and 1980s; to meet him on numerous occasions in Iowa; to respect and share his strong political views and convictions; and to serve as a role model for me for what's really important in life.

Finally, nothing I've accomplished with my life or running would have been possible without the total and unconditional support of my wife of 50+ years (anniversary September 17, 2021) - Dianne. When we met - her idea of sports was "playing with her dolls, outside." She and my adult children, Torey and Hillary, are marathoners, and have been part of, and supported my 'life of running.'

One of the proudest moments in my running life was when we took an Iowa Prairie Track Club team to the inaugural Manitoba Marathon in Winnipeg (Canada) in 1980 with Iowan Frank Richardson winning and the team of John and Dianne Liepa winning the Husband/Wife combined time category. As I started my 46th year on January 2, the wind chill was -22°, I had the park to myself, and I thought to myself - "Life is good."

BILL ROBERTSON'S STREAK HITS 45 YEARS

By: Bill Robertson

A fairly uneventful year! Being a morning person and doing the run first thing really simplifies things. Most of my runs are on a local crushed stone rail trail unless snow covered (like now!). Also get to run on many weekends with a great group that helps to keep you honest.

Slowing down a little more than I'd like – don't mind of course the age specific things, but a little slower than my age-graded paces would predict – 25 for 5k, rather than 23 for example. But honestly that's pretty minor, just really grateful to be injury free (knock on wood) and able to get out there, do it and enjoy it! My minimum is 3 miles non-treadmill.

Avoided covid until the beginning of the year until omicron, but being vaccinated and boosted it was pretty mild, a slight cold and low fever for a few days.

Almost lost the streak 2 ½ years ago after a tick bite. I'd been treated for Lyme disease but ended up in the hospital on Friday of Labor Day weekend after being told I needed a blood transfusion due to an extremely low red cell count. Naturally they wanted to find out the source of the blood loss before just putting more in. They talked about me maybe getting out on Tuesday – I thought about leaving for a bit to run and just coming back in, but it doesn't work that way - you'd need to be readmitted to the emergency room and start all over. The fact that the runs were going pretty poorly was an additional factor in my "what will be will be" attitude.

Turns out the tick also gave me babesiosis, a disease that leaves parasites that chew up the red blood cells. Somehow the CDC was involved, determined the issue that Friday night through microscope inspection and I got on the right drugs the next morning. Once the docs could see some slight improvement, with a little prodding I was able to leave late Saturday afternoon to get in my run!

Traversing the Tundra with the 5th Guy to Reach 50 By: Steve DeBoer

What, take a road trip to TX in December? Why would anyone want to leave MN just as the snow, ice, and brisk weather start separating the idiots running outdoors from the somewhat more rational winter indoor workout folk? Well, the rumor was that some guy in Houston had been running every day for almost 50 years. This is a rather unique phenomenon that has only been experienced 4 other times by Ron Hill (2014), Jon Sutherland (2019), Jim Pearson (2020), and this writer (Jun 2021). I will say it was not difficult to convince my wife to head south. Fortunately, we had a 10-inch snowfall 2 days before departure, so I was able to get in an upper body workout with the white stuff. As often happens when we leave the state in winter, there was little precipitation while we were gone.

First stop was to see brother Dave and family near St. Louis, MO. Thus began 12 consecutive days of shirtless running, the last being the morning after we arrived home, since I must have brought some hot air back with me. From St. Louis we headed south to Colleyville, TX, spending a couple of days with Roger Nelson and his wife, Jane, both streak runners, though Jane never registered her daily running time. In the past, they lived in Minneapolis, MN. Roger is the only run streaker I know whose birthday is the same day my running streak began (June 7th). After a couple of runs with them and visits to friends in Kerrville and Austin, it was on to Houston to traverse some tundra with Alex Galbraith.

Alex had decided not to have a big 50th celebration but was more than willing to do a run with me (COVID concerns, among other things). We had many email and phone contacts over the years, as well as meeting in person in 2018, when Gail and I were in Houston. Because of a knee injury and gait issues, he has had to slow down, though he is still hoping to find someone with expertise in his biomechanical issues that might improve things. Seems like I have managed to slow down without those issues, just by aging!

Gail & I drove to his home the afternoon of December 21st. I chose the last day of his 50th year of daily runs instead of his 50th anniversary on the 22nd so we could get home in time for me to sing with my church choir Christmas Eve. Coincidentally the 21st was the 57th anniversary of the start of Ron Hill's 52-year running streak. Gail went to a park with his wife and daughter, to take a stroll and talk, while Alex and I drove to Memorial Park and ran about 1.8 miles together on the Picnic Loop trail, reminiscing about various races we had run over the years, as well as how we had met our wives. It was a little cool for Houston (low 60s and moderately low humidity), but a little warm for me, even without a shirt.

We are both frequent morning runners. I found out later Alex had gone over three miles that morning while I had covered 2.5 miles of Texas tundra. Thus, in the battle of the 50-year streakers, Alex won the distance competition 4.75 miles to 4.3 miles for me. My morning jaunt was done at 40F, being shirtless, but wearing a stocking cap and socks on my hands, a common practice for me. Alex can attest I did NOT wear the head and hand coverings in our afternoon workout.

We then joined the rest of his family for dinner and an evening of conversation at their home, including their son, who had been a runner when younger and had a few running streaks, though they were never registered. Alex told a story about running store entrepreneur Charlie Rodgers and his not quite as famous brother, Bill, that occurred when Alex ran the Boston Marathon for the first time in 1994. Since I don't recall all the details, I'll let Alex tell the story.

"In the late winter/early spring of 1994 my teenage son and I were guests at the home of Charlie and Marie Rodgers in Ipswich, MA, as I was preparing, along with a few other Russian houseguests, to run in the Boston Marathon that year. I had developed a friendship with Charlie over the previous year or two in connection with our mutual efforts to assist certain Russian runners in their efforts to participate in American competitions, most notably, the Boston Marathon.

Although I had qualified to run in the Boston Marathon in previous years, this was my first time I was entered in it. I made the decision to enter the Boston Marathon due in large part to Charlie's suggestion that it would be a great experience and further, that he would be willing to accommodate me as a guest at his home before and after the Race.

When my son, who was also a competitive runner and had recently completed his first marathon, learned that I was going to run in the Boston Marathon, he was eager to attend the Race. Charlie graciously offered to let my son also stay at his house. Since my son attended school in Connecticut, I first flew up there to pick him up at school, and then drove to Charlie's house in Ipswich.

I met Charlie's brother, Bill Rodgers, for the first time while we were there. Bill dropped by to welcome me and the Russian runners, some of whom he had known for many years. On one occasion while Bill was at Charlie's house, my son and I were privileged to go on a run with Bill and Charlie.

Sometime after our run together, Bill and Charlie devised a plan to make my son's attendance at the Boston Marathon a memorable experience. They spoke with their parents, Charles and Kathryn Rodgers, about driving up from their home in Connecticut to meet my son and host him during the Marathon.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers arranged for my son to have lunch at the John Hancock Tower with a number of their friends, who they kindly introduced to him. Afterwards, they arranged for my son to sit with them in the VIP seating at the finish line, so that he could experience the thrill of seeing so many great runners race to the finish line and ultimately see me finish.

Since my son was due back at school the next day, he and I had a good visit following the race. Then Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers drove him back to Hartford where he caught a bus to return to school.

He and I expressed our great appreciation to Bill and Charlie and to their parents for their generous hospitality given to my son for which we both will remain eternally grateful.”

Gail & I got an early start the next morning and arrived back in Rochester the evening of December 23rd with little to no snow the entire drive, so I was able to sing at the Christmas Eve service. All of the 10-inch snowfall from December 10th had melted. Strong southerly winds on Gail's birthday (December 16th) had pushed the temperature up to 62F, and there were tornadoes in the area. The wind actually broke off the top half of one of our pine trees, but fortunately it fell a few feet away from our backyard deck.

On a somewhat related topic, it turns out that both Alex and I are the second person in our respective states to have a registered streak on the Association web site. Bruce Mortenson was first in MN and Herb Fred was first in TX. Alex and I both got to visit with Dr. Fred when I was in Houston in 2018, as the photo attests. Herb still holds the record for most registered running streaks (10), and being the oldest streaker ever, when he ended his 10th string of daily runs at age 86 years and 10 months.

Some Daily Tundra Traversers Keep Going After 60

Now that daily running has become increasingly popular, I thought it would be newsworthy to see what the numbers look like for those of us entering the final one-third of our lives (age 60 and above). The first certified USA Active Running Streak list was compiled in the Spring of 2002. It included 86 individuals (4 women) who had run at least 1 mile daily for 365 days or longer. It included 13 person ages 60-69 (15%), and 3 (Walt Byerly, Dwight Moberg and Len Burton) 70 years or older (3.5%). Those 70-year olds are no longer running, with Dwight and Len now deceased. Among the 60-year-olds, Ward Crutcher continues his daily running at age 82. The first 60-year-old to run daily at least one year, was Wendell DeBoer of MN in 1984, but he did not have an active streak in 2002.

Fast-forwarding to the Spring 2012 Streak Registry, the active list had increased to 313 (up 364%), and included 83 streakers ages 60-69 (1 woman) and 12 others ages 70-79 (1 woman), as well as one over 80, Herb Fred. There had been two other men who were over 80 when they retired streaks (Wendell DeBoer, Walt Byerly). There had also been three other retired women who concluded their daily running in their 60s (Margaret Blackstock, Alicia Brophey, Julie Maxwell). Percentage-wise, 26.5% active were 60 to 69, and 3.8% were in the 70-79 category.

As of January 11, 2022, there were 3787 active streaks (up 1210%), 2545 in the US (up 813%). Five were 80 or older (2 US men - Ward Crutcher and Thomas McDow, 2 US women - Lois Bastien and Barb Latta, and one Swedish gentleman, Sten Persson), Lois the oldest at age

85. There were 9 women among the 103 70-79-year-olds that are active, 13 of those 103 from outside of the US. There were 84 women among the 320 active 60-69-year-olds, 52 of those 320 from outside the US.

Despite the large increase of 60 plussers streaking (from 96 in early 2012 to 428 this January, up 346%), the percentage of the total run streakers in that category dropped from 30.3% to 11.3%. This percentage was a little higher if only counting US runners (14.2%). And if you only count those with active streaks of five years or more, 25% of the active in the US are at least 60. There was an increase for the women, since there were only 2 over 60 in 2012 (0.6% of total active). Now with 95 women in that age group, the percentage is 2.5% of all actively running daily.

As we would expect, the states with the most active run streakers have the most above 60 - CA (29), MN (27), TX (26), PA (21), FL and MI (17), and NY, VA and IL (16) are the top nine geriatric states. Over the years, there have now been nine in the 80 and above category with Herb Fred (86 yrs 10 mo), Jim Woolam (86 yrs 9 mo), and Wendell DeBoer (85 yrs 7 mo) being the oldest when they retired their streaks.

The 70,000 Mile Club

By: Steve DeBoer

A large number of streak runners (at least 157 that I have been able to confirm) have accumulated over 70,000 miles running in their lifetime. Here is an update of their total and streak mileage. Herb Fred ran more miles than any other person with verified records that I am aware of.

Darryl Beardall had run an estimated 280,000 miles by the end of 2012 but has not been able to locate all his running logs to verify his total. He was only able to confirm his 2007-2018 mileage. He did not run on Sundays, so is not a streak runner. He ran the Olympic Marathon Trials in 1960, 1964, 1968 and 1972.

Dallas Robertson, Bill Rodgers, and Suzanne Ray are also not streak runners, but I have included them because of their high mileage totals. Dallas had logs for all but the first five years he ran. Rodgers won both the Boston Marathon and New York Marathon four times. He twice set the American Record in the marathon, the first time while winning the 1975 Boston Marathon (2:09:55) and the second time while winning the 1979 Boston Marathon (2:09:27). Dave McGillivray, the director of the Boston Marathon is listed because of his total mileage but is also in the process of running every day for a year which he hopes to reach in March.

Don Ritchie, British ultrarunner, who was not a streak runner, logged 208,100 miles from 1962 to 2011. His still standing track and absolute 100K world record (6:10:20, set over 40 years ago) was achieved in a track 100K race. Ritchie's halfway split in that race was under three hours, the first time anyone had run that fast for 50K as a split in a longer race. It was the longest standing world record in all of Track & Field until broken by Nao Kazami (6:09:14) on 6/24/18. Don also held WRs for 100M on the track (11:30:51) and 100M on the road (11:51:12).

With Darryl, Dallas, Bill, Suzanne, Dave, and Don, there are 163 runners now mentioned, though only 157 are part of the streaker "Club."

* have not had their running streaks certified by the US Running Streak Association; Chester T was certified but then dropped from the list; his mileage is from when he was on the certified list.

** not streak runners; Darryl developed L-4 pinched nerve April 2018 – since then has not been able to run but exercises with a walker).

+ money found in 2021 and since his streak began – has found money every day he has run since 1983 except for the week in April 2020, when he was in the hospital!

The person with the most miles in 2021 was Carolyn Mather (7428). Those with the most miles who have a current running streak in 2021 were Woody Woodburn (7024) & Roger Urbancsik (5656).

I probably did not get everyone who qualifies. Please send your data if you have surpassed (or will this year) 70,000 running miles, at (stephen.william.deboer@gmail.com) and I'll include you in the next update.

MEMBER UPDATES – SPRING 2022

Eric Duncan

ERIC DUNCAN JOINS USRSA

Running saved my life. When I retired from the U.S.Navy, I picked up poor eating habits and ballooned up to 350lbs. One morning I was going to L.A fitness in College Park and I met an active member of Black Men Run. He has just finished running outside and told me about Black Men Run and that their group runs were every Monday at Grant Park.

Well, I met the founders and have never stopped running with the group. Since that time, I have finished 12 half-marathons and countless 5 and 10ks. I have also lost 90lbs, have felt better and I was selected as co-captain of the local chapter.

I have retired from road racing and picked up a new obsession which is run streaking. What happened was I would usually run about 5 days a week. Accidentally in November of 2016 I started to go for a run before Veterans Day but it landed on my rest day so I kept running and 7 days became 10, 20, 30, 100. Now I run 2 to 5 miles every day since November 10th. Today [24 November 2021] I am still running to continue my streak which is at 1,840 days straight.

I was attending a church in Atlanta and they had a bread ministry. The primary mission of the bread ministry is to give to the homeless, needy, and less fortunate than the church. I took upon myself to take over the bread ministry and going out in the streets of Atlanta and giving to the homeless men, women, and children.

I go to different missions throughout Atlanta and surrounding areas and give free food and clothes to anyone who is down on their luck and homeless. I give to the homeless because I was once in that place of not having a home and I understand what they are going through.

SARAH POLCHER'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 534 DAYS

My streak ended due to injury and upcoming marathon training.

Sarah Polcher

Chris Nicolaides

CHRIS NICOLAIDES' STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

11-23-21 was the six-year anniversary. What started as a short challenge to run every day for a few days, continues after my brother Michael challenged me to keep going. For the past six years I ran a minimum of 2-miles every day and completed numerous marathons, ultra-marathons and even a 100-mile race.

I know my miles are numbered but today is not the day. I ran six easy miles to celebrate my accomplishment. Cheers!

Chris Nicolaides
Wexford, Pennsylvania

KIM ZAVISLAK'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I hit a 3-year running streak on 10/18/21 and have run at least 4 miles every day in those three years (and still going)! I am blessed and appreciate that I have been able to do so and do not take that for granted!

Kim Zavislak
Westville, Ohio

Cedric Morisset

CEDRIC MORISSET'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

No more in the Neophytes categories... Proficient... here I come!

Cedric Morisset
Blainville, Quebec, Canada

KATHERINE BEAVER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I just reached two years of my running streak and I'm so proud of myself!

Most of my running is on the treadmill but I do enjoy outdoor runs in the summer while my son rides his bike.

Recently my daughter had surgery and a hospital stay—I was able to maintain my streak by running back and forth on the sidewalk in front of the hospital! I will continue to run as long as I can, just taking it one day at a time!

Katherine Beaver
Kennedy, New York

Shiva Zanoli

SHIVA ZANOLI'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Just reached my six years of runstreak. But the best part is I inspired a big group of runners again to join me to end the year runstreaking. Love the movement!

Shiva Zanoli
Hilversum, Netherlands

JESSICA MORTUS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I'm in disbelief that I've run every day for the past two years. Through sickness, injuries, tiredness, pregnancy, labor, delivery, postpartum, and the demands of working and raising six kids.

My streak has reached over 5,100 miles, countless halves, and 5 marathons. It's truly become a habit. It's not a, will I run today, it's I will run today and my family knows that.

I know my streak is just an infant compared to so many out there. Those streakers are the ones that motivate and inspire me to keep going. The human body is truly amazing and I am so grateful mine allows me to do what I love. Running has taught me I am so much stronger than I think. Cheers to another year. Happy running!

Jessica Mortus
Hemet, California

Ronald Freeser

RONALD FREESER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I began my streak two years ago with the goal of completing the Runner's World Run Streak from Thanksgiving to New Years. When I reached 1 January, I decided to just keep it going and see how long I could keep it going. My goal now is to get my comma with 1,000 days.

Ronald Freeser
Universal City, Texas

Matt Ryerson

MATT RYERSON'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

7 years of running ended with one of the most difficult weeks to keep the streak alive after completing America's oldest ultramarathon in the JFK 50 miler on November 20th. Finishing my first race at that distance. The following morning made for a sad, slow, stumbling one mile run to keep the streak alive.

The streak has totaled 13,286-miles covered alone, with friends from a range of states, and in races ranging from the local 5k to two of the marathon majors (Boston and NYC), a few ultra's at the 50k distance and most recently the 50-miler. A consistent middle of the pack runner, the inspiration comes from the "feeling" and empowerment that running gives me.

Matt Ryerson
Cleveland, Tennessee

Michael Layser

MICHAEL LAYSER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Starting my 3rd year of my run streak. For my 2 years, I'm currently at 4077.22 miles which have all been outdoors.

This run streak has been very humbling, inspiring and life changing. I'm proud of my accomplishments and excited for the next adventure 1 day 1 mile at a time.

Michael Layser
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

TIFFANY HALLMARK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,356 DAYS

After finding out I was pregnant, I decided I would not continue my streak. I ran for as long as I was comfortable but when I hit the point that running was painful I decided it was the end of my streak. I'm incredibly proud of my 2,356 days and 16,323 miles and can't wait for my next adventure!

Tiffany Hallmark
Williamsburg, Virginia

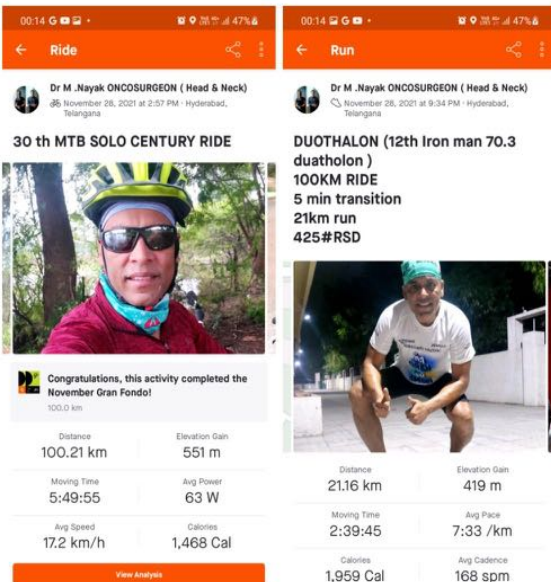

Suzanne Sutherland

SUZANNE SUTHERLAND'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Spent the last week running barefoot on this beach and celebrated two years of my streak there! Big temperature difference from today's [29 November 2021] snowy RSD 732.

Suzanne Sutherland
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Manoranjan Nayak

MANORANJAN NAYAK'S STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

I completed my mock drill of 12th Ironman duathlon 100km ride followed by 21km run on Sunday 28th of Nov 2021....and I want to thank SRI for that.

I'm basically a night streak runner as I don't get time to run in the morning as I have morning duties as a surgical oncologist in Operation theatre (Omega cancer hospital) Hyderabad state Telangana country India.

Manoranjan Nayak
Hyderabad, Telangana, India

John Hartenburg

JOHN HARTENBURG'S STREAK HITS 8 YEARS

Celebrating 8 Years of running every single day.

I couldn't do this without the unwavering support of my loving wife who puts up with this running stuff.

Being able to run every day is a beautiful gift that I appreciate every single day.

John Hartenburg
Perrysburg, Ohio

Natalie Cuthbert

NATALIE CUTHBERT JOINS USRSA

I have been running since 2013 when I began training for my first half marathon with zero knowledge about running. But just figured it out as I went. Since that first half I have run 17 half marathons, 3 full marathons and countless 5k's and 10k's.

I began my streak on December 1st, 2020 with a goal of running every day in December only. But as it got closer to the end of the month I just knew I wasn't ready to let go of the streak. During my first streak year, I ran two half marathons and became an RRCA certified running coach. It is currently day 370 [5 December 2021], I have run 968 miles up to this point. I am so excited to be on this journey and be a part of a community that is dedicated to running and has the same love for it that I do.

Natalie Cuthbert
Mount Vernon, Washington

Mavrik Zavarin

MAVRIK ZAVARIN JOINS USRSA

Mavrik Zavarin (director of the Seaborg Institute at Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, USA) has been running half-marathons, 10K's, and relays for the past 20 years (and running casually for much longer!). He was inspired to start his run streak from a cover article in the 2020 Runner's World (issue 3). In the midst of a pandemic, it was a great opportunity to focus on running and get out of the house. He convinced his then 16-year old son to join him. The team streak is now at 1.5 years and still going strong for both father and son!

Mavrik Zavarin
Oakland, California

MICHELLE FOX'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,577 DAYS

My streak ended due to a foot injury.

Michelle Fox
Studio City, California

Martin Trauffer and friends

MARTIN TRAUFFER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today [5 December 2021], I completed my first 3 years of streak running. My daily average is about 6 miles. My goal is 10 years, but for this, it needs good health and also a little bit of good luck. Streak running is a super hobby. I just love it. At the moment I'm looking forward to my Gump Day.

Here in Switzerland we have about 10 active streak runners. I hope we can realize a meeting of the Swiss Streak Runners next year to get to know each other.

I wish all the best to the streak runners all over the world. Go on streaking!

Martin Trauffer
Moehlin, Switzerland

ROSS KINGSLEY'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Maybe some inspiration if you are struggling...

I'm 58 and have been a runner all my life. I'm a streaker (just gone through 5 years). I've run reasonably fast over distances from 1500m (3:45) up to 50 miles.

I was injury free until December 2019 when I developed Insertional Achilles tendinopathy. This was just after my 3-year anniversary of streaking. The problem was poor trail shoe choice. A very stiff heel counter that irritated my Insertional points. So, for the past 715 days I've run in pain.

Often in the first year it was so acute I cried my whole mile. But always in pain, I would say to myself just give it another week. If it doesn't improve then break your streak. And then it would ease a bit. I couldn't walk downstairs, I couldn't walk up slopes. I still can't run hills (my favorite run). I haven't run longer than 19km in 2 years. My weekly kilometers have dropped from 80/100km per week to 20 to 40km. I just tried to stay in the game. Tried to shut out the pain. Some days I wasn't able to run the morning so I would try again in the afternoon.

This past two months I've finally seen some true healing. Minimal pain and discomfort. I'm walking normally again. 😊

What I've learned is to wear soft heel counter shoes running and walking. I'm using Salomon Sonic 4 Confidence (9 pairs in 2 years). Get some orthotics. Don't stretch your calves in this period. Don't run hills. Be careful bending down or crouching. Run in the afternoon when your Achilles are warmed up. Get some treatment like shockwave. Use iced water. Use short socks that don't cover or compress your Achilles (it puts pressure on your Insertional points).

You are so much stronger than you think you are. If you can control your mind, you can control the flood of pain each day.

Keep on Streaking my streaking family. Don't Stop Believing.

Ross Kingsley
Robina Gold Coast, Queensland, Australia

Kaitlin Turnley

KAITLIN TURNLEY'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

4 years! While I am not to double digits as many fellow streakers - I am excited to hit another milestone despite the chaos the world has endured the past few years.

Running is my peace. My dad passed away on Dec 14, 2019 and the first thing I did the next day was lace up my Nimbus. I ran and cried... It was cathartic, cleansing...and quite honestly the only thing I could do other than pray or scream (and I did both).

I run in a local park and every day I've found a new familiar stranger to befriend. Former runners, Harvey and Ed, are a combined 173 years old and share stories from their Boston days. The "Sunday coffee" pack of 50 - 60+ year old guys return smiles and high fives.

Through cancer, Nadia still came to the park to walk and leave fresh flowers at one stop sign "just to remind everyone to stop, be grateful and enjoy the little things." She is cancer free a year later.

I've got dozens of other stories - another reason to love running! I've kept it up - through the pandemic, a terrible nagging upper hamstring injury (dry needling anyone?), travel mishaps, family obligations, illness, depression and more... but I ran, so it was a good day! Happy running my dear friends.

KELLI DAVIS' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

WOW! 5 years! Never would I have ever thought I could make it to a 5-year run streak. It has been a challenge especially with our crazy Covid year, but here I am.

I am planning to run a marathon in January so the run streak has definitely helped me stay focused on my runs.

The only story I have for this year is running at 11:30 PM when I almost forgot that I hadn't run that day. I wonder if I am the only run-streaker who has almost forgotten like this. I was in bed about to go to sleep and my husband asked how my run was that day and I jumped out of bed and freaked out.

I had been doing a lot of early morning runs because I am a teacher and we have 4 kiddos and in their busy season of sports I like to knock out my runs before work, but for some reason it all blended together and I had almost forgotten to run that day. I did my 1-mile loop around my hood and was back in bed by 11:55 PM. Hopefully that won't ever happen again, but what a story.

Thanks for this challenge! I will keep it going especially now that I am training for a couple marathons this year.

MELISSA HEENAN'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

On November 30th, I completed my 6-year running streak. This year proved a bit challenging because our family did have COVID and I had to be very careful with the energy I exerted. However, running is still extremely important to me and provides me a bit of sanity each day so I feel it is exactly what I needed to pull through some hard times. I'm hoping that this year will be easier and I can get in some extra miles to make up for it!

I am celebrating my 4th year anniversary today [4 December 2021]! It has been a fantastic last 6 month with a new ultra-distance online coaching group with Pace on Earth here in Sweden. My new ultra-distance record is now 55 km and I am aiming for 50 miles in April 2022. Great to be part of the run streak community!

Streak running changed my life. I start my morning run at 5 a.m. every day. I love to start the day like this. I'm 51 years old now and I hope to be able to streak for many years to come. Running is my life.

BRAD FERNANDES' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

This morning (12/10/2021) I completed my 732nd day (2.00 years) of consecutive running. My streak is registered with the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. (yes that is a real thing) and it started on December 10th 2019. When I laced up my shoes that day I had absolutely no intention of starting a streak.

USRSA Streaks have to be a minimum of 365 days and the shortest daily distance must be 1.00 mile or more.

Here are some stats....

Total streak miles so far: 6,880.64

Average mileage per day: 9.4

Some "fun" facts: 49 miles were logged on a cruise ship track.

366 of these runs were over 10.00 miles.

18 of these were on my treadmill. I run in all types of weather except when it is really icy or lightening.

A majority of these miles have taken place in the 6-7am hours with good friends and that what keeps me going day after day! Now, on to 1000 days.

BARBARA LATTA'S STREAK HITS 38 YEARS

2021 will probably go down in history as the year of the COVID-19 Virus. For me it will end my thirty-eighth year of my Running Streak. It has been a year with the fewest races since I began racing.

Because I live just 1/4 mile from a lake, I had no problem running out my house and to the lake almost every morning. The lake is surrounded by a two-mile Greenway. This is the place that I choose to run at least four times a week and sometimes I run it every day.

By 5:00 AM most mornings, I am already running on the Greenway. I usually run three times around the lake. I will go one way and then another. It is a beautiful place to run. I enjoy the change of seasons. The Fall is my favorite with the change of the leaves on the trees. The lake is surrounded by trees of different kinds. There are the beautiful maple trees. We have oak tree, magnolia trees, dogwood trees and a variety of others. The Fall is full of color of the leaves. In the spring we have the yellow-green new leaves that show the warm days are coming to us in Raleigh, North Carolina.

Also, on the Greenway there are a plethora of rabbits and squirrels. The animals that I like to see most are the deer. The deer are almost always traveling in pairs. In the spring I see the tiny little Bambi fawns. They are so wobbly and slender. It is such a joy to run every day in a changing world of nature.

During this year of running I did some Virtual Races. All of the "real" races were canceled. In a Virtual Race we register just as usual for a race. The price is usually reduced some. We run the race anytime within the designated time. We register for a certain distance of the race and time ourselves.

During the year I did seven Virtual Races. I also ran three "Staggered" or "Time Trial" start races. We had a specific time to start the race with only a few starting at that time. By August, 2021, we were allowed to run a race with all starting at a starting line.

Because I was in the Pfizer Study, I was given the Covid Virus-19 inoculation early. I thank God that I did not get the Virus-19. I have been healthy all year. I received the two Pfizer and the Booster shots.

The race distances I have run this year have been mostly 5K races. I also ran an 8K Turkey Trot Race. I placed First in my age group. I ran a Half Marathon in 2:58. This earned me a First place in my age group. In the City of Oaks Half Marathon, I was one of two PACERS. We paced the three-hour group. We helped people who were running their first Half Marathon, people who were running a Half for the first time in many years, and people who just wanted a PACER to help them keep the pace. With the exception of 2020, I have been a PACER each year for the City of Oaks Half Marathon Race. In 2020, the race was canceled.

One interesting race I ran was a Virtual Race. It was the O'Shengnigan Challenge which was a 210-mile race. I ran the miles during January, February, and March. It was interesting to record my miles each day for something since the "real" races were canceled.

My running times are getting much slower. I can tell this most difference this year. My race times are much slower than the year 2019. Maybe because I did not challenge myself to run faster when I was not training for an upcoming competitive race? I still enjoy running as much or more than ever.

THOMAS MCDOW'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 729 DAYS

I have looked forward to December 17, 2021, for several months to celebrate my third running streak, this one for two years. In late November, I had a left knee problem. My orthopedist believes it is arthritis and gave me a prescription. Although I ran through it, I ran only 1.50 to 2.50 miles for about five days. On Wednesday, December 15, 2021, I felt my left knee might collapse, but I finished my three-mile run. Yesterday, December 16, 2021, I laced my shoes and tried to run. I covered .07 miles in about a minute and a half and knew I could not run another step. Still, before going to sleep, I considered I had about two hours to run one mile. I accepted my fate and went to sleep, two runs short of two years.

Running streaks have been significant in my life. I consider running the key to mental and physical health. With an active running streak, there are no questions; I run every day before taking a shower and going to work. Without a running streak, it is too easy to take a day off. At age 79, almost 80, I doubt I will ever have another one-year running streak, but I will treasure the three streaks I had: 3,434 days ending April 16, 2016, 853 days ending August 1, 2019, and 729 days ending December 15, 2021. I am grateful to the Running Streak Association for its inspiration and examples of others. I will continue my membership, regardless of whether I achieve another streak.

Running streaks are challenges. Once achieved, they may end but they can never be taken away. Congratulations to those with streaks and best wishes for continuing those streaks.

Have a wonderful day and a great run.

HAKAN STENSBY'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I started out running fall 2017, had never run outside school gymnastics before that.

At first it was one of those challenges, run 20 minutes every day in September 2017, after that my body was quite sore and I thought this would never work, how can people run every day?

After a run with a ultra-runner, my mother-in-law, who runs with another kind of mindset, I then realized I don't need to run 110% every time, pace is what the body likes for that day.

From being a "I will never run" to running every day is a huge step for me. Also, being a bit heavy, I have put some strain on feet and knees but after 6 months or so I haven't had any trouble with that.

I very often listen to audiobooks when running and I've learned a lot during my runs and a lot about running. :-)

After 1000 days, I challenged myself to change from 20 minutes a day to 30, after listening to a book by Anders Hansen, "The real happy pill." Well, at least for me it seems to work! The 30 minutes kind of stuck with me so still doing it.

All days has been outside, from -20 to +35, from lost in San Francisco to snowy mountains of Are. I've seen a lot of places running that I probably never would have seen if hadn't been running and it's awesome!

The daily runs have done a lot for my mind. I've found more peace, I feel calmer, and the brain is not racing all the time. Yes, I'm 4 years older but I would think the running has a lot to do with it.

I hope I can continue this journey, running more, learning more about body and mind, making new friends and feeling great!

To all you runners out there, keep it up!

I just celebrated my 2-year STREKAVERSARY and am so proud of myself. I originally started my streak to help me cope with the ups and downs of my many moods during the winter. It gave me something to look forward to and something to stay accountable for. Since then I have done things I never would have considered before while running. I am sure you can all relate!

I've run while sick in between bathroom trips, ran in flip flops, ran in a dress, ran after drinking, ran while drinking, ran hungover, ran on planter's fasciitis, ran after 3 full marathons, ran during Covid, the list goes on and on!

I love being a crazy streak runner! There literally is no end in sight for me :-). Thanks for being my streak fam and celebrating my accomplishment with me!

CHRISTOPHER BIELINSKI'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

When I started my runstreak, my original goal was just to shake up my training routine after reading about the winter runstreak in Runner's World (running a mile every day from USA Thanksgiving until Jan 1st). I thought about it for a few days and started my streak on 12/3/11.

I made it to the new year and it just took on a life of its own. Since then I have been fortunate enough to stay healthy and keep running every day while running a marathon on all 7 continents, running all the marathon majors along with about 25 more marathons (I don't know the exact number I ran during this 10 year period), and finishing my first Ironman triathlon.

My daily average has ticked up over the years to 5.5 miles per day. I still strength train 5 days a week and think that is part of the reason why I have been able to stay injury free.

Did I ever come close to stopping? No, it's part of my daily routine and I get some of my best thinking done on my weekly longer runs. I really am lucky to be able to get to run every day, some runs are fast, others are slow but I will keep going as long as I am healthy enough to keep the streak alive. Here is to moving from Proficient to Experienced and year number 11.

JACOB MJOBRING'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Hi, today [22 December 2021] I run to end my second year in the northern part of Sweden. It is -20 Celsius today and the sun was almost not up at all, but I have run through a bit colder than that during my two years of outdoor running. Most amazed that I have not been sick during this period. My shortest run is 4 kilometer a day, and that was the distance today as well. Looking forward to a new year and will keep my fingers crossed that I will stay healthy! Wish all you runners Great Holidays and Great Runs!

ALLISON'S MEAD'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

730 days! My run streak is officially 2 years old! 365 days ago, today [24 December 2021], I was in the same driveway (plus a lot of snow on the ground and minus a baby in my belly), trying to juggle balloons for day 3-6-5. I got fewer balloons this time, but I'm still celebrating another 365 days of running EVERY day.

Over the past 2 years, I've made some memorable running memories like running with my 5-year old and 2-year old, training with and pacing husband for his first full marathon, and running through my third pregnancy.

I've enjoyed virtual races, the recent return of in person races, trail runs, road runs, morning runs, night runs, lunch break runs, treadmill runs, runs with friends, runs watching TV, and runs that I didn't want to do but did anyway. I'm SO thankful that I get to keep doing this, and I'm proud of every day that comes after this one!

MATT MUECKE'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Greetings fellow streakers! Well, my second year has passed by, and I'm extremely pleased to be onto year 3.

It has been an extremely difficult year for me physically. A continued battle with plantar fasciitis in my right foot greatly restricted my mileage this year as well as lower back and hip issues.

It has been a huge year for personal growth battling through these ailments. Learning how to overcome the challenges mentally, spiritually, and physically to get out there every day. Continuing to learn the fine art of discerning what my body is speaking to me and what exactly it needs to heal, improve, and continue this marvelous journey.

Not too long ago I met with a physical therapist that specializes in running ailments. We were talking about running and when I brought up my streak and not being willing to let it end, he lovingly responded, "Oh, you're one of those nut jobs!" I couldn't have been prouder to accept that title.

This morning as I started out on year 3, I feel the best I have physically felt in over a year and a half and I'm so very cautiously optimistic I have finally turned the corner.

This year my streak started rubbing off on my 16-year-old son. He managed to streak for just under 200 days and share a few races with me.

It was so nice to have races back!

I have also lived in my current rural home for just over 6 years. In these last 2 years of this streak, there has been a noticeable increase in the amount of people engaging in physical activity on my road. Perhaps it's a coincidence, but I like to believe that being seen every day trudging down the road, rain, snow, or shine, that perhaps it's brought motivation to at least one of those people. In fact, while hiking on a nearby trail, my son and I crossed paths with a couple and the gentlemen looked at me and said, "Hey! You're the runner guy!" That was pretty neat.

To wrap up this past year, I can say that I'm so incredibly happy to have running in my tool bag. What the world has known these past two years has brought so many struggles to so many. The effects we are seeing globally due to the life this pandemic has provided us is going to remain with us for a very long time.

For me, this streak continues to provide me with the overall health, and desire to seek out others and share it and the beautiful impact it has had on my life. Whether you can feel it or not, I do believe we are all changing the world one run at a time. Wishing you all a great year of running for those of you that celebrate, Happy Holidays!

As for many, 2021 was full of adventure and change. While I was able to maintain my 4-mile per day minimum, I found myself running in my home state of Washington with travel to Oklahoma for my daughter's wedding, and trips to Alaska and Hawaii in the Fall. I always love exploring a new place during my morning runs.

Our final 'trip' was moving from Seattle to Lincoln, Nebraska where running will involve some additional layers in winter. Looking forward to my Forrest Gump day in a few months.

Happy running, y'all.

HOWARD FELDMAN'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Thanks for recognizing the 4th year anniversary of my latest running streak.

I started streaking in 1998. The current streak is my 6th; I have two "retired" streaks of just over 1 year, two of nearly 4 years, and one of approximately 9 years.

The current streak has been the most difficult. I've been battling leg pain for 3+ years, apparently resulting from stenosis. I'm waiting for results from an MRI taken the other day.

The good news is that my legs have felt better over the past 3-4 weeks. I wish I knew why!

But all of you know what it is like to continue despite minor--or major--injuries. You just keep going.

Still streakin'!

What began as a 1-year run streak challenge when I turned 40 has now lasted 10 years as I turn 50 in 2022.

Some runs have been glorious. Some runs have been miserable. Some runs have been long. Some runs have just been the one mile minimum. Through all the days and miles, I have preserved.

Hard to believe it has been three years. It has been a wholesome routine and discipline. Whilst I don't look forward to some runs it always feels good to have it done. I have run through niggles and it makes you realize how easily we can stop something if we don't have a hardwired ritual.

I am blessed to do most runs with my wife - a great chance to catch up each morning. If I am lucky I can also convince one of my kids to run with me, if they can put up with my slow pace.

Two years into the Runstreak. Doubts and certainty mixed, but the log speak for itself. It's crazy really, that 24 months ago, when I set out to just get a routine in place, run 20 minutes a day (never less than a mile), it would be the ONLY available workout available due to a virus no-one heard of.

Today [30 December 2021] I'm grateful. I'm running, still, and also finding new small pieces of inspiration. To me, upholding the Runstreak has also held myself up the last two years. I'm grateful to be one of you.

MIKE JOHNSTON'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

I've officially started my 14th consecutive year of running every day, with year 13 ending in a disappointing fizzle. Five of the last six days I've struggled with a back injury that forced me to drop my route to the minimum mile. Of course, I always add an extra tenth in case my GPS is slightly off or stop at 15 minutes if the distance is unmeasurable - just in case!

I'm now back to the normal 5k path that takes me through our new neighborhood. I started this habit a few days before the New Year back then to get a jump on my resolutions and with a plan to celebrate my 60th birthday with about 1000 straight days (it was actually more like 972). It could have been a stopping point, but instead has continued on to 4,751 and counting. This recent pain could have also been reason to stop - but I didn't!

At 70 years old, my pace is embarrassingly slow and my balance awkward, but I keep on going. I can't even tell you how many miles I've traveled during this streak but it has to be close to 12,000, nearly half way around the Earth. I'll also bet that I covered the other half in the years before I discovered streaking. In that prior life, I did a couple marathons and earned hundreds of t-shirts, ribbons, certificates of completion, and cheap medals. I always seemed to finish in the middle of the pack, even on a good day. The Detroit Marathon, Hood to Coast Relay, and several Indy 500 Half-Marathons were my most memorable accomplishments.

Just recently, I ran my first race in years, the Braves Tomahawk 5k in my hometown of Venice, Florida. Earlier this year I went out of my way to meet the "Raven" in Miami to honor his now 47-year journey. I did not run with him or earn a nickname because I've been injured on sand before and prefer mornings to his evening treks on the beach. Also, my 5k daily standard is about all I can handle any more. My goal these days is just stay healthy, not push it, and be satisfied with the daily effort. After all, I will not live long enough to compete with the leaders of the pack. As always, I'm in the middle and not even yet "Well Versed" at 15-years.

This streak started on the streets of Austin, Texas and moved to the hills of Portland, Oregon. Now, I'm on flat, hot, Florida surfaces, but I've also lived in Michigan, Indiana, and Illinois, so I've experienced most of the weather extremes. However, back then I had to decide whether to run or not every day, now I'm left with the obvious choice. Running every day was the bridge from my working years into retirement, as I also celebrate 5-years of freedom. My morning routine has continued to be the same throughout this transition and will hopefully continue tomorrow.

May the Streak Be With You.

DAN MORGAN'S STREAK HITS 20 YEARS

On October 9, 2021, I completed running a minimum of 2 miles per day for 20 years. This was quite an achievement, but seems less burdensome than many think. Most of my runs are in the morning, which takes off some pressure to fit it in. And making it part of my morning routine - like taking a shower and brushing your teeth - makes it easy to do.

I got the idea to start a running streak from my brother-in-law who ran for Penn State. Post college he had a streak one year that lasted around 100 days. Because I travel extensively for work, adhering to a routine is a challenge. However, I figured that I could do 2 miles a day no matter what and become more consistent.

So, I started my initial running streak in 1995. I ran a minimum 2 miles a day for 2.5 years and then was hit by a car while biking on July 11, 1997, landing me in the hospital. After recovering I resumed running, but on an ad hoc basis.

Then in August 2001 I incurred a leg injury and stopped running in an effort to heal. However, after around 6 weeks off, the injury still persisted. Having often found backing off workouts rather than resting promotes recovery - coupled with the events of 9/11 - I decided to start running again. The day I resumed running was October 10, 2001. And I haven't missed a day since.

There are so many memories of running all over the world, where my travels have taken me. The morning runs have been a great way to sightsee new destinations. Places include 40 countries such as Thailand, China, Japan, Singapore, Australia, Brazil, Chile, S. Africa, Algeria, Romania, Russia, Ukraine, Turkey, Netherlands, Sweden, Germany and Spain and many of the continental US states.

It was great fortune that I met Mark Washburne at a race in Hillsborough, NJ and joined the Running Streak Association. It is incredible the effort he puts into this organization. Another highlight is going to South Beach Florida and running 8 miles on the beach with the infamous Robert "Raven" Kraft, a definite bucket list item.

With continued good health I hope to continue my current streak for the foreseeable future. Hopefully, some others can be inspired to find a daily exercise routine that will contribute positively to their physical and mental health as running has done for me.

As with 2020, 2021 was another trying year. As I expect, others here use running as a method to cope with the stresses of life as well.

Early this year I set a goal of averaging 10 miles a day and happy to say that I achieved that goal with one day left in the year. In addition to my 10 mile a day goal, I got out on the trails as much as possible.

I completed the famed Pemi Loop and Presidential Traverse in the White Mountains of NH and a Rim 2 Rim 2 Rim within the Grand Canyon.

As we move into a new year, I am excited to see where my streak brings me and what adventures are next.

I made it! On the 13th of December I had my 2-year anniversary of my Runstreak. Despite Covid it was a very good running year. So far 13 (ultra)marathons and +4000 km. Next goal: 1000 days! ;-)

Daily running has been fantastic for me, from the super long days to the slow short recovery days I always finish a run feeling a sense of fulfilment (even when the dreaded DNFs happen...which I have experienced 2 quite important ones in the past year).

I try to run trails and hills whenever I can and the longer the better in my view. In 2022 I predict at least one run lasting over 24 hours for a 2-days in one run!

JIM TANCREDI'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

On December 31, 2019, I set a New Year resolution to run at least 1 mile every day of the year. I wasn't sure I would make it thru the 366 days in 2020 without missing a day along the way, but not only did I run every day in 2020, two years later the streak continues at 732 days. I completed 1,330 miles in 2020, and in 2021, I met my personal annual goal of 1,500 miles when I finished with 1,502 miles.

I have every intention of furthering the streak into 2022 and beyond, God willing. At this point, it would take serious injury or illness to keep me from extending the streak. I've run thru family illnesses, injury (not the smartest thing to do but the injuries were minor enough to tolerate the pain), a stomach virus, heavy snow, pouring rain, 100-degree heat, 15-degree cold, 50 mph wind gusts, and any number of other obstacles that stood in the way of moving to the next day.

There's one thing I can say with certainty about the streak: it keeps me committed to the sport. There have been plenty of days that I would have come up with an excuse not to complete a run, but with hundreds of days invested into the streak, I find the ambition inside me to continue to plow thru the days one after another.

The streak holds me accountable, and that accountability keeps me committed. It's made me a better runner overall - mentally and physically, and I love the challenge it presents to me every day. If you want to be a better runner and take your commitment to an entirely different level, start a streak and give it your all to extend it day after day. I don't think you'll be the least bit disappointed you did so.

Attached is a race photo of me at approximately Mile 6 of the Bethany Beach First Responders Half Marathon, in Bethany Beach, Delaware, this past September. I loved every minute of that race!

6 Years Strong! The first half of 2021 was great as I was marathon training and I packed in lots of miles. The second half of 2021 included way too many one-mile days! ### MIRCEA DRAGOI'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Hi, dear streaking community! Just finished my 1096th run, meaning I have completed 3 years. And what strange, hard, unusual, unexpected, bumpy and... beautiful years!

I especially remember one run back in March 2020, when I have found myself in the middle of a completely empty road. It was 11AM and usually that road, in the middle of my city, was busy as hell, with heavy traffic, lots of pedestrians, kids, birds, pets... and it was totally deserted now. A strange, spine chilling feeling marked that moment.

The streak helped me navigate those days and hundreds of crazy days since. Most important, it connected me with Mother Nature. Nature and Streaking have a lot in common - both are following their undisturbed cyclicity, both equally unimpressed by our individual moods, tantrums, laziness, both building durable, unforgettable legacies.

I can't wait for tomorrow, for another year to come, for another run to enjoy!

I'm delighted to have completed the second year of my run streak today (31st December 2021). Running every day has been such an important part of getting through the pandemic for me, and this year I was very thankful to be able to return to races and parkruns.

2021 saw my first trail race and my second London Marathon, where I was able to take more than 45 minutes off my previous personal best. (I'm a slow runner so there are still some big improvements to make!) I also got a new 10k personal best at one of my favorite events, the Sunderland City 10k. The great thing about running is that there are always new things to explore.

The most precious aspect of my run streak is the motivation to keep going through the cold winter months. Prior to my streak I would always have a 'winter running slump' following my last race of the season, as I found it difficult to talk myself into getting out there! Some mornings are still tough, but I always feel better after my run. It's a hugely important part of my day.

I'm excited about starting the third year of my streak with a New Year's Day parkrun tomorrow, and I'm looking forward to 2022. I'll be training for the Edinburgh Marathon this spring and plan to run a few other new-to-me races throughout the year. I hope to be finishing my third year of the streak this time next year with one or two more personal bests under my belt... but if not, I'll just be happy to have kept streaking on!

RAY POYNTER'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Hi from the UK. I have just completed 3 years of streaking and have recently turned 65. My key learning is that everybody's streak has to be their streak, their way.

My minimum is 2KM (1.25 miles), but my average is close to 10KM (6 miles) – which means I have run 10,905KM (6776 miles) during those three years.

I am a member of a running club and I run in races, but my rule is that I only train twice a week, on the other five days I run somewhere between moderate and very slow.

The most boring runs were two separate weeks of being isolated because of COVID (I had been near somebody who tested positive). Each day, 3KM running in my garden, 25 metres per lap – 120 laps per day).

Andre Hammond

ANDRE HAMMOND'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Today is New Year's Eve and I am one day away from completing my three year running streak. It has been a tough journey being active duty military and supporting a family. I have had to complete runs in airports, truck stops, and running laps around the garden during COVID-19.

The most challenging portion was when I was diagnosed with COVID and could barely move. I used that as motivation as I did not want to let COVID beat me. So, I ran. I ran, really slow. Taking almost half hour for my mile compared to my usual 5 to 9-minute pace.

Even after, it was a slow recovery as my body was not the same but I continued to push and recovered stronger than ever.

What really drove this streak is being able to see the world and all of its hidden treasures. When I would travel I would go for a run and find the most beautiful places off the beaten path. Places we would only catch a glimpse of in a car. I would stop choosing the shortcuts and seek the long route because there is so much unseen beauty that goes unnoticed. So, the power of the mind is amazing as well as having faith in God. With those two things the impossible becomes possible.

2021 has been a mixed year. Like lots, we've dealt with isolation (son testing positive for Covid in April, thankfully remained asymptomatic) so a week of treadmill miles. I'm looking forward to 2022.....looking forward to my 5th year, looking forward to some ultras, miles of smiles and my first 24hr event. Happy running streakers!

MATTHEW ANDERSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I just completed two years of streaking (started Dec 31, 2019) and began my third year with no intent to stop anytime soon.

This past year has been the best year of running in my life - I turned 40 this year, and wanted to go big: I ran the most miles I've ever run (2233 miles), ran my first ultramarathon (Afton 50K), got a PR at the Twin Cities Marathon (3:13), and accomplished my goal of running 1 marathon every month in 2021.

Streak running definitely has my body in a condition where I've been able to do more than I ever thought I was capable of, and for that I am forever grateful. Looking forward to 2022!

PATRICIA TOMS' STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

In 2013 I registered for a 5K benefiting Relay for Life and The American Cancer Society. I attended in memory of my family members who were touched with some form of cancer and especially for my Dad who passed from Colon Cancer in 2011. I walked that entire race but saw others running and picked up the drive to push myself more.

Over the following years I signed up for races here and there as motivation to improve my running and the sheer enjoyment of running came naturally.

The idea of run streaking, started in late Dec 2018, when two friends of mine (husband & wife) were streaking together. I had never heard of such a thing. They mentioned that they ran at least a mile/day and I thought to myself, "I Can Do That, what's one mile!"

So, I decided that I would have two running goals in 2019, run at least a mile per day and run at least 100 miles per month. I continued to sign-up for races and saw self-improvement over time. But at this point in my life, it's not about earning a shiny medal or necessarily shaving off 2 seconds off my race time, it's about keeping the passion for running and spending time with so many friends I have made in my running community.

Today, 12.31.2021, marks my 3rd year of streaking, and those two running goals I set on 1.1.2019, I'm still holding myself accountable. I'm not sure how long this journey will last because at some point my run streak will end, every run streak will end. But I intend to enjoy every moment and every mile and appreciate every day along the way.

Happy Streaking!

JOHN FAZ'S STREAK HITS 31 YEARS

I had recently posted an update to my running streak changes. In June of this year I modified my running streak reducing my minimum mileage to the dreaded ONE MILE STREAK SAVER. And even more recently I modified it again to the also dreaded treadmill mile.

I chose this option due to the persistent knee pain that lingered from an injury I caused to myself while demonstrating "speed work" to my wife, Michelle. After completing a 7 min per mile pace, I stopped to quickly which cause a small tear probably to my left inside quad.

I thought it would heal but it only got worse. I eliminated all causes I could think of and some helped. It wasn't until a couple weeks ago a co-worker and lifelong runner encourage me to seek the help of a well-known Sports Rehab clinic. I made the appointment and was seen and evaluated a couple days ago. My body alignment was way out of wack due to my favoring my gait due to the persistent pain in my knee. I was coached on a few exercises to strengthen the muscles that had become lazy and have already felt a very promising improvement in my gait and reduction in pain level.

Got to admit, I was getting very close to ending my streak after 25 December 2021 as it was my 31st anniversary. I am hoping these rehab session will continue to work to reduce the pain and eliminate my limping.

Passing this on in hopes someone out there is having the same issue. Also, encouraged by my recent prostate PSA test result of 0.015. Live to run another day. Happy New Year and best of luck to all of you that continue to streak.

BRET NELSON'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

A lot has happened in the last seven years, but one thing I learned is that I need to get the run done in the morning, because life WILL happen. I have had my son fracture his skull in a bicycle accident, my dog ripped the top of her leg open on a garden stake on a run, had to take my wife to the hospital for COVID twice. All of these events would have likely broken my streak (and rightfully so) if I did not run first thing in the morning.

One interesting note on Year 7 is that my home in Texas had no electricity for 3 days in February because of a huge snow and ice storm that shut down the power grid. This might not seem like a big deal to my friends in northern states, but it was chaos down here. The streak runs on those days gave me the opportunity to check on my elderly neighbors and make sure they had food, water and firewood.

I hope to bring this habitual determination into other areas of my life in 2022

Thank you to my two running buddies: My wife Heidi and my dog, Tilly.

My run streak hit 5 years today [31 December 2021]! No days off in 5 years. In that time, I've run as little as a mile and as much as 62 miles on any given day...and always laced up my shoes the next day. I summited Mt Rainier this year and made it back down the mountain in time to save my streak.

Running has brought me joy. It's taught me, when something is important enough, we find a way. I know someday this streak will end, but today is not that day.

LUTZ BALSCHUWEIT'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

As quite immobile, severely overweight people, my wife Anja and I started organizing our lives completely differently together in 2005, when we were thirty-five and thirty-nine years old.

Yes, that was seventeen years ago.

Among other things, we brought more movement into our lives, after a while we became runners, daily runners. (You can read or hear more details about this in my book "Curriculum Vitae - No Competition.")

After several years of settling in, my first run as a daily runner was on 02 January 2012.

With today's [1 January 2022] run I achieved ten years of daily running (streak running) in my uninterrupted running series, according to the rules of the Streak Runners International (SRI).

- Ten years or
- 3,653 days of jogging in a row
- Don't have a day off
- 79,181 km in series
- 21.68 km per day on average
- Always outside
- A present every day

What have I been able to experience in the last ten years, who have I got to know, with whom have I run everything together? Ten years is a hell of a long time.

It was a big project and an intermediate goal for me to run this ten-year run streak with an average distance of at least one half-marathon a day. Made!

I am grateful that I was allowed to do that up to this point and, above all, that I could. The trip goes on...

First of all, I look at the next big stopover with the second circumnavigation of the world in the streak with 80,153.2 km.

So, it goes on with my résumé, following my vision to run again the next day.

Streak On!

Yes, two years and counting. I don't have to explain much to my fellow streakers. It becomes a fabric of your daily life. This one is special as I have surpassed my previous streak of 699 days due to injury.

The bonding of other streakers and hearing their stories motivates each other to keep going. Every day the question is not "Will I run today" It is "When will I run today." I run outdoors all the time.

My last streak I included treadmills but this current streak has all been outside on trails and roads. I also wear running shorts year-round. Even on those cold Vermont Winter days the cold air does wonders for me. Now, I look forward to my comma day!!

Today, Jan 1 2022, is my 10-year streak anniversary. Total miles for 10 years is 12,259.95. It's been an amazing journey.

You learn a lot about yourself. You become creative in your miles; I've run in airports, front porch during bad weather, after surgery (Dr approved!), parking garages, fields, neighborhoods (I've got a lot of dog friends) ...late nights, early mornings, different states. sometimes different states in one day. I've taken pictures of cows, horses, flowers (great landscaping ideas), birds, etc.

During covid, I've become hooked on audible books. I listen to running books, mystery, inspiration, love John Grisham! During holidays, I listened to Christmas podcasts.

Most of all is inspiration from special running friends.

Now onto next 10 years!!

VICKI MCDONALD'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

2021...otherwise known as year nine! This has been an amazing year personally. I became engaged in February and married a wonderful, supportive man in July. So, my new name is Vicki McDonald! I also turned 50 this year.

I find great joy in running with friends and my fur babies: Gracie and Flash. Gracie is a Vizsla and can run forever. Flash, the Bassett Hound, can handle short runs under 4 miles. He has to stop and sniff a lot. So, he runs off leash and specializes in sprint repeats.

My nine-year mileage total is 9,082.95 miles. That is a very small number compared to many on this list, but I am proud of it and the fact that my streak survived a terrible case of plantar fasciitis. After dropping mileage to the minimum mile a day and finding the right insole, my mileage is finally on the way back up! Here's to 2022 and Keep running!

CHAD RAGAINS' STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I can't express my gratitude enough to the streak run family and all that cultivates this madness called #runningstreak. Like a short leash, it's kept me in line. Like the horizon, it's kept my eyes fixed forward. Like a badge of pride, it's kept my determination fierce even in weakness.

After my wife's breast cancer diagnosis 6 years ago, she made me promise to do two things. "Get in the best shape of your life and drink more beer!" Well, I've accomplished both of those.

Averaging over 5K-a-day, the endless pursuit of running myself into the ground came just in the nick of time. We have 3 kids who were in a private school at the time. When cancer came knocking, we all fell apart. My kids and their education, my wife's health and my sanity.

When life was turning upside down, my wife spent more hours struggling to function through chemo and surgery than I spent at work, my kids transitioned to homeschooling, my trust in God was failing, and my ability to do all that I excelled at was slipping from my grasp. I could run. It gave me something to focus on through the melee that could have driven me off a cliff. When the end of the day came, exhausted, hopeless and broken... I still had to put on my shoes and run.

Maybe I didn't even always need shoes, or shorts, or shirt, or pants, or anything in particular. I've run barefoot or in boots, wearing the best running shorts or greasy jeans after crawling out from under my truck, sober or intoxicated, wearing scrubs in a stairwell or (almost) stripped down on a treadmill... I still have a few ideas of how to take streaking to the next level, but that's for later.

Life has leveled out quite a bit. Her health is attempting to get back to some semblance of normal; she runs with me more and more. Kids are back in school post-Covid. My sanity (seems to be) improving. It helps to be spending more time at the beach than I have since I was a teen. Oh yeah... and I run. With or without my kids, my wife, my friends, my dogs, daylight or optimal health... I run.

Lest I forget to mention the dark side of streak-running, the inevitable monotony and slave-like relationship has pushed me to explore different aspects of running that I likely never would have. As Covid dismantled the traditional race world, I found trail running. As my first (and only?) Boston qualifying entry to the big race was cancelled outright for me, I found ultra. As I endured various injury and ailments, I found determination.

To all of you streak runners, I say thanks for paving the way before me and for your encouragement. To those who have to endure my countless "I'll be right back," I say thank you for enduring my madness. To my many, many shoes... I apologize.

I've reached my second year of streak running. What started as a winter warrior challenge in 2020, progressed to a streak for the duration of covid. Neither my streak or the pandemic show any signs of stopping soon.

Rosie, my running buddy, had also been helpful in getting me out the door, as well as joining a new running club. Before the re-emergence of in-person races, my 1000 miles were in jeopardy. But for 2021 I finished with 1109 miles. Love the group support and connecting with other streakers.

NAN LUJAN'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

For the 10th year of my running streak I took on the challenge of running every street in Durham, the city I live in. There are 4,271 streets in Durham covering 1,263.85 miles. It took me 250 days and every few weeks or so I get an email update with new streets that have been added that I need to go and complete. It was a fun way to continue the streak when racing didn't feel as comfortable.

I am continuously amazed by the accomplishments of the other streakers in the group. Thank you for all the inspiration.

LANCE WHEELER'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

I started 2 previous streaks - one ended at 277 days and one at a year and a half, one cut short by injury and one because I simply lost my desire to continue.

On New Year's Day 2018 I ran with my running partner Rhiannon Suchor. We ran again Jan 2 and 3rd. I told her, "may as well continue and see how long we can keep it up." I wanted another streak to stick, to do it right this time.

I was so inspired by Vanessa Antoine, who had run through pregnancy and birth, always positively promoting the sport, and by Craig Davidson who has done so much to encourage others with his streak of nearly 40 years. I moved to Colorado 6 months later and we kept streaking together from a distance, checking in via phone from time to time, holding each other accountable. 4 years later, neither of us will give it up for fear of disappointing the other and having to answer the 'why?'

There are days I'm not motivated, but having an accountability partner helps a great deal and I have never regretted the run, even on days I am not feeling it. When I come back from my run, I always feel better, more motivated, more positive. I've used running to work through some serious life challenges and I've used it to celebrate successes in my life as well.

I've learned so many things about myself and my running ability over the four years. I know when to back off some, when to push myself, when to cross train to avoid injury, and most importantly, how to appreciate the run for what it is.

I have run outside the entire streak. Even the days I would run inside with my running partner in the winter, I always snuck in a mile outside later that day. I have run in temps ranging from -35 to +106, wind, snow, rain, sleet and humidity. I've completed several marathons, several halves, two 50K's and a ton of 5 and 10K races, along with a couple of sprint distance triathlons, half ironman and full iron distance triathlon. Running every day has had such a tremendous impact on all aspects of my life. I turn 55 this year and I feel like a million dollars thanks to running. Streak on!

THERESE NASMAN'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

What started as a 30-day Runstreak challenge on 1st of January 2018 quickly progressed into a lifestyle and a different view on running. I think this is something all runstreakers can confirm, the question "am I going to run today" quickly change to "when am I going to run today?"

The nice part of it, that still after 4 years of running is very evident, is the fact that every day is a win. It does not matter if I run 2km in my Swedish hometown, 100km at a backyard ultra or 65km at ÖtillÖ the swimrun world championships, it is still one more day of running.

We are experiencing all weathers, all emotions, highs and lows together with our Runstreak. This year has been difficult in many ways, but my Runstreak is always there, the trail is always there. Rain or sunshine, with amazing running companions or alone with my thoughts, tears in my eyes or smile on my face.

My work within development cooperation is taking me to some amazing places and my running makes me explore them in ways I would not have if I did not run. Running around the streets of Kigali, the beaches of Lamu, parks in Nairobi or holidays in the Swedish mountains. Old and new trails, exciting and not so exciting places. But always adding one more day of running, one win, another day of me doing something good for me.

The runstreak community is amazing! Keep on running!

As of December 31st, 2021

- First day of streak: December 25th, 2020.
- Distance so far: 1756
- Duration so far: 323 hours

After injury, my running became strong enough to support a streak with the discovery of 80/20 running and a complete slowdown in my training. The streak started on Christmas Day 2020 after a break where I had found it difficult to get started again. I really needed to rebuild the habit to keep up the momentum for future growth.

As a New Year challenge, I decided to run every day in 2021. I didn't expect to complete it, thinking I'd fail to either injury or COVID. I reached the end of my challenge on New Year's Eve 2021 with a Run Streak of 372 days... but I can't stop there!

It's difficult to fathom that running consumed nearly two whole weeks of my life in 2021. Here's to the next 365 days.

ALICIA TROPEA'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

My streak started “accidentally” with a casual comment that “starting tomorrow I'm not going to take a day off for a while” after a long travel day on January 2, 2016. Before I knew it, I was six months in and decided I was going to need a good excuse to take a day off. I clearly haven't had a good enough excuse yet, since I just celebrated 6 years of running at least 2 miles.

As a Michigander, a fair amount of my runs are on the treadmill, but I typically go outside when it's not pouring or slippery. I've never been a coffee drinker, so I refer to my run as my “morning cup of coffee” and usually start my day that way. For years I ran without listening to anything, but in the last year I've discovered audiobooks and it's allowed me to combine my love of books and running!

It always has a positive effect on me and convinces me to continue.

This year's update is of course full of age and Covid-19. Thankfully, I have remained Covid free and am fully vaccinated. My worry was never about isolation and quarantine but more about getting out for a run!

I turned 67 this year and my knee continues to stop longer runs but the daily run has continued. In fact, it has been somewhat easier this year as I've been working from home and can be more creative with my times.

Next January, the streak will be 30 years of consecutive days so there is yet another target!

Finally made it to 10 years running every day!

It's been a journey! Especially this year 2021. Got covid and had to limit my run to 1 mile a day for almost 2 weeks, and right after that I lost my mother too. Been a difficult time this year but was still able to run and clear my head!

In my 3,653 days, I've run 2 marathons and a large number of half marathons! With some 5k, 10k and 10 milers mixed in as well. I have run 16,840 miles in 10 years. Hopefully the next 10 years I have more miles than my 1st 10!

Was able to enjoy my 10 years streak anniversary with friends at a local track! Glad I have so many friends that support me running this crazy streak!

Running Streak Day 1,826 (5 years). In 2017 I started a streak and I wanted to be fast and to be sleek! A lot changed during that year, I moved to NYC and I've made it here!

In 2018 I ran really fast, had a personal record at the New York City Marathon, and even got married. How about that?! But in 2019 I fell and broke my sacrum. It wasn't all bad because we added a little bundle of joy. She also likes to run. Are we surprised about that?! In 2020 a pandemic outbreak and 2021 was much of the same but through it all I ran every day!

Bring on 2022 with a run every day! Each day is an adventure, every mile is an accomplishment and the two blends into a beautiful and incredible journey.

The numbers:

2021 miles 1,303
 Total streak miles 7,660
 1,826 showers
 31,407 gallons of water showering!
 14 1/2 marathons, 3 marathons and a 60k
 and 72 other races!
 For a total of 90 races and 587.6 miles raced!

The photograph was taken in the Mont-aux-Sources area of the Drakensberg Mountain Range in the Province of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa, while I was competing in the 50-kilometer Mont-aux-Sources Challenge in September 1995. The event was an annual fund-raiser for conservation in the region.

The race was usually one of the early steps for local runners to start their training in the build-up to the 56-mile Comrades Marathon that was contested at the end of May.

Despite having undergone a triple heart bypass in November 1988, my annual training plan was to systematically extend my weekly distance to 60/70 miles by the New Year and then further step up to 110/115 miles per week from late February until two weeks before Comrades race day.

I have been running for 43 years; 27 of those years very seriously. Now, however, it is more relaxed; usually around 45 to 90 minutes each day.

KAYLEE WILSON'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My name is Kaylee, I am 12 years old and on December 28th, 2021 I reached 4 years on my running streak, of 1 continuous mile per day. I started my streak one day on vacation in Florida with a nice run with my dad, Trevor Wilson, who is also an active run streaker. I remember my run that day with a time of an 11:02 mile. I enjoyed the run and decided to do the run every day to streak with my Dad.

Since then, more than 90% of my runs have been with my Dad, my younger sister (Sydney) and Mom (Katha) have completed more than 1 year of streaking and my Dad and I have made a goal to run at least a 5k in every state. So far, we have completed just 10 different states but I am looking forward to seeing the rest of the states!

This year I improved my fastest mile time and was able to achieve a 5:56 mile, and extended my longest run so far to (13.1 miles). This year my school was able to do cross-country after being cancelled last year because of COVID. Our girls team even made it to state and my daily running streak really helped me be a competitive runner! I did a lot of good training this year and I know every mile will be worth my while. Good luck on your streak and I look forward too many more years.

SEAN KELLY'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

While I was once a pretty sporty teenager, I'd spent most of my adult life overweight and inactive.

A few years ago, I promised myself that if my kids (I have 5) ever asked me to do something that was in my health interest (eg kick a ball around) I wouldn't say no. A couple years ago, one of my sons, who is a keen runner, was doing a run every day and suggested I give it a go. While he's suffered a couple of injury and setbacks, 2 years later I'm still going, and 20kgs lighter. In the past year I have run over 4,000kms and completed my first marathon (in 3hr:15min).

Running every day has been life changing, but I feel the journey has only just begun.

On January 5th, 2022 I completed the 8th year of my run streak and started the 9th year.

In the last 365 days, I became a Dad running early in the morning before my son was born. I ran my fastest mile ever and set personal bests in the marathon and 100-mile distance. Additionally, I ran a race in Maryland adding another state to my eventual goal of running a race in every state.

My shortest run was just over a mile and the longest was 101 miles. It was perhaps my hardest and most rewarding year of running so far in this streak.

For 2022 I found a great coach who is committed to helping me continue my streak as well as chasing some lofty goals.

ED AUFULDISH JOINS USRSA “Ed ‘Fast Eddie’ Aufuldish is at 4+ years”

I wasn't much of a runner until August 1989. I was at Clemson University working on my masters in Chemical Engineering and the Catholic Church offered all you can eat spaghetti for $1 after mass. That's a pretty good deal for broke college kids! After dinner I had the good fortune to talk to a beautiful young lady. She mentioned that she got up early in the mornings and went for a run. I immediately said I did the same thing and that we should meet for a run. Well we did and 30 seconds into the run she was laughing at me because I was bent over trying to breathe and not throw up. I wasn't a runner, I just wanted to find an excuse to see her again. It must have worked because my wife and I have been happily married for over 30 years and laughter is the cornerstone of our relationship.

I did a couple of 5K races when we lived in Pennsylvania and New York, but I didn't get serious about running until we moved to South Carolina. I decided I wanted to run a marathon before I turned 50. I ran my first half marathon in 2011 when I was 46 and my first marathon when I was 49. (I've now run 2-50k's; 8-marathons; and 21-half marathons).

I started my running streak on December 21, 2017, when a friend from Alabama challenged me to run 500 consecutive days. She set the bar at 1 mile, but at some point I changed it to 2 miles because I thought 1 mile was too easy. Silly me forgot about the day after a 50K or a marathon when you can barely walk.

I've had numerous close calls that put the streak in jeopardy. Once my wife and I were vacationing overseas and had to get up at 3:00am for the return flight home. Due to the time change I planned on running when I got home at 9:00pm, but the puddle jumper into Columbia kept getting delayed so I ended up running 2 miles in the airport dressed in jeans and a t-shirt. A perfectly natural activity for an obsessive runner, but I did get some strange looks.

Another time I got food poisoning and was sicker than a dog. Around 11:00pm I went for a feverish run in the neighborhood. My wife thought I was insane, but I was obsessed with extending the streak.

I've averaged about 2,400 miles a year (~ 6.5 miles a day) since I started streaking.

We have a great running community in Columbia, South Carolina, and I'm a member of the Columbia Running Club and the Team Utopia South racing team.

Look me up if you're traveling through South Carolina and come #RunWithEd.

SIJMEN MULDER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Entering the third year of my one-year streak now! I'm happy to have not met any real obstacles this year other than my habit of putting off my runs until the very last moment. One time when visiting friends, it was already 23:30 when I hadn't run yet and ended up running home in my every day clothes – pushing my wife in a wheelchair!

Another memorable run was in February when a cold snap hit the Netherlands. I was wholly unprepared for that kind of weather and the thick snow but stubbornly proceeded with my long run attempt. It took very long, and I stopped twice at family to warm up, but it was great fun.

In September I joined running club AV NEA Volharding. Translated, the name stands for "Useful and Pleasant," the latter of which speaks for the founders' sense of humor. But admittedly, running together on a smooth track and making friends beats being out there in traffic alone.

Here's to another year, good luck everyone!

WINSTON PLOWES' STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My streak has grown into a four-year adventure now. A short streak by the standards of many but impossibly long for others to comprehend including me when I first started and I like that running is so relative.

Recently I have completed 10,000km of running and The David Goggins Challenge, then came trying to run through COVID and in isolation between my neighbors plastic greenhouse and my shed, 180 repeats each day to reach my personal daily minimum of 3km.

This week Debbie Martin Consani won the women's winter spine race which many consider the hardest race here in the UK. Her philosophy was not to be overly positive or negative and beat herself up, but to be happy and content in each moment of her journey with a neutral mindset and see where that took her. I like this viewpoint and combine it with my own especially in these past two years to keep moving forward, however slowly and look forward to year 5 and beyond.

Happy running everyone whatever your road.

ALASTAIR RUSSELL'S STREAK HITS 13 YEARS

4748 days straight [17 January 2022].

Friends ask how I know exactly how many days in a row my streak has been going. Well, I've had plenty of time to think about it.

This year gone, I've progressed to 13 years in a row and those same friends have stopped asking when I'll pack it in.

About 18 months ago, after I'd mostly recovered from some nagging ill health, I decided to up the miles and get a bit more serious again. I had been doing a bunch of 2km runs which frankly is an excuse to jog round the block in your pajamas at 11:45pm.

So, I started a sub-streak of 4-mile minimums. In November of 2020 with lockdown limiting my social life, I increased that to 5 miles. So, by 24th November 2021 I had kept it up for a year. I've modified things downwards to a 5k minimum which is the first time in a decade I've voluntarily stopped any kind of streak. It felt strange but oddly empowering.

I am planning a half marathon in March and that's one reason why I've tried to modify my training a little. I want to do some longer stuff and some speed work which is difficult when you're my age and you're already committed to running 5 miles every day. So, the shorter distance is much more manageable and doesn't leave me feeling my age quite so much. The main reason for my racing comeback is so I can raise money to support a foundation set up by one of my dearest friends. He lost his son to suicide in October 2019 and the carnage that's resulted has made me motivated to help in some way. My friend is in fact walking the length of the UK mainland in April and if you want to contribute you're likely to find details under the Twitter handle #onemanwalkingamilliontalking

After the Bath half and walking some of the Land's End to John O'Groats route, I'm maybe going to have one last summer racing season to see how close I can get to all those PRs from my 40s.

DAVID SHANNON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

A refreshing winter's breeze greeted us on tonight's [19 January 2022] five-mile run. Two friends and a dog kept me company. We also got to see the Wolf Moon rising over a lake. The temperature was just above 0 and the wind chill a tolerable -11 (Fahrenheit).

This run marked 731 straight days or two years without missing a day. Total streak miles of 4,551 or an average of a bit over 6 miles per day. During this streak I was able to complete fourteen live races, including four marathons and five ultra-marathons. I just need another 515 days to reach my longest running streak.

EDEL MARIE STORAUNET'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Today [19 January 2022] I ran my runstreakday 1460, in snow, wind and moonlight. I ran with my dog and talked to my daughter on my phone, every day since January 20 2018, I have run at least one mile, mostly more. My passion is ultrarunning, but I haven't run any race since the covid-pandemic. My runstreak motivates me to be active and I am proud about motivating friends to run and be physical active in their everyday life.

I do not know how long my runstreak will last, but I know that as long as it makes me feel well, I will still be going on. My four years old runstreak will hopefully grow to five. I sometimes think of what's going to stop me, I hope it will not be because of injury, but I know the day will come, that I feel it's right to end. This day is not today and either not tomorrow. Thank you.

ALEX MILLER'S STREAK HITS 9 YEARS

Greetings from Germany! I am currently serving in the US Air Force in Kaiserslautern, Germany. I am happy to say my streak is still going strong. I am now starting my 10th year of streaking. In 2021, I had my highest mileage year yet: 1,471.3 miles! I also had a 62.5 mile run in there, with some streak savers as well. My streak gives me motivation and purpose each day, despite the challenges that life throws at me.

This year has started a bit rough though, as I have torn cartilage between my ribs from a Hockey game, but I am taking my daily runs easy as I heal. I am happy to be a part of this community!

RENE VARELA'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

This day didn't seem possible 3 years ago. At that point, I was stressed, 70 pounds heavier, pretty defeated, and thinking my most active days were behind me. Thanks to the urging of a friend and stalker, I began my streak full of hope 3 years ago.

My wife and kids cheered me on every step of the way. Through steak saver miles, multiple injuries early on, random jaunts on vacations, and ever-increasing mileage, they were there to encourage to keep going.

On this journey, I've gone from 1-mile long slogs, the 5ks, 10ks, 10 milers, half marathons, and now 3 marathons (with 5 more planned this year!). And my speed and endurance are improving gradually.

Today [22 January 2022] I'm filled for incredible gratitude for the ability to run and the confidence that every day is another chance to have the best run of my life! I'm excited to see what tomorrow's run brings. See you all out there!

CORINNE MCGUE'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

Today [23 January 2022] marks the completion of my 6th year of running every day and also the beginning of my 7th! My streak has been filled with a bit of adversity, much adventure and mostly, infinite joy!

Some of the "highlights" include running during a blizzard in Michigan, on the beach on Hilton Head Island during a tropical storm, running through the smoke of the 2018 California wildfires, a 6 mile tour of Phoenix Sky Harbor Airport (one of my favorites!), after losing my entire big toenail to a hotel room door sweep in rural Texas (so fortunate to have found an urgent care facility!), temperatures in the Desert up to 118, and also with a concussion (post hospital check-up/MRI). As a good friend of mine (a West Point grad) mused, "Streaks are powerful." When the day portends an all-day, cold rain, the question is not, "Should I run?" but rather, "When will I run?"

Short of my airport run, all runs have been out of doors, rain or shine, and for an hour or 6 miles give or take. When the mood strikes, I often find myself running miles beyond my usual 6 without prior planning.

As a result of a shared love of travel integral to the life I share with my running husband, Mike, I have enjoyed the pure pleasure of running in the majority of states, coast to coast, including Hawaii, in this great country of ours. Thanks to technology we are often able to find hotels located in areas more conducive to friendly, safe running than not. There is nothing like the delightful discovery of a running trail accessible from the front door of our hotel to put a smile on this runner's face! These "windfall" discoveries add so much pleasure to the infinite list of compelling reasons for a daily run.

I do not run competitively or in a club. I run either with my husband, and fellow life-long runner, or solo. Everyone has their particular running preferences; I run for the pure enjoyment of being outside, in the environment, with no more music than that of the birds.

I could not leave out the role of the pandemic and how especially vital my daily runs have been to staying both physically and mentally fit during these past crazy, two years. I lost my mom to Covid, prior to the vaccine, and I depended so heavily on the reliable continuity of knowing that, no matter what comes my way, my daily run was there to provide the stability to keep me sustained.

While I know that there are no guarantees for future injury-free runs, I am grateful, beyond words, for the health and joy that running brings to all aspects of my world and will continue to focus on enjoying each run one day at a time!

MELISSA WILLIAMS' STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

6 years ago today, January 22nd, my 2-year old Son and I were discharged from a 4 night stay at Radys when he had RSV, pneumonia and bronchiolitis. As soon as we got home, I was so excited for fresh air so I put my 2 boys in the BOB stroller and they slept while I ran 5 miles.

I have run at least 1 mile every day since that day with today being day 2,192. I have run through full time work, stress, travel, illness, kids sports, post appendectomy in September and now most recently the big, bad virus.

Thankful every day for the ability to do what literally soothes my soul.

6.2 miles this morning for 6 years!

RYAN REESE'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Three years! So much like many of the stories I've read of my fellow streak runners out there, I started out with a goal of one month, and here I am at three years.

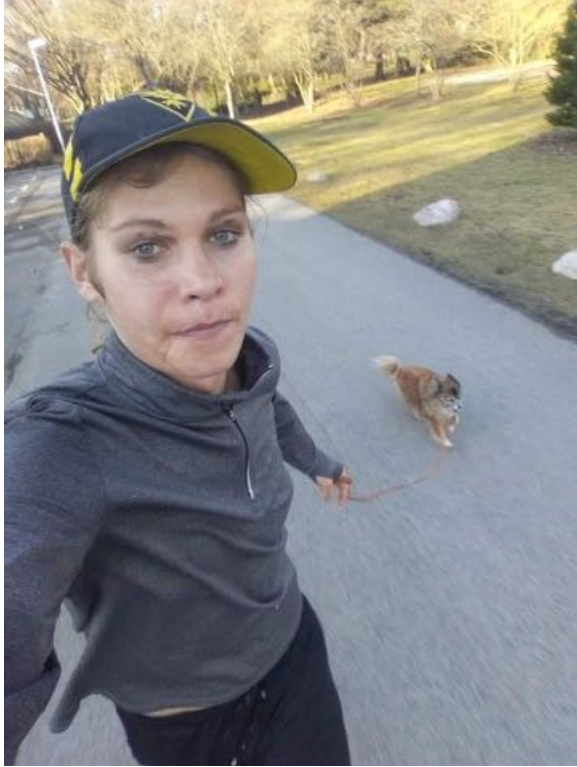

I'd like to thank Sam Mason, whose streak is over four years right now, for bringing me into this wild and growing community.

In my three years, I've run in 10 states for close to 5,000 miles. I've run outside in temperatures below zero and over 100 degrees. I've run when I've felt great and when I've had a fever of 102.

It's been a great way to keep myself grounded and centered each day, and I'm excited for year four to begin!

JIMMY LINDBERG'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Last year I broke the unofficial Swedish record for longest distance run in a year by running 16 754km (10 410 Miles) and it felt awesome to maintain my runstreak throughout the year. No illness and only some minor injuries from my extreme mileage.

This year I am going to be focusing on running faster and perhaps even enter a few races. I haven't raced since I was 20, which is almost nine years ago.

My daily running will continue, hopefully my dog Kia can maintain her runstreak as well, she's getting up there now, she turned eleven recently.

KEVIN OLIVER'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

Passed the 7-year mark on 12/31/2021.

In addition to the everyday "streak," I went with a unique twist for 2021. The "streak within the streak." Every Saturday I logged a half marathon distance of 13.1 miles for 52 consecutive Saturdays.

Like the daily streak that contains scores of memories and stories along the journey, the "streak within the streak" has had the same results.

Finished the year with 2100 miles run and a sense of accomplishment and an excitement for year number 8!

NELSON OHL'S STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

I was wondering what I could possibly add to the immense collective knowledge of this group, and it just dawned on me that all of those runs before I started my streak, also mattered, a lot. I couldn't appreciate until recently that in retrospect those times when I laced up and went out there feeling like an imposter, not even knowing what a streak was, that I was planting seeds of inspiration.

By wondering if I belonged, or had the right shoes and shorts, or if I was fast enough, I've come to the conclusion that I was participating in a typical journey of a life-long learner. Learning how to fit into my own shoes so to speak. And after six years, I'm a little more confident that putting one foot in front of the other, is simply just how most things get done!

Streaking on, one day at a time.

SOMER TREAT'S STREAK HITS 14 YEARS

My streak has continued into year 14...which means I had my 5,000th run in September this year...which I celebrated by running 5,000 vertical feet on a trail I love in Glacier Park (5000 for 5000 seemed like a good benchmark to set!). I also bought myself a new ring which I will wear every day and know (for myself) what this commitment to running has meant to me...it's my longest relationship at the moment!! When I think about what it would be like to not run someday I will look at my hand and think...I have come this FAR... I can't stop now!

I've been favoring my left leg for quite a while, causing hip and knee issues and the final straw is diagnosed as a Medial Head Gastrocnemius Tear. My doctor (as well as my Chiropractor) tried to work with me but yesterday she said it's not going to heal if I'm running.

PAUL HYMERS' STREAK HITS 6 YEARS

I'm still streaking. Like everyone else, there's been a few close shaves this year to keep the steak alive due to travel restrictions and the pandemic. However, the time when I was forced to run hundreds of shuttles in a small living room helped me realize how much I still love running every day.

SARAH CURETON'S STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Celebrating 5 years was quite the milestone. Like usual, I went for my run, got in a few miles and spent time with my family.

The past few years, like others, my running streak has been critical for maintaining my mental health. I am a high school science teacher, head coach, mother of two and a wife. The simplicity of spending a period of time each day being physically active has helped my mental clarity immensely.

I am grateful to have maintained my streak this long, it has become a very deliberate priority, something my loved ones support and encourage. I love that my children (8 and 5) have spent most of their lives with this as a daily occurrence, as they grow they develop a deeper understanding of the dedication the streak requires and that makes me proud. I look forward to new challenges as my streak progresses, the possibility of traveling this upcoming year and once again running on foreign soil.

KATHRINE BERGKVIST'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It started in December 2019 when I was watching Swedish news show in the morning and they talked about Runstreak. My boyfriend said, "that's something for you to try." Because I didn't like running, I did run a little but mostly in the spring/summer.

We went on a trip in January 2020 and we got covid-19.

After a few weeks, I thought why not start, let's give it a try for a week. So, on the 7th of February 2020, I did my first run!

I've had knee and back problems so I didn't have much of expectations because my knees always were hurting when I've been running before.

But the more I ran the less pain I got! Pushing myself to run the day after a longer run made my knees building itself up.

I'm so proud of my body and how strong you can be if you just decide to do it.

My goal turned from 7 days to 30 days to 100 days to 1 year to 2 years, and now I'm just going to keep running as long as I can.

It's been my two healthiest years for as long as I can remember, though it almost ended in December 2021 because of stomach flu. I haven't been sick since the start!

So, from me to you, start running and you will be stronger, less sick, and happier with yourself than ever before

TIM MCLEAN'S STREAK HITS 10 YEARS

Tomorrow [11 February 2022] marks the 10-year anniversary of my running streak. By coincidence, my wife and I were in Charlotte NC to attend a Bobcats/ Clippers game. I ran that morning, as a part of my usual weight lifting workout, and haven't missed a day since. I challenged myself that day to run every day for a week. After completing the week-long streak, the self-challenge turned into a month, then a year, and so on.

My minimum was 2 miles during the first year and a half. I increased my minimum to 3 miles during the fall of the second year. I upped it to 4 and then 5 miles the following two years, respectively, and have run at least 5 miles every day since.

I've run in pouring rain, on snow and ice, and in temperatures as low as 17 degrees. I've run through downtown Brooklyn, including over the bridge and back; in Memorial and Herman Parks in Houston, throughout the National Mall and government district areas in Washington D.C.; and many other notable cities and sites.

I've been extremely fortunate (i.e., blessed) that any little nagging pain or very rare sickness, as well as any adverse weather conditions, never impeded me from getting my run in. I thank God every day for keeping me safe and injury free. I appreciate each and every run and never take for granted what I've been blessed to do.

On January 16th I completed the Carlsbad 1/2 Marathon (see photo). It was nice to return to racing again after two years of dealing with Covid restrictions. Virtual racing is just not the same.

I am working on my third running streak and have now reached 5 years. My first streak lasted over 35 years, so I have a long way to go to match that one! This sport has been very good to me. Injuries have been few and far between. Running in moderation and stretching have worked well for me. Best wishes to all of you who are returning to competition!

KAREN PREWITT JOINS USRSA

My name is Karen Prewitt, from Jacksonville FL. Married 33 years in May, with a total of four children. I've been running since I found middle school track (a long time ago!). I started doing road races when I moved to Jacksonville and have been doing them on and off since 1988. I've had a number of streaks in my lifetime but none as long as my current streak which will be four years on March 21st.

Running has seen me through a lot of difficult times. I run as much for the mental and emotional benefit as I do for the physical health benefits. What I'm most proud of though is passing my love of running on to our youngest son, Caleb, who happens to have Down syndrome. He is 14 and has completed a number of road races and is the youngest person with Ds to complete a full sprint triathlon. He inspires me daily. We love running together and I hope he continues to love running as much as I do.

JULIANNE DALEY JOINS USRSA

My now retired streak began on August 31, 1986 when I returned from a 6-week bicycle trip in Europe. I ran pretty much every day before that date, but started keeping track on 8/31/86. The streak started because I thought that if I didn't run one day because of the weather or used some other excuse, the weather could be worse the next day or something else could interfere the next day. I figured that there really was no reason to not go running.

The streak ended because I did go out under less than optimal weather conditions. I had already run for 45 minutes on Christmas Eve morning, 2017 after a winter ice storm. The roads were actually in pretty good shape. However, when I saw a car coming up the road, I figured that I'd better get out of the way. One small step to my right and my foot hit ice hidden under some snow. Down I went onto my left knee which ended up fractured. Oh, if only I could take back that fraction of a second. Up to that point and still, I always run outdoors, preferably in the woods especially in winter (I make my own trails with snow shoes to avoid running on potentially icy roads). No ice storm is going to stop me for good.

My current streak began on July 1, 2018, 6 months and a week after my injury. I tried to "run" with my crutches in the dining room the day after my injury; however, only my right leg was actually running. But I didn't stop moving. I was able to use a stationary bicycle right after the injury (right leg only) and then headed outside on my bike 5 months out with both legs able to pedal. I've made some adjustments in what I wear; that is, I almost always wear grippers on my running shoes and knee pads if it's icy.

I've truly treasured my days of running on this second streak knowing what it was like to be forced to stop. People used to always ask me during my first streak, what I would do if I couldn't run. I would always say, "Don't worry about me. Worry about the people I live with." In reality, that wasn't the case. I wasn't grumpy or miserable. I just did everything I could to stay physically strong and was thankful for my husband and pets for taking good care of me during that time.

I've always been an early morning runner and especially love the solitude and peace of running.

Over the years, I've run more races than I can remember, including eight marathons and numerous summer biathlon races all over the northeast.

I currently run only one race a year, the Grahamtastic Connection 5K, to support a great organization that provides free technology to children who can't be in school due to illness.

I coached high school cross-country for five years and have become lifelong friends with many of those kids I coached.

My current goal is to break my own streak which I will achieve on Oct. 26, 2049. I'll be 87 years old. I am sure I can do it!

TRAVIS SHRADER JOINS USRSA

I started a streak in 2019, just to do something during the annual December pig out. I lasted a good 70 days into 2020, but dislocated my shoulder and had to pause. After recovering from shoulder surgery in late 2020, I started my streak in February of last year.

Although being a newer streak runner, I've had a great year with the Speedgoat 50k, countless runners with friends and neighbors and I've put in a mile in 9 different states so far. I've also had some hilarious 'regular clothes' runs just to keep the streak alive. It's been fun and weird, but I'm excited to see how long it will last!

Maybe I'll see you out there on the roads,

TRACY VALDEZ'S STREAK HITS 2,000 DAYS "RUN STREAK DAY 2,000!!!!!!!"

Yes, all caps. 2K days of running one mile minimum with no stopping is worthy of all caps. I have many thoughts about achieving this milestone and you know I'm going to share every last one of them with you!

First some stats (I am a very nerdy accountant, after all):

Start date: 12/29/2015 – I signed up to do the Run The Year Challenge in 2016 and I thought why not start running 2 days early so I don't die on day one. Thus, the reason for the random start date.

Total Miles (running and walking) – 12,085. The first year I did RTY I only counted 'intentional' miles so it's actually a little more than that, but I didn't start tracking total daily mileage until 2017.

Number of States I've run in during this streak: 12 – I almost said 11 but I forgot to include my favorite – Hawaii!!

I did NOT have any intention of running for this many days in a row when I started. I had done a couple mini streaks with my running cousin but never ever thought I would be going this many days for this one.

Some days it is a pain in the ass to have to do my one miler, but for the most part, it's not even something I think about anymore. It's just something I have to do every day, like brushing my teeth.

I have said this many times over the last 5 ½-ish years – I have no good reason to stop! I have been extremely blessed to be relatively healthy and injury-free. I have had some minor and (maybe not so minor) issues including a couple episodes of plantar fasciitis, blisters, a few colds here and there and the worst one, by far, was my bout of shingles. That one sucked. It was pretty painful to run. Not gonna lie, I felt like the Tin Man. My joints and whole body ached. My husband was laid out in bed for a week when he had the shingles, so I guess I'm made of sterner stuff lol. With that being said, I know run streaks aren't for everybody and you should always listen to your body and not cause any greater injuries to yourself.

I am so extremely grateful and thankful for all of the wonderful support I've had along the way – my husband, Geoffy and kiddos Alaina and Samantha – I know my crazy running takes up a lot of time and I truly appreciate the love and support you've given me on this journey.

My momma, of course, who never fails to make me feel like the luckiest daughter in the world (my pops, too, but in a Hispanic dad can't really say too much way).

My bro, Terry, who I love mucho. My BFFs Laura & Melanie who I know are always there for me.

My #1 favorite running cousin, Annette, who has no doubt run more miles than I have during this time because you run twice as fast as me these days! I love our adventures and laughs and look forward to more. I could go on and on listing my tribe.

There are so many of you who have offered encouragement and love along the way. Thank you to all of you from the bottom of my heart. Your words pick me up when I'm down and lift my turtle self forward to run another mile for another day.

I started this journey on 12/29/15 with a (bad) poem, so I guess it's time for another one.
Ode to my 2K Run Streak

Who runs for two thousand days straight? I do, that's who. Time of day doesn't matter, could be early or late.

Every single day. Every.Single.Day. Care to join me so you too can slay? You need willpower, resolve and grit. You need determination and something inside that will just not let you quit. Like ever. Forever maybe? Never say never. Can't stop. Won't stop.

KATRIN OIEN JOINS SRI FROM NORWAY

I'm from Trondheim in central Norway and I started running in 2013. I participated in my first 4k terrain race, and I came in second last and thought I was going to die. I was a summer runner for two years, but in 2015 I signed up for a gym so I could run during the winter as well. Now I am not so frightened by snow and change between running inside and outside all year, and use the gym for more controlled workouts and really bad weather. I have progressed from the back of the pack in races to above average. In 2018 I did my first marathon, and in 2020/2021 I have moved more and more towards ultras.

I started my runstreak after reading in social media about a woman who had an eight-year long streak. I always thought you needed a day of or week to rest. Dec 30th in 2020 was my last rest day.

Running gives me great opportunities to experience the places I go to in a different way than my travel companions do. I have also met so many great people, and seen some great performances first hand. I have been bitten by a doberman. That was not very funny. And done a 5k after a 25k hike in mountains. That was hard. And seen beautiful sunrises in Lisbon. That was priceless.

It's really true that you move from a mindset of thinking IF I will be able to run today, to WHEN will I be able to run. And that the cost of breaking the streak is bigger than to just go for that run. I usually run around 7-12k, normally 5k is my minimum, but exceptions can be made if the circumstances demands it.

Looking forward to be a part of the runstreak community!

JOHN SIRAGUSA JOINS USRSA

I have been running about 40 years but never did a 'the streak' until now. Possibly with Covid shutting down races and when one day last February, I noticed on my Garmin, I had strung 10 or so runs together, was probably the catalyst. After the first couple consecutive weeks of running, I decided to stay with it as long as I could. I did some reading on the USRSA and made a goal to hit 365 days and all outdoors. Living in Florida helped! On 2-11-22 the goal was reached.

I will attest to the fact it's not easy, it takes dedication and a little luck, and that's only at 1 yr. Hats off to the many 'streakers' with multiple years. At the ripe old age of 64, a long-term streak is probably a long shot but I'm sticking with it, one day at a time. I've had many good years of running and racing and seen many new places, meet other runners on this continent and others by lacing them up and hitting the ground running.

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

Celebrating 5-year streaking anniversaries has long been a tradition of our association and this newsletter. Our founders, John and Dawn Strumsky, first acknowledged separately under the heading “Streaking Anniversaries” athletes who moved into a new 5-year category in Issue #9 published in Spring 2003. That issue celebrated the 5-year anniversaries of Charles Brumley (25), Larry Baldasari (25), Timothy Woodbridge (25), Jay Kammerzell (20), and Roger Carlson (15). I continued the “Streaking Anniversaries” tradition when I became the association’s manager in 2011. In my first newsletter as editor that summer, we acknowledged three athletes who reached their 5-year anniversaries during the last quarter: Steve DeBoer (40), Ronald Shealy (10), and James Bates (5).

From those humble beginnings, our “Streaking Anniversaries” section has taken on a life of its own. This issue celebrates the 5-year anniversaries of over 200 athletes covering every 5-year range from 5 years to 50 years. We also have featured stories on the top three athletes on our streak anniversary list this quarter. Our cover story features Alex Galbraith, who started his streak on 22 December 1971 and who became the 5th person in the world to maintain a running streak for 50 years (see page 7). This newsletter also has featured stories on John Liepa (streak started 2 January 1977; see page 11) and Bill Robertson (streak started 8 February 1977; see page 13), who became the 13th and 14th athletes in the world to surpass the 45-year running streak mark. Congratulations to Alex, John, and Bill on their amazing accomplishments and to all those celebrating a streaking anniversary this quarter.

The huge growth in “Streaking Anniversaries” is, of course, part of the overall upward trend we are experiencing in running streaks registered with our association. Our first newsletter that was published in April 2001 listed just 113 active and 16 retired streaks all in the United States. The first newsletter I edited in the Summer 2011 (Issue #42) our active list had only grown to 275 streaks and our retired list numbered 181 streaks again all in the United States. Today, our running streak association lists more than 5,500 active and retired streak from daily runners in 66 countries.

We have also witnessed a significant increase in our membership in recent years. For example, last year we welcomed the most new members for a single year – 372 – that surpassed the previous membership record of 277 that we set in 2020. To give you an idea of how significant our membership growth was in 2021, our running streak association recorded our first four members (Robert Ray, Margaret Blackstock, George Hancock, and John Strumsky) on 21 November 2000 and would not record our 372nd member (our 2021 total) until Roger Urbancsik, of Marina Del Rey, California joined our association over a decade later on 2 July 2011. Thank you to all our new members and thank you to all our members who have supported our running streak association over the years.

Mr. Urbancsik, by the way, is an amazing athlete who surpassed 200,000 lifetime miles on 2 October 2021. He also has compiled various lists of racing times for our streakers and is very helpful to our association in spotting streaks that are listed two or more times. In that regard, please only “Create an Account” once and make any updates to that account by clicking “Update account information” on our home page. If you have opened an extra account or listed your streak more than once, please let us know at USRSA@yahoo.com so that we can correct the problem. Thank you!

Returning to our rapid growth, while a positive sign, has been a challenge to us in publishing all the streaks from our active and retired lists with each newsletter. For example, our last newsletter (Winter 2021-2022) filled 48 pages for our active list and another 21 pages for our retired list using a very small font size. We do have size constraints in sending our newsletter through our service so you will find our active list scaled back starting with this newsletter to only include rank, name, streak start date, state, and country. All the other data we used to post - city, age, and occupation – can still be found on our website along with the current streak day/year that changes daily. While our retired list remains unchanged, the data we publish in the newsletter will probably be scaled back in the near future as our retired list also continues to mushroom in size.

As for me during the last quarter, my running and health experienced some highs and lows. The highs centered around my return to in-person racing. I competed in some New Jersey state team races and this year placed second in my age group in the 2021 USA Track & Field - New Jersey (USATF-NJ) Long Distance Running Grand Prix competition. This year's competition consisted of the highest point totals from eight races ranging from a mile to a half marathon in an abbreviated competition due to the pandemic. While I have competed in this New Jersey state-wide race competition for many years, 2021 is my first time for winning an overall award for placing in the top three in my age group.

I have also been busy on the marathon front and have now completed 40 marathons since first running the 26.2-mile distance at the 1985 New Jersey Waterfront Marathon. My marathon count also includes qualifying for and completing the last 17 Boston Marathons (the last two were run virtually). I have been accepted for the 2022 Boston Marathon and qualified for 2023 so I hope to keep the Boston streak going for at least another couple of years. In other marathon news, I completed the 2021 Philadelphia Marathon in November and achieved one of my goals of completing a marathon in under 4 hours for the last 5 decades. Here is the list of my fastest-time marathons for the decade from the 1980s to the 2020s: 1985 New Jersey Waterfront Marathon 3:32:44; 1990 Washington, D.C. Marine Corp Marathon 3:29:41; 2004 Scranton Steamtown Marathon 3:23:13 (Personal Record); 2010 Boston Marathon 3:33:59; and 2021 Philadelphia Marathon 3:56:39.

I also ended 2021 on a high note by completing year 32 of my running streak (started 31 December 1989). I also started 2022 on another high note by winning my age at the Westfield, New Jersey Hangover Run on New Year's Day. On 11 January 2022, I completed Day 11,700 for my streak and celebrated the day by posting this ditty on my Facebook page:

I'm in ELEVEN SEVEN hundred HEAVEN,
At half past SEVEN, On this very cold January ELEVEN,
With the wind chill showing a few degrees below SEVEN,
And temperatures in Fahrenheit just above ELEVEN,
I ran a hilly course that in miles measured SEVEN,
And if converted to kilometers would be a little longer than ELEVEN.

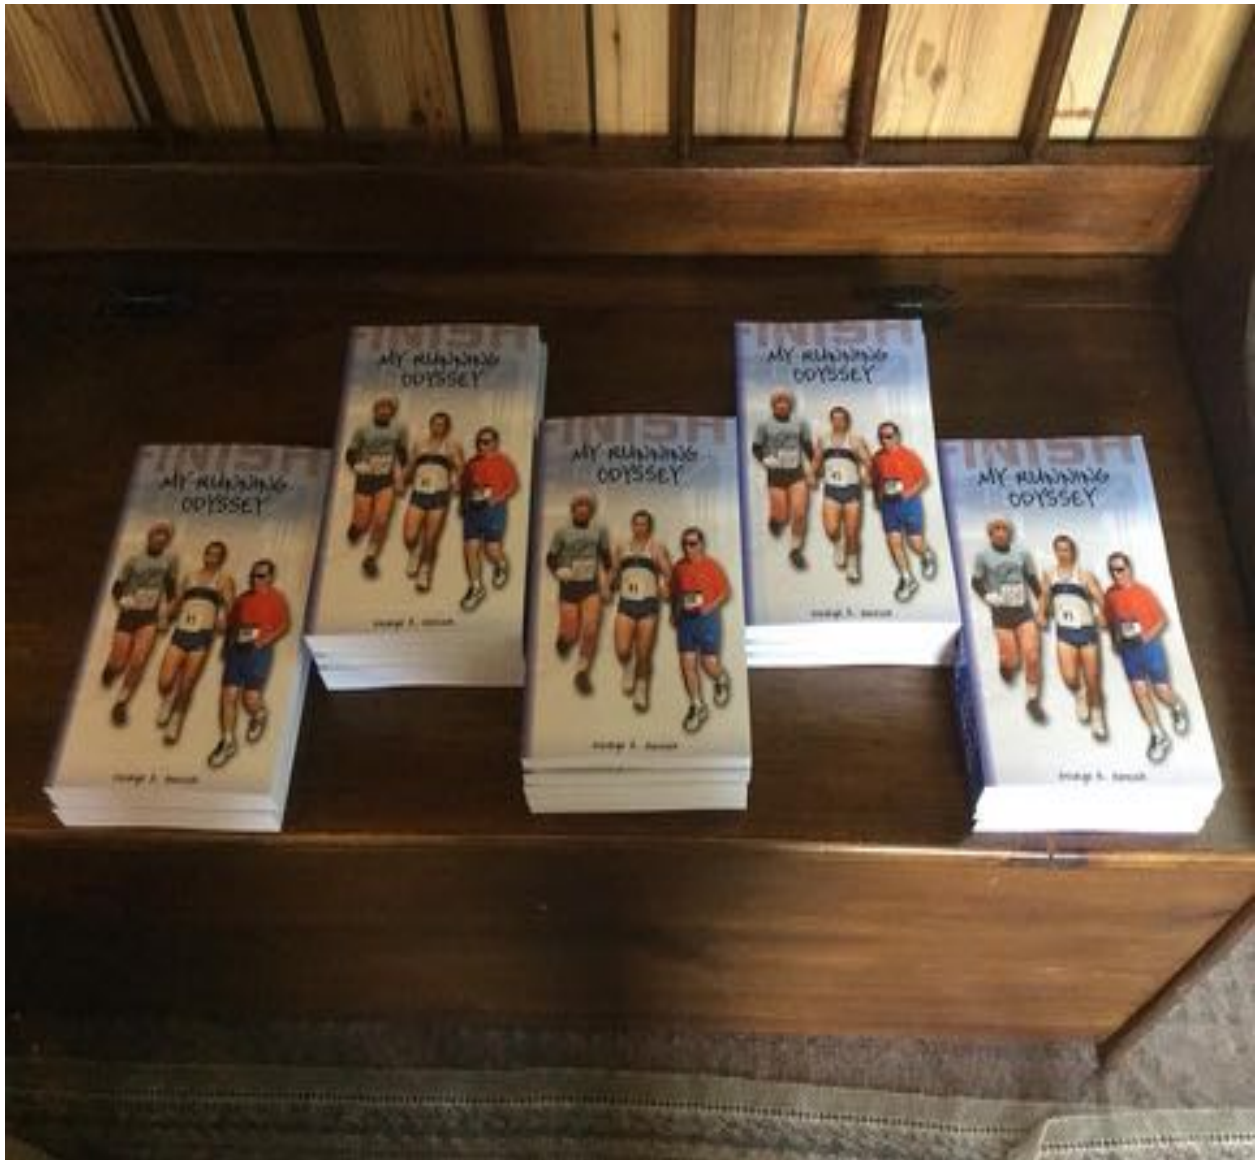

Four days after my 11,700 post, my luck changed. I first noticed I was a little off on Saturday night, January 15, when I had stomach issues and had difficulty eating dinner. I initially thought I had food poisoning since I was not coughing or had lung issues that you might associate with a more serious virus. The stomach issues continued throughout the week, however, so I decided to get tested on Friday, January 21, to rule out Covid-19. I received my positive results the next day.

Luckily, I received my initial Pfizer vaccination shots in March 2021, received my Pfizer booster shot in November, and my symptoms were relatively minor compared to others. I did have one scary moment on the Saturday morning run (January 22) before I received my positive results. I was at mile 4.67 of a 7-mile loop that I had run hundreds of times but felt exhausted that day. The next thing I know I fainted and was on the ground. Fortunately, my wife, Diane, was there and was able to drive me home. I felt light headed at other times, vomited a few times, but my symptoms did not require hospitalization or even calling my doctor.

My minimum distance for my streak is 3-miles a day and I did record some of my slowest runs at that distance over the next couple of weeks. My running streak, however, is still active. I even kept up my streak of never calling in sick for work since becoming a teacher in 1992. Although, in that case, I taught my college history courses remotely from my home for one week in late January.

In any case, Covid is no joke. If you have not already, please get yourself vaccinated and boosted. I am glad I did so that could continue to run the roads and trails – every day – with you. Good luck on your journey.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
