RAMBLING ROADS: Road Races --George A. Hancock runnergah@comcast.net

[Editors note: The below article originally appeared in the February issue of Runner's Gazette and is reprinted here with permission from that newspaper.]

I began my road racing career in 1976. My first road race was the second Greater Johnstown Marathon and 10K. I finished that Saturday morning October 1, 1976 10K in 40:22.

The race was fun. I learned numerous racing and pacing strategies that Autumn morning.

My road running career began in 1973. I ran high school track from 1968 through graduation in 1971. Running had slipped away after graduation and during my early undergraduate days at the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown.

1973 found me with some extra time following the conclusion of my second year at UPJ. There were part-time jobs, grass cutting and trimming chores in the neighborhood but still extra time. So, one Spring day I resumed running near the UPJ campus and Richland School District grounds. I began on the high school track. Then, I progressed to the cross country course and the local roads.

I ran every day. There were no issues. Some local runner gave me some great tips. And by the start of the Fall 1973 academic term this reborn runner was cranking out 36 mile weeks. Running 6 miles a day without pressure or persistent heavy duty coaching was huge in my development as a road runner. I ran for fun and fitness. And the rest is history.

I completed 483 races in that 1976 to 2015 time span. The race distances covered races from the 5K to the marathon. This writer was a decent road racer. My persistent dedicated daily training yielded significant results.

My marathon PR was 2:48:02. This time was set on the 1981 Johnstown Marathon course. Then, in 1983 a 2:48:26 was run on the same Johnstown course. Of course, the most memorable marathon was my 1984 Boston run. I completed that historic course in 2:58:55 on a damp chilly day. Boston's last mile and the finish line crowd were incredible.

My other PR's included a 58:24 ten mile run, a 26:39 5-mile run, a 34:33 10K and a 18:16 5K. I also ran a 33:26 10K on a downhill point to point course. That finishing time sounds impressive but I placed 16th overall.

There were several other significant achievements in my road racing years. I ran every Greater Johnstown YMCA Marathon/10K race from 1976 through 2013. Also, I finished 23 out of the 25 Windber 5-mile runs and 28 of the 30 Portage Labor Day 10K road races.

Some fellow runners believe the most significant achievement was my first ever road race win in 2008 at age 55. I won the first Wings of Hope 5K road race in 21:15. Crossing the finish line in first place was a huge thrill. Four more first place victories occurred in the next several years.

There were numerous top five finishers over the years. Even today this wily runner is a consistent age group winner. Unfortunately, the oldest finisher title is frequently earned too.

So, why are all these words here about my road racing history? Well, it's time. After careful deliberation and serious study, I decided to "retire" from road racing. 39 years racing on the roads is enough. I leave our road racing sport healthy, lean and fit. Far too many of my running friends stopped racing due to injuries. My road racing career ends on a high note.

Of course, my daily run continues. Numerous group fun runs over various distances no doubt will take place and perhaps even hosted by this road guy.

The running muses and stories continue. The written word continues to flow from this veteran runner. I'm writing for three different newspapers these days. The only thing ending is the road racing.

Will I miss road racing? Nah, it's time to move on. A new running journey beckons. Run smart! I'll see you on the roads. Wave!

Member Update from George Hancock

Greetings from Greater Johnstown, PA. My second running streak continues. My first running steak ran from 2/26/1978 through 5/24/2002. That streak reached 24 years and 88 days. My second running streak began on 6/22/2002 and continues.

I decided at the end of 2015 to "retire" from road racing. My road racing career began in 1976. I retired lean, healthy and fit. Nearly all my racing friends ended their racing careers due to various physical ailments and injuries. I decided to end on a higher note. Three months into 2016 and I have no regrets about my decision.

Bored? Anxious? Worried? No, I write for four different newspapers now. My writing career with the Runner's Gazette dates back to 1986. I have literally thousands of publishing credits. Nearly every article or column has a running theme. There is so much to see out on the road. I'll never run out of writing topics. Of course, every writer believes there is a book or two in them. That endeavor continues too.

I am also seriously considering retiring from the University of Pittsburgh at Johnstown (Registrar's Office) at the end of this calendar year. I have 42 years in the work force. Unfortunately, outside forces could influence a quicker retirement departure.

Pennsylvania has not passed any state appropriations for the state related universities. Pitt has a current $147 million dollar budget shortfall. Pitt is now 8 months without any state appropriations. We are in uncharted waters. No one knows what might happen this Spring.

My daily run continues. The road is long. The weather is always a factor. The stories are endless. The characters are fascinating. Running and writing keep me busy. See you on the road!

GEORGE HANCOCK RETURNS TO ROAD RACING

I decided upon further review to resume road races just being very selective about which races to run. I ran a local 5K Saturday morning [May 7, 2016] (their 33rd annual event), finished 13th overall, and won the 60 & over age group by one minute and something. I easily could run 6 to 10 races this year.

The reason: Many, many runners contacted me and said instead of retiring I should just cut back and be very selective in my road races. Other advice: race only between April and November; try to run no more than one race per month; do your homework - run races that records, tallies results, or uses a timing service to record your finishing time and place. So, I'm back road racing. Now at 43 year as a road runner nearing that 99,000 mile mark and 40 years as a road racer.

CRAIG SNAPP'S AND DEBBIE CICCATI'S STREAKS END AFTER 6,583 DAYS

[Editor's note: April 2016 was an historic month for Craig Snapp and Debbie Ciccati. Not only did their streaks hit 18 years but also eight days later those same streaks had ended. The following are updates sent to The Streak Registry on what happened.]

CRAIG SNAPP'S STREAK HITS 18 YEARS

Thank you for your Streakiversary E-Out! When Debbie Ciccati and I first joined your organization, 13 years ago, our 5-year Streak put us in 82nd place. Today, our 18-year Streak puts us in 108th place. Obviously, that's a rate of dropping exactly two positions per year, so, if that continues, by 2063, we'll slip out of the top 200. But, that's okay. I'll be 113, so might not notice, all that much. Don't know what it says about me, when my Streak is Old enough for Voting, and my Olds is Old enough for Drinking!

Recently, timed a ten-mile run, and the average pace for the "minutes-portion" was a "single-digit." (If you choose to think that digit is a "4," I ain't a-gonna dissuade ya!) Our Goals include: To write as many books as Scott Ludwig, know as many numbers as Steve DeBoer, be as Excel-Savvy as Roger Urbancsik, and to take a run at that 2063, The Year Of The Vegetable! May Ye all enjoy the Humor of Steppenfetchit, the Music of Steppenwolf, and the Joy of Steppenoutthedoorforthenextrun!

CRAIG SNAPP'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 6,583 DAYS

Streak: 0, Appendectomy: 1.

Yes, it is so, and I'm doing well, given the circumstances. After my Fri. [April 8] run, I didn't feel real good. Around 3:00 PM, decided to swing by Kaiser. At 6:30 AM, Sat., I donated a body part to them. ... I always wondered what I would do when my streak was in jeopardy. Now, I know. Right before he started, I told the surgeon about the streak, and he said, "That's very impressive, and, that's too bad!" ... It's now been 2 1/2 days since, and I still feel like Sonny Corleone at the Toll Booth!

DEBBIE CICCATI'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 6,583 DAYS

Sending this message to let you know that I ended my running streak! The last day that I ran was on: Friday, April 8, 2016. I hope to start a new running streak soon and will let you know.

A RUNNER AND HIS APP By: Craig Snapp

I was running a Four-Mile Race, and I was having my fastest performance in a long, long time. I could see the clock at the Finish, put on a really nice sprint, and hit the Line at 27:34! I reached up with my Roaring-Runner's right hand ...

No! I want to share a different story, first. Four days ago, I did my regular run, and it didn't go real well. Afterwards, my thoughts were, (as my Pennsylvania Dutch Aunt might have said), "I don't feel so purty good." Went home, and lay down, and waited for things to improve. And waited. Finally, decided to take a swing by Kaiser, around 3:00 PM.

Let me Fast-Forward, (well, not exactly "Real Fast"!), to 10:00 PM.: I was being wheeled back from a Cat-Scan, with promises of some Pain-Meds! YES! There IS a Running God! My first batch, IF my memory is trustworthy, was around 11:00. Finally, I relaxed. I still had that IV Pump working away and holes in my arms from blood-work, yet, I felt like I was coasting downhill at the end of an Endorphined Run.

My second dosing was around 2:00 AM, and the first had long since left the building. I either relaxed, or passed out. Can't remember. Part three came around 5:00 AM. At the same time, a doctor came by and said I was going to have an "Appendectomy." I said, "That's fine with me, Mister Sir!" and he turned his head to hide his response.

They gave me a surgical gown, and told me to change into it in the restroom. I tried, but I just could not get my body to function. A nurse had to come in and help. When she took my pants off she asked, "You're having an Appendectomy!?" When I nodded, she said, "Well, while you're there, you might also ask for a new procedure, called an 'Addadictomy.'!"... (At least, I THOUGHT that's what she said! Coulda been my Pain Pals perverting her actual words!)

Around 6:00, I was in Pre-Op, and another Nurse was there, with an electric razor in her hand. She said, "I want to see your belly." I started to pull up my gown, and she freaked, and threw a towel over me, right before I would have exposed myself. I said, "I'm sorry. I thought you said you wanted to see my 'Willy'." (This quote I know is accurate, because she repeated it to me, many hours later. Blame Those Meds!)

Right before The Cutting started, I told The Surgeon that I had a Running Streak of 18 years, and 8 days. He replied, "That's TOO Amazing! That's TOO Bad!" Then The Anesthesiologist said he was going to put me under, and that it was going to happen very quickly. ...

... I reached up with my Roaring-Runner's right hand, and pulled off the mask I'd had to wear during the Four-Mile Race, but a lady yelled, "NO! YOU CAN'T TAKE IT OFF!" I looked at her, and realized I was in Post-Op! What I'd pulled off was my Oxygen mask! I hadn't been in a race! I hadn't done a 27:34! But, for some reason, my mind kept chanting, "27:34! 27:34!" And, I let it.

Today was my fourth without a run. Just checked my records, and that's my longest Non-Running Streak in almost 19 years. I should be able to run again, in a couple weeks. I might even start a new Streak. I haven't taken any Pain Erasers in three days, and they tell me that's a good thing. Yet, I kinda miss those Little La-La-Land-Lads!

If one asks how my brain could time the finish of my "Race" with me coming out of the anesthesia, right down to the very second, I don't have an answer for that. All that I know is that it's Absolutely True! (One of the Magnificent Mysteries of Running!) If one asks what significance "27:34" has, I don't have an answer for that, either. However, I chanted it so many times in my slowly de-fogging head, that I know it's "accurate"!

All in all, it was a Very Interesting Experience! VERY! ... However, to quote Mister Dylan, "HERE I SIT SO PATIENTLY, WAITING TO FIND OUT WHAT PRICE/ YOU HAVE TO PAY TO GET OUT OF GOING THROUGH ALL THESE THINGS TWICE!"

Traversing the Tundra in All the States & Monthly Mileage Streaks By: Steve DeBoer

As more streak runners become identified, the total in individual states has also climbed. Believe it or not there are several states that can now boast 50 or more persons who have run daily for at least 365 days, though not all of them have registered their streaks, with CA & MN battling for the honor of being first to reach 100! We thought we had an active streaker in all 50 states + DC last November, but it turned out that Christine Lousias, of SD, ended her streak Oct 21, 2015, and Bruce Sackinger of AK, did not reach the one-year mark until Nov 17, 2015.

Recently it was reported how many of us had run at least 2, 3, 4 and 5 miles daily; and how many had run at least 2000, 3000, 4000 or 5000 miles yearly. Since then, I contacted many of you to see how many had streaks of 100, 200, 300 or more miles per month; the results, through May 2016, are listed below:

With the recent departure of Len Burton, I decided to review the list of known streak runners in the US who have taken their streaking to another level:

DECEASED STREAK RUNNERS:

Bill Monheit* 1909 – 2002 age 92
Brian Maxwell* 1953 – 2004 age 51
Ted Corbitt 1919 – 2007 age 88
Charles Brumley 1939 – 2010 age 70
Joe Wojcik 1941 - 2012 age 71
Wendell DeBoer 1924 – 2014 age 89
Len Burton 1929 – 2015 age 86

In the United States, well over 1000 individuals have been identified who have run every day for at least one year, all but a few of whom covered at least 1 mile each time. I have included in the first column individuals I am aware of who have not registered their running streaks, including those on George Hancock's original 1994 list of streak runners, as many individuals with running streaks in the 1970s, 1980s, and 1990s never sent in registration. Almost 500 of these runners have resided in just 6 states (MN, CA, TX, PA, FL, & NY). The second column is the number with currently active running streaks as of April 20, 2016. On April 27th, I received word that both CA & MN had gotten #100, though the Minnesotan has not registered yet. However, her streak is over 25 years, so theoretically, MN reached 100 first!

Kurt Whitman 04/28/15 North Hollywood, CA, Attorney, 40 B-2/27/1976
Membership #976
Kurt didn't start running until age 37

Victoria Leaffgren 02/10/91 Woodbury, MN Victoria has been running for 37 years

Some of us are counted more than once if we have lived in more than one state at least 6 months or currently split our residence between 2 different locations.

^{*}Also has streak of running 1 organized race per month since Jan 1993. Does anyone else have a streak like that? ! Not a streak runner but over 200,000 miles lifetime. # Has not registered her running streak yet.

Postscript: Craig Davidson became the first streak runner ever to have run at least 200,000 miles during a running streak in February 2016. Jon Sutherland is 2nd at almost 190,000; Don Slusser is 3rd at 175,000 (but he no longer has an active streak), Jim Pearson 4th at almost 162,000, and Steve DeBoer 5th at 152,000. And Herb Fred became the first person with a running streak at age 86, when he reached one year on April 20th (his 10th running streak, coincidentally on my 25th wedding anniversary). Unfortunately, he had to end the streak due to surgery the next day for spinal stenosis. He will be 87 on June 11th. He has now run 252,683 miles, more than anyone else that has kept accurate records of their mileage.

USRSA FOUNDER JOHN STRUMSKY PENS HISTORY OF RUNNING AND STREAK ASSOCIATION By: John Strumsky

I've dusted off the stand-alone Running/USRSA history I first began writing several years ago, and have worked day and night on it to get it to you before I left it lay again.

My intent by taking it to the dawn of history was to share with all of our members pretty much everything I know or learned about our beloved sport.

ALEXANDRA SEVILLANO JOINS USRSA

My running career began when I was 28. I am a volleyball player and only ran sprints. I was told long distance running was bad for quick twitch muscles. Funny, the best beach volleyball season of my life happened after I started training for a half marathon. Not only did running improve my physical fitness and mental health, but I became a part of one of the most inspiring communities I know.

The women that got me into running were in their 50's. During our first run I wanted to stop after 1 mile but thought if they can do this, I can too. 3 miles 3 days a week turned into 6 and then came half marathons and streaking. I am now 34 and have completed 12 half marathons. I recently finished with my personal best time of 1:44:26.

The journey of running still amazes me. I love the challenge of adding speed to endurance - the mental toughness and physical fitness it requires. I love that you can run at any age and how inspiring runners of all ages are. Running brings a sense of satisfaction and peace that few things can. I have run through an engagement, marriage, divorce, and career changes. Running is my needed constant in an ever changing world.

My volleyball players ask how can anyone run so far? I say you start one step at a time and you just keep practicing until one day you realize you have done what you once thought you could never do. It's such a simple thing, to run, but every step of the journey is amazing in so many ways! I am excited to continue my streaking journey and I feel so blessed to be a part of this group!

CHIP LEDUFF'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 2,032 DAYS

I am embarrassed to say that the last day I ran for streak miles was September 21st, 2014. My life, including running, kind of fell apart after we lost our son Lawrence at birth. Then, we moved to North Carolina and grad school started, and it all just kind of got away from me.

I appreciate the follow up and apologize wholeheartedly for not keeping you updated as I had agreed to. I'm hoping to start another streak at some point in the future and will let you know when that happens.

TIM WOODBRIGE'S STREAK HITS 38 YEARS

Thanks for the 38th anniversary wish from the USRSA! Always look forward to that e-mail on March 5th each year - and then the chance to write about some of the events of the year!

My wife is even OK with the fact that I get more e-mails, calls, texts and Facebook posts about my running anniversary than our wedding anniversary! She even bakes me a shoe shaped cake to wish me "Happy Anniversary!"

Also always appreciate getting Steve DeBoer's 70,000 mile club info right around the same time! That's an amazing report – and it's amazing the number of miles some of the members of this club have run over the years! (It's a bit humbling – but I try to take some solace in the fact that I was an 880 runner in college and high school – so long runs for me were 4-5 miles!)

I have had to "re-behave" in terms of training regimen over the last 7 or 8 years due to some arthritis in my knees! Still ran 1,000 miles this last year – but spent about 2,000 minutes in the running pool at my gym (30 meter pool with 4 ft. of water with 8 lanes to run laps in). Have to admit - not a real exciting workout - but this type of training still allows me to get out and run races...

Have to admit - felt really blessed this year - no major physical issues to have to push through to keep the streak alive - which doesn't happen too many years! Did have some fun on January 23rd when Allentown got hit with 32" of snow (vs. the 6-12" they predicted!) I actually never heard the forecast as I was working on a project in my basement so looked at my watch around 2 p.m. and said I better get a run in - opened my front door to see 2 feet of snow! I actually left thinking I'd run around 5-6 but after almost 20 minutes - I was at the 1.5 mile spot on my course - and that was with the wind... So just turned around and did the rest on my treadmill!! But aside from that day – it was a pretty easy year in terms of weather related training!

I stopped running the Boston Marathon 7 years ago, but after running it 30 times - I wanted to stay involved. (I knew Dave McGillivray from my East Coast Run in 1979). So I continue to be involved with the Boston Marathon as a volunteer (the Elite Runners Fluid Stations committee), and makes me still feel very much a part of the race!

I continue do my birthday "run" each year – did have to change that to a triathlon 20 years ago... This year – I swam 1 mile, biked 46, and then ran 11. So got my 58 miles in - found that's a great mantra at this stage of my life – "my game – my rules!"

Appreciate getting the newsletter each quarter and catching up with all the different streak anniversaries! And the Facebook page I think is a great add – that's actually the majority of my "feeds" each day! So keep up the great work – and keep on running!

I started running about 9 years ago after my daughter was born. Since then, I have run 5k's, half marathons and full marathons. When I started my running streak, my goal was to run a mile or more everyday for a year. Once I hit that goal, I could not stop.

I finally learned to swim enough to do my first tri in Aug 2015. I believe I shared that as a goal a couple years ago. Most recently I placed first age cat. at the Ocean Isle Half Marathon in NC., Jan 2016. Still enjoying my running, biking and now a little swimming.

I got into streak running about a year and a half ago. A friend of mine sent me an article about a runner who ran at least a mile every day and drank a different kind of beer every day for a year. We both gave it a shot.

This was way more challenging than I thought it would be. Lets just say that I'm not greatest at having just one beer, so after a few months we both called it quits. Then shortly after that, a local news station did a story on streak running and a couple of local runners who had been at it for several years. This motivated both of us to give it another shot, minus the beers every day.

Sadly, my friends steak ended after he ended up in the hospital for some heart problems. He did beg the cardiologist to let him run, but was denied. He restarted his streak the day after he got home from the hospital.

I finished the first year of my streak on March 3rd. I enjoyed the challenge although there were a few days I found it very hard to get on my running shoes on. I'm always training for something, and this seemed like the perfect challenge after my wife and I had our third child.

Streak running takes up much less time than training for an Ironman or even a Marathon, so my wife has appreciated me being around a lot more this past year. I have no plans on stopping anytime soon. I'm just taking it one day at a time now. Happy Running Everyone!

I began running regularly in 1969 in NYC to help deal with the stresses of my medical training in New York, but also to explore the city. I continued running off and on when I moved to Stanford University Medical Center in 1975. I started running marathons in 1995, and have completed 6 of them.

My back (lower spine) went out in 2006, and I could not run for a year. Slowly I rehabbed myself and got back to it.

I started my present running streak on Jan. 1 2015 after reading about The Raven in the Wall Street Journal. I now run in my local Los Altos CA neighborhood, and wherever I travel.

I am at RSD 734 as of writing this with a total of 2809 miles during the streak. I have completed 2 more marathons this past year bringing my total to 4 and also accomplished a pr in my 3rd of 4 hours and 35 minutes. I ran a 25k trail race this past year and several smaller races. One of my most scenic races this past year was the Across the Bay 10k, which was run across the Chesapeake Bay Bridge in Annapolis, MD.

I ran in 15 states this past year and also one foreign country. I will be running my first ultra at a 50k trail race in July. I have been steadily increasing my yearly goal for miles as I had a goal of 1000 in 2014 and ran over 1200, then moved on to a goal of 1500 in 2015 and ran about 1514 miles, and am now trying to hit a new goal of running 1700 miles this year. I am amazed at the many great things I have learned about myself and life in general from running and especially my running streak.

TOM GRIGLOCK'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,000 DAYS

Wanted to let you know that my running streak ended last year, after 1000 straight days, on Sunday 9/27/2015. So it lasted from 1/1/13 - 9/27/15.

I ended the streak simply because I wanted a little bit of a change. My goal (after the first two years) was to hit 1000 days, and 3000 miles, and that is what I did (including a half marathon race on day 1000). To be completely honest, though, I was very close to running on day 1001, but I knew that if I did that I would probably end up trying for 2000, and I didn't really want to continue. So now my workouts consist of about 3 runs per week, 3 days of weight training, and either a day off or biking, hiking, or yoga.

Additionally, the streak got me through the loss of my father to a long battle with cancer, my mother-in-law to a long battle with Parkinson and dementia, and a few stress-related back injuries, one of which left me in the ER unable to walk. But I kept running through everything, and I think that consistency, and that outlet, helped me keep my sanity and helped pull me through some of lifes most terrible losses.

Thank you so much for keeping the list updated, it is great motivation for those times when it gets tough to head out.

TONY KELLY'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

The streak is still alive. I've kept it up through Swine Flu, two sprained ankles, two marathons, a few half marathons, 5 10 day Elk hunting trips, travel to Europe, two missions trips to the Dominican Republic, 30+ pheasant hunting weekends, several "excuse me while I go for a run," during dinner parties that I've hosted, several bouts with the flu and colds, and lots of days of just simply not feeling like running.

Jill Wofsey

JILL WOFSEY JOINS USRSA

Hi! I am Jill Wofsey, and I am a 52-yearold serious amateur master runner.

I love running. It makes me feel good. It's satisfying to have a great workout. Even having a not-so-great workout is motivating, knowing that the next one will most likely be a lot better. I love being outside. The extreme elements can be an issue, but those can be dealt with one day at a time.

In the fall of 2007, I got the running bug. I'm not fully sure why, but I think it was because of all the walks I took on the beautiful dirt roads where I live, and started thinking about how nice it would be to run on them. I was hooked pretty much right away. I remember starting with about a half a mile (which hurt like vou-know-what), and went from there. Soon I was running 3, 4, 5 miles at a time.

I did not enter a race until May of 2008. Still to this day, I cannot believe that my first race was a half marathon. It turned out that I actually did pretty well (2:29:59).

Since then, I have run 123 races: 65 5Ks, 1 5-mile, 20 10Ks, 1 6-mile leg on a team for an 18-mile race, 3 15Ks, 1 10-mile, 18 half marathons, 3 18-mile, 10 marathons (Boston Marathon twice), and 1 ultramarathon (50K). Awards: Overall Female: 7; Female Masters: 27; Female Grand Masters: 6; 1st age group: 33.

In 2011, in Dothan, Alabama, I was honored to win the Dothan Runner's Club 1st Place Female Grand Prix Award.

I have some PRs that I am proud of, and would love to improve upon in future vears:

5K: 23:23; 5K trail: 24:31: 10K: 50:42: 15K: 1:16:06;

Half Marathon: 1:46:31; Marathon: 3:53:32:

Ultramarathon (50K): 5:45:44.

I have always been involved in sports, but didn't get in to running as an exercise until the mid '80s. My running over the years had its ups and downs. I would run for a while and then get out of running. When my kids were small, the only time I could find for exercise was early in the morning, so I started running on a regular basis before work.

I started keeping track of my runs in 1988 although I was running several years before that. My goal was usually to run 365 miles a year. Sometimes I would do much better and sometimes much worse.

I heard about streak running a few years ago and always wanted to give it a try and last year when I was getting close to 59, I decided to try and run everyday until I turn 60. So far so good.

I have run a few races, the longest was the Charlottesville 10 miler in 1999, which is still my longest run. I now run 2 or 3 miles most days with a few 4 or 5 mile runs mixed in. After 1 year of streak running my times have improved to the point that I am now faster than I was 10 years ago. My next race is the Encinitas 1 Mile Run and then I may run the Carlsbad 5000 which is one of my favorite races.

I ran the Encinitas 1 Mile Race on Sunday [20 March 2016] and finished in 6:40, which I was quite happy with. Here is a picture of me at the start line. It was the first race that I ran the entire course as a warm up.:-

On March 20, 2016, I celebrated my second "runniversary." I celebrated it the same way I celebrated my first: ending my day's run at a bar where my friends awaited and eating ice-cream cake and drinking beers in good company.

So far in 2016 I've managed to run at least 5k every day (and have averaged just over 6 miles a day), and I hope to keep it up for the year. I've managed to PR in the 5k, finally breaking 20 minutes.

ľve been training for mν first ultramarathon, as well. That entailed two Saturday consecutive marathon distances recently. While they weren't races, I PRed the distance the first week, and managed a sub-4:00 time on tired leas the following week.

TODD VITOLS' STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

When I first started, the first couple of weeks were difficult for me as I began to get accustomed to running every day. I hadn't made it a priority and therefore I was squeezing in my running time somewhere during the day, often later at night. Now it's a daily habit and I only consider how far and how hard I will be running on any given day.

Historically, I've never been a distance runner so the challenge of building endurance and stamina has been an interesting transformation for me.

I've never run in a road race but have committed to running with my wife, Cathy, in this year's Medtronic 10 mile event.

I'm also probably atypical of most of the USRSA members in that I tend to accumulate almost all of my mileage via the treadmill.

Health wise, I've been fortunate in avoiding running related injuries and have lost over 30 pounds during the course of the year. I'm now running at 218 pounds.

I credit that to the advice provided by USRSA to be patient and avoid the trap of overdoing it, mileage-wise, when starting out and working diligently on various mobility exercises provided by Dr. Kelly Starrett in his book, Ready to

Ultimately, there isn't much to

There are no known pictures of me running. Maybe I'll have one this fall during the Medtronic 10 mile.;)

CLIFF PINCKARD'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 445 DAYS

My streak ended after 445 days. My final day was Sunday, March 20. (My streak started on Jan. 1, 2015.) I stopped because of a stomach illness on March 21. What it shows me is I'm clearly not as tough as the people who have kept their streaks going for many years ... surely they've fought through some illnesses during that time. But I just felt too weak to venture out; I didn't want to get off the couch, much less run a mile. My final run during the streak was 9.2 miles. The total mileage during the streak was 2,218.5 miles.

I was a bit disappointed. I had hit my original goal of running every day for a year, but had decided to try for 500-plus.

I ended up taking two days off in a row, which was very odd after running every day for so long. I believe I'm going to try to get another streak going, but I may wait until the beginning of the new year to start it.

I believe streak runners are a rare breed. It's certainly fun to be part of such a unique group.

GARY JONES' SECOND STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,252 DAYS

The last day for a run in that streak was 15 Sep 2015. That was at about 3am as I had to check in at the hospital by 6am for a total knee replacement. Unfortunately I could not escape the hospital on Sep 16th to do a run, so my steak ended.

My surgeon is a great guy and did a really good job on the surgery. He however is really against running, anytime, but especially after total knee replacement. So, I waited until 23 days after surgery before I ran my first mile again.

The real test for the knee was 9 weeks after surgery. My son and a friend of his and I went on a really aggressive elk hunt. 3 miles and about 2500 feet in elevation change later, my son's buddy shot an elk. We dressed and quartered the animal and spent the next 5 hours packing it out. Had about 110 pounds on my back.

Hiking downhill in about a foot of snow where you can't see what you are stepping on is a real experience. On my butt at least a dozen times. A few times as I was going down in an awkward position, my mind said, "This is not going to be good," but fortunately, survived without incident.

Now post surgery, I can do anything I like. I only run about 3 days a week, but am up to 5 to 6 miles per run.

On the other days I use the elliptical or bike, and of course also spend hours most every day shoveling snow. I will try to honor my surgeon's request not to run too much, but I can't fathom my life without several runs per week.

I hope to keep doing this type of running for a long while, but expect somewhere along the way I will need to have the other knee replaced.

I have attached a picture of me coming in from my run last Saturday morning. We are having a really early mild Spring here in Montana so it's great to get out and not have to contend with snow and ice.

Put me down for 956 miles for Jan 1st 2015 thru Sept 15th 2015 if you would please.

I got into running a few years ago to help my son prepare for football. I only could go from one driveway to the next and then we would walk to the next. Pretty embarrassing.

I had two friends (Tammy and Cathy) I admired that were runners so I kept going although my son was done after a few runs. I then started running on and off the next few years. Did a few races with Cathy but really wanted to get better so I could run with Tammy since we lived so close. Tammy found the Endless Summer Trail Series so we decided to sign up for those in 2014.

Right at the same time she started reading up on these amazing people who ran at least a mile everyday. We did one of the races and at the second race Tammy stopped after the first loop because she wasn't feeling well. She decided we should become streakers a few days later and we were going to start the next week. Instead she was diagnosed with breast cancer.

I started and did 2 miles everyday (one for both of us) on day 50 I drove her home from the hospital and decided that was enough. Last year I just decided I wanted to start again. So after a run on March 1st I decided to not stop. I am not your average runner. I have a nice (for me) 9-10 minute pace but not the body that goes with it. Haven't lost a pound! But I enjoy running as relaxation from a busy household of husband and three boys. I am more excited that on September 12th Tammy and I went for a mile run and I said, "well...that was a mile...might as well start yours."

Thanks for the congrats on the running streak. Completing the 14 years and am still going.

My biggest disappointment is having back surgery in the fall of 2001 after a 13 year streak and then being sidelined from running until April 7, 2002. I can only dream of the possibility of having a 28+ years running streak going!! I completed 10 marathons in 2015 and all of the 50 States + DC in March 2016.

Running every day is life changing. While streaking is not for everyone, I've managed to make it to my 2-year anniversary! With the exception of 2 runs on a treadmill, the rest have been outdoors.

New Mexico is where I call home and have lived here all my life. We have had just a few memorable snow storms throughout my life here and the winds can make for some challenging runs, but when you are surrounded by beautiful landscapes and the best running temperatures everything else fades away.

It's no surprise that many athletes choose my state for training. I know they come for the altitude/elevation. But I know they will always remember the weather and beauty that is New Mexico. THAT is why I run every day!

Having completed one half marathon every month in 2015, my husband (who is also a streaker) and I took on a 5k challenge. Since January 18 we have completed a 5k every day. We hope to continue this challenge for the rest of the year!

My Staying Healthy & Saving Lives endeavor, A Two-Pronged Approach, is still going well.....

As of today, 04/16/16, I've been doing my morning runs for 18 to 19 years now averaging over 300 runs a year. My current running streak as of today is RSD 1,121 (3.069 Years), and all my runs have been outside with a minimum of 2 miles per run.

I received another nice card from United States Senator Lamar Alexander of TN regarding my lifesaving endeavor, and I received a Proclamation from Shelby County Mayor Mark H. Luttrell, Jr. in regards to Shaun Brennan's Blood Donation Awareness Day (as of today, I've made 383 donations of lifesaving blood/platelets/plasma, 78 of my donations have been made during this running streak, 2 units/pints of lifesaving platelets per donation, 19 gallons and 4 pints of lifesaving product donated just during this running streak alone). Shelby County has a population of 925,000 and the City of Memphis is part of the county. The first paragraph of the Proclamation is as follows: "In downtown Memphis, Tennessee near the Mississippi River border of Shelby County lives a hero without a cape, Shaun Brennan, an employee of

I am now a lifetime member of the United States Running Streak Association (USRSA) and Streak Runners International (SRI), and I'm proud as a peacock in regards to all my accomplishments.

HERB FRED, 86, ENDS STREAK AFTER 367 DAYS; OLDEST ATHLETE TO RUN EVERY DAY

My latest running streak began on April 20, 2015. On Wednesday [20 April 2016] of this week, I will have run at least 1 mile a day, every day, since that streak began. As a result, I may be the first person anywhere in the world to accomplish this particular feat at the age of 86 years. (I'll be 87 on June 11, 2016).

Two other bits of news:

- 1) This coming Wednesday my total lifetime mileage will be 252,683.
- 2) My streak will end the next day (Thursday) when I undergo an operation for severe spinal stenosis. That procedure will sideline me for probably a month. Nevertheless, I hope to begin another streak when I recover.

I'm sad to report I had a major surgery that ended my running streak this month. My last run was on the morning of April 11, 2016, my surgery date.

Like most of my runs, it was an unremarkable two miles. I've known this date was coming for a few weeks and had to work hard not to get depressed about the streak ending. Although stopping running was unavoidable, the surgery (unrelated to running) will improve the quality of my life. When I am recovered, I'll just have to start again and when I do I'll be in touch, as the running streak also improved my life quality.

I didn't catch the running bug until December 2012, at age 37. At that time, my life was particularly challenging as I was starting a new (second) career as an attorney, in addition to being a husband and father. To achieve balance, I started running. It was the perfect answer—I am now on a healthy, balanced track, and it has been a rewarding journey.

I love to run, but I love more to race. I love setting and accomplishing goals, continually striving for greater feats, and breaking personal records. I love the stats. In my short and late-arrived running career, I have run over 90 races, and I will run my first marathon in September. My wife has been especially supportive of my running and has run several races with me, often pushing our two kids in the jogging stroller; she's amazing.

My four-year-old son will soon run his first "grown up race"—a 5K—l'm looking forward to being by his side the entire way. Running has been an enjoyable part of our family life.

My streak began in April 2015. There have been tough days—days after races, braving the weather, demanding work schedules—but I have found it overall easy to run at least one mile every day, and I have averaged over 4.6 miles/day during the streak. I'm not exactly sure why I started the streak, but after a few weeks of streaking, I came across the USRSA website, and that was inspiration for keeping me at it. As long as my legs keep going, I will keep the streak alive. It has been nothing but positive.

I am proud and honored to be a member of the USRSA and to be in the company of such inspiring individuals. The journey has officially begun!

My running history goes back to high school where I dabbled in track but became rebellious and didn't pick it up again until I was about 25 and in the Navy. I was on my first ship traveling from Charleston, SC to Guam. I started running around the deck of the ship and then the treadmill.

On island, I entered a bunch of 5K's then and progressed to the marathon around 1998 (in Guam). Then I transferred to Hawaii and there were races all of the time. I did the Aloha Marathon and the Kona Marathon and even got to meet Frank Shorter. Then I was onto Japan and still did races but mostly ran on my own.

As I traveled I got to run in a lot of places like Palau, Australia, Singapore and Korea. I even did a half marathon in Hong Kong.

I continued to race in Mayport, Florida and I would travel to VA Beach to do the Shamrock Marathon and 8K and the Rock and Roll Half.

I went back to Japan and ran a few local races and a marathon at a nearby Marine base. I returned to Guam and did a ton of races there and even met Frank Shorter again!!

Then I transferred back stateside and I continued to do the OBX Marathon, the Shamrock and a few races in VA and MD and many local PA events like the Bird in Hand Half.

I started my running streak 10/26/2014 as a holiday Runner's World Streak and I haven't stopped yet.

MATT MILLER'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 768 DAYS

Unfortunately, I have to notify you of the end of my running streak. My running streak ended at 768 days. I had run at least 2 miles a day and a total of close to 3000 streak miles until Thursday 4/21/16 when during my run I felt pain in my left leg. I even ran on Friday, which was day 768 but only made it 1 mile and then went to an urgent care that evening and discovered I have broken my left fibula. I cannot put weight on that leg for at least 4 weeks so unfortunately as heartbreaking as it is for me I could not figure out anyway to keep the streak going. I will start a new one when I am able to run again and hope to return the list. Thanks.

I play golf with a man whose wife runs marathons and even ultra-marathons. She's in her 50s, yet gets up at 4 a.m. daily to go on long, moonlight-drenched runs. Or does speed work at the local track. I have chosen a different - I would argue far more civilized — path as I mark my 19th anniversary of daily running. Typically I go for a three-mile run at mid-day, and have various routes from which to choose. Several times a week, I hit the weight machines at the local YMCA. My ambition is to look in the mirror and see Ryan Gosling staring back, but alas, that goal may not be attainable. Still, my 65-year-old limbs remain intact, other than a minor bit of arthritis in one knee (old football injury), and for that I am immensely grateful. Lord willing, I plan to continue chugging along daily for years to come, just never at 4 a.m.

My running "career" began in 1992 when I joined my high school cross-country team. It was my Senior year and I had been inspired to run by both my youth pastor and a teacher who was also the cross-county coach. I can remember sitting in his classroom and he talked about celebrating his 10 year anniversary of never taking a day off from running.

Many years would pass and I would have a love-hate relationship with running, but the idea of running everyday kept coming back up in my mind. I would cross many things off of my "running bucket list": 10K, halfmarathon, and eventually a full marathon. Again I kept thinking about how long could I keep a streak alive. So I decided to try the Runner's World "Thanksgiving-Christmas" challenge. I ran every day starting November 20th. I got to Christmas and decided that I might as well keep it going. I would continue running through my first year.

One day at a high school basketball game I would see my cross country coach Les Shoop (who is currently in the Grand Master status at number 36) and he gave me the USRSA book. I still think of his famous sayings, "Running it cures what ails you" or "The worst part of running isn't thinking your going to die, it's realizing your not. Then rigor mortis sets in." I credit Coach Shoop for giving me the motivation.

I hear on a regular basis, "Hey your that running guy I see through town." I'm glad to say it's another check off the bucket list. I have now inspired my daughter Aleah to start her own streak. The picture I have attached is from the year I started my streak and is after our local town's 5K race. It's Aleah and I cooling down after the race.

Time flies faster and faster as we get older. It seems like yesterday when I was telling friends and family that I would probably never get my streak to 50 years, and then in a blink of the eye, the 46th year passed, and it was actually a pretty good year.

For several years I had been following the specialist's orders and keeping my runs just under four miles a day. I had been told back in 2007 that I could no longer run but then found a wiser knee doctor who said to keep it between two and four miles to help my knee last longer. Somewhere near the middle of Year 46 I started thinking about statistics and realized that since life expectancy for a male born in 1944 was 72 years, my warranty was about to expire. There then seemed to be no sense in taking extra care to prolong the life of my legs, so I upped my mileage to between five and six miles a day, a much more enjoyable distance.

Year 46 ended with 1,639 miles with 934.5 coming in the second half of the year. Two and a half months later I turned 72 with Year 72 adding up to 1,763 miles. Now I'm not saying that I'm going to make this thing last for 50 years, but maybe, just maybe, I can do it.

I ran cross-country in high school as a freshman and sophomore, but didn't stick with it. I started again as an adult in May of 2013 when my wife started runnina to help with some medical/health issues. I decided I probably should do some sort of exercise too. I ran a few times a week (10 mpw) for several months, gradually increasing to about 15 mpw, and ran a couple of 5ks and a 10k. After that, I was hooked. In the fall of 2014, I decided to get more serious and began following a plan for a half marathon in the spring and learning more of the science behind workouts and training.

I've raced five 5k's, one 10k, three half marathon's, and one 25k trail race. I managed to surprise myself this past December by beating my high school 5k PR and going under 20 minutes for the first time ever. I've steadily increased my mileage into the 50 mpw range as I train for my first marathon in March of 2016. After the marathon, I have a 24-hour race planned where I hope to get to 100 miles. I'm still trying to determine my favorite race distance, but haven't quite determined it yet. I like the distance and strategy of the half marathon, but I also like the speed of the 5k (they just really hurt to run all out).

Within months, I managed to step into a rabbit hole on a cross-country course and shattered my ankle! This could have been an indication that running wasn't meant to be "my thing" but I'm too stubborn to give up after one busted ankle.

Eventually the cast came off and I made it through PT to regroup and started training for the Chicago Marathon during the summer of 2001. I was woefully unprepared for the mileage, collected multiple overuse injuries and never made the trip. It take me a while to learn my lesson, apparently.

After graduating, my health was not a top priority and the occasional 5k or sprint triathlon wasn't enough to keep me fit. So, ten years after first aspiring to run a marathon...I decided to give it another try, hoping the third time would be a charm. Older and wiser, I trained for and completed the 2011 Twin Cities Marathon. This led to marathons in 2012, 2013, 2014, and 2015 with no plans to stop in sight.

Related to "streaking", I always regretted ending a Summer Streak (Memorial Day to Labor Day) in 2013 so in 2015 I decided to start anew on the day after my birthday. My plan is to celebrate each future birthday by completing another "streak" year! One down and many more to go!

And, as a bonus, my wife began streaking on May 26, 2014, joining USRSA last year (Jennifer Fitzharris-Funk). We're running partners more often than not; proving that the couple who streaks together, stays together!!

CHRIS KARTSCHOKE'S NEW STREAK HITS ONE YEAR

Chris Kartschoke is back on the list. My current streak began on May 24th 2015. Prior to that, I had a 52-month streak stopped when I was hospitalized for a pulmonary embolism. Testing for the embolism revealed that I had mitral valve regurgitation requiring a surgical The November 2014 surgery resulted in a couple of months of no running. When I restarted, I had so much weakness that it was tough to get back to a state where I was relatively injury free and regularly running. That officially happened on May 24th last year. Now I am happy to say that I have run the last 366 days. My minimum run over that period has been four miles, but I like to average 70 miles per week.

JULIE VAN AMERONGEN JOINS USRSA

I've been a runner off and on for some time. I loved to run when I was in high school but my ballet teacher, to whom I was devoted, frowned upon it. I ran a bit in college and dabbled some more in my early career days.

Years later, living in Track Town USA - Eugene, Oregon, there were bark chip running trails I could access right from my home and a whole community of people dedicated to getting out there. I ran the inaugural Eugene marathon then moved to Portland, Oregon where I ran off and on while fighting off injury. Along the way, we got the kids into running and have run about 25 5ks together as a family of four.

A year ago I took on a 30 day running challenge and you probably know the rest of the story from there! It's been an incredible exercise in discipline and consistency and I have loved almost every step of the way. I have also written an account of my first year of streaking which I intend to self publish shortly. Can't wait to see what this next year brings!

THE FINISH LINE By: Mark Washburne

Long time readers of The Streak Registry (TSR) know that the second quarter is usually quiet compared to the first quarter and the second quarter of 2016 continued to follow that trend. In all honesty, we were happy to catch our breath after setting the record for most running streaks started on a single day when 31 athletes registered their running streaks that were started on 1 January 2015. Since the last issue of TSR, another 4 athletes submitted streaks started on that New Year's Day 2015 so the new single day record now stands at 35 with the potential to increase even more as late submitters register their streaks with SRI/USRSA.

During this relatively quiet quarter, I was happy to receive correspondences from two people who played the most significant roles in starting and maintaining our running streak association. In early May, I received an email from John Strumsky that attached his essay called, "The History of Running and the USRSA as I know it" (page 12). Mr. Strumsky, who has a 25+ years retired streak, founded USRSA in 2000 and continued to manage our running streak association until 2011. His essay is a must read for all streak runners on how this every day passion of ours was started and grew.

The other USRSA founder I heard from this quarter was George Hancock. Mr. Hancock, who has a 24+ years retired streak and another 13+ active streak, compiled the original list of known streak runners from the United States in 1994 that grew and eventually was used as the starting point when USRSA was founded in 2000. I reached out to Mr. Hancock after reading an essay he had written in the February issue of Runner's Gazette about retiring from road racing. As Mr. Hancock is one of our founders, I thought our TSR readers would be interested to read his essay and kindly received permission from him and Runner's Gazette to reprint the essay for TSR (page 3). Ironically, as I was preparing this Summer 2016 issue for publication, I received an email from Mr. Hancock stating that he has resumed road racing (page 5). Given Mr. Hancock's change of heart concerning road racing, I debated whether I should reprint his essay for TSR. I eventually decided to go with the piece because he expresses a common theme among many with our love/hate relationship with racing.

In my case, I continue to love racing and I am excited to be in a new age group after turning 60 in March. As someone with a 26+ year active streak, I am often told that I would be even faster if I just took some days off. I think, however, I have benefitted from being an every day runner. As proof of my theory, on March 11, 2006, I ran the St. Paddy's 5K in Morristown, New Jersey. It was the last race I ran in my forties and my time was 21:30. On March 12, 2016, I ran that same St. Paddy's 5K. It was the final race I ran in my fifties and my time was 21:29.

As more proof of the benefits of streak running, I have recently been intrigued with an age-graded calculator (https://fairmodel.econ.yale.edu/aging/runoth.htm) devised by a professor from Yale University. Maybe I was really slow when I was younger but my results show a vast improvement in my age graded times since my PR days. For example, my PR for the 5K was 19:29 at the age of 36. Using their calculation, that 19:29 amounts to an age graded 23:37 at age 60. Moreover, that 21:29 I ran in March at almost 60 amounts to an age graded 17:43 at age 36. Let's stick to streak running and good luck to all as we each run the roads and trails – every day!
