WILLIAM STARK'S STREAK HITS 40 YEARS By: William Stark

While putting the finishing touches on "jogging through injuries" (gout, falls, getting hit by a bike [and needing 15 stitches in my ankle], knee and ankle arthritis, overnight in the hospital with a-fib) (Streak registry Winter 2016 Vol 15 #4 pp. 6-7) I tripped and hurt my left knee and ankle but not enough to cut back the 40 miles per week I like to do. By the time the issue with that write-up came out (e-mail 11/30/15), I realized that there should have been another paragraph about the plantar fasciitis (around 1982) and yet another about the hip ache (around 1993, and again in 2014). Since "jogging through injuries" documented recoveries from terrible setbacks, I anticipated (correctly, thank goodness) that I would get better. The bottom line is how thankful I am that I have now and have had the privilege of jogging daily.

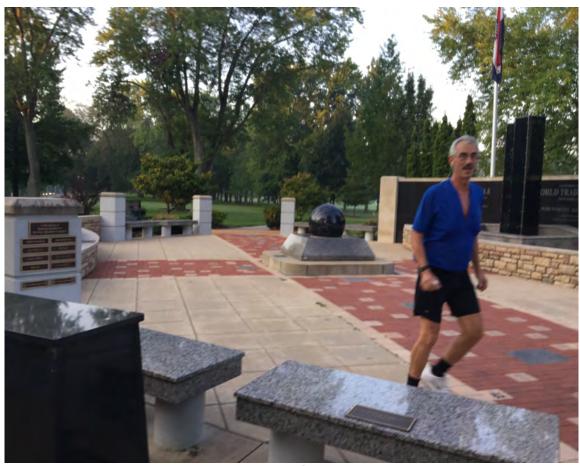

I have not made many submissions to Streak Registry. My first ("The early days of running shoes" Fall 2006 Vol 6 #3), documented my first purchase of Nikes. This was in 1973 when there were 6 stores in the whole country that sold them. They were hard to find in the 1970's. How things have changed! Recently, my wife got on line and ordered me two more pairs of Air Monarchs (my workhorse) and two more pairs of Leather Cortez (admittedly retro but preferred for snow or ice and as street shoes). I guess that to have shoes a year in advance shows an element of optimism. I had a lot of fun May 2015 when Rafer Weigel of Fox-2 News in St Louis and his cameraman made this video about my streak (http://fox2now.com/2015/05/14/move-over-schwarzenegger-slu-professor-is-real-running-man/). Somebody had to explain that the "running man" reference was to a Schwarzenegger movie. And, yes, I am a professor (still working) at Saint Louis University (http://starklab.slu.edu).

Last summer, my older son gave me a FitBit, and I very much appreciate the step counter. For the last few summers, my place of work, through its wellness program, has sponsored the "Walk to Madrid." So my department has teams and I report my steps weekly. Since I have a swimming pool, and since I "lift weights" at the Y, I convert those activities to steps plus walking along with my jogging for my weekly report. But the whole point is health, and I am thankful, now that I turned 69, that I have not had artery problems or glucose problems. Toss a frozen water bottle from one hand to the other on a hot morning. It really helps. Wear mittens over your gloves on one of those cold mornings with the howling winds. I'm glad it has been some years since I've faced the worst, -20 and 115.

When I wrote for the Registry at 35 years ("Bill Stark streak reaches 35 years" Winter 2012 Vol 11 #4 pp7-10), I emphasized my love of scenic outdoor routes. And so it is now. Even on this summer's 80 degree high humidity dawns, the morning run makes the day inviting and rewarding. Here's my recent discovery. A 7 minute drive from my house, I have access to three different paved trails along the Meramec River (the greenway). Portions of these pathways appear as green tunnels, while other places let me check the river level or see the wild flowers. The accompanying photo has me at a 9/11 memorial in Fenton Park along this greenway. These places have sometimes been closed to me due to floods and of course there is no snow removal. Summer weekends on our houseboat at Hoppies Marina, I can tour the historic town of Kimmswick MO or hang out by the Mississippi River. Sometimes, I need to run downtown (St. Louis), and Tower Grove Park affords a scenic venue near the Y where I can get a shower. It is occasionally convenient to jog near my house, and my subdivision in Sunset Hills MO is pleasant and safe. Rain, snow, sleet or hail. When it rains, and I do not want to carry my phone, music or driver's license, I usually stay in the neighborhood. Also, my subdivision has pretty good snow plowing and salting. And there is no traffic. Perhaps an average of two times per year for the duration of the streak, I ran on an indoor track, mostly when there has been an ice storm. For the last 10 years, when we visit my older son's family in the Woodlands near Houston, there is a nice path between the golf course and the road. Same time period, visiting my younger son's family in Mill Creek near Seattle, there is a path along the stream to the fish ladder (never saw a fish there). For the past few decades, when we have visited my brother and sister-in-law in NJ, I have jogged Avon's boardwalk north to Bradley's or south to Belmar's and Spring Lake's. Not so much as before, I do not run on unpayed trails, but, when I do, I have old shoes, sometimes glued together. For a few decades, now decades ago, my career was more active; when I went to international scientific meetings, I added Asia and Europe to my streak running map.

My younger son accuses me of not knowing how to tie my shoes. I wear my shoes loose enough to slip on and off without tying or untying. "Doesn't that hurt your feet?" I am often asked. "Trust me..." I preface my reply as I make it clear that I really ought to know better than anyone then the person who asked me knows. That younger son will turn 40 in January (2017). You do the arithmetic; I'm too old to do arithmetic. That means my streak is older than he is even though he has been much fitter than me for more than two decades. I doubt that it is related to the fact that that son works for Apple, but I have had an iPod for music when I run since they first came on the market around 2000. "Don't you ever get sick?" — I am often asked. "We've all gotten so sick that we were not certain if we could make it from bed to the bathroom. Obviously, I have not been that sick in the last 40 years, because I could not have run a mile in that condition."

I see Ron Hill is #1 internationally. The night before my first marathon (Maryland 1974), at the Gatorade cocktail party, he said that he looked at the route and took a photo because nobody in England would have believed a route with a hill such as Satyr Hill Road. Organizers brought him since he had won Boston (with its famous Heartbreak Hill) in 1970. I bought (actually paid for) a Nike T-shirt showing a runner and the words "There is no finish line," a sentiment I appreciate! I get no satisfaction from the occasional "promotions" I get (moving up on the list). This is because I realize that somebody had to relinquish a cherished possession (because of surgery or whatever). I know that day will eventually arrive for me as well, but for now, I'm in a good place.

Traversing the Tundra After Age 50 By: Steve DeBoer

With the exception of US Olympian Ted Corbitt (whose running streak was 1953-1968), the advent of daily running did not occur until the mid 60s, with Ron Hill (1964), Bruce Mortenson (1965 – unregistered), Bob Ray (1967) and Mark Covert (1968) being the first. It wasn't until Wendell DeBoer began his running streak in 1978 that someone over age 50 ran every day. Since then that number has gone up significantly, with the oldest now being Herb Fred, whose last official running streak ended at age 86 ½. After surgery for spinal stenosis, he ran daily for 5 months but had to stop due to balance issues, having fallen off his treadmill 3 times recently. Even though it is not official, I will consider his 5 month streak to be the only one on the planet by someone age 87 or above! Of course, Herb has run the most documented miles of anyone in the world, that number having reached 253,010.

Lois Bastein recently became the first female streak runner to reach her 80th birthday. She is one of only three 80 year olds who have run every day for over 30 years (Walt Byerly 36.2 years & Geza Feld 30.8 years were the others), but she is the only one with such a long streak that is currently active – 36.6 years as of December 1, 2016.

Many of this over 50 "Crowd" continue to run and race. In fact, 97 of the longest 100 active running streakers are over 50, with 80 being over 60 and 21 over 70. As for women, 24 of the top 40 are 50 or older with 3 more being 49 years old, 11 being over 60. Here is a list of those from whom I received data regarding tundra traversed since getting to the 50-year mark.

I also asked people if they ran races after age 50. Some of us do not keep track of them, some no longer race, and others never really did. I will include responses to this question in this article but wait until next issue to report their best times at different ages.

PS. Mild weather continues in southern Minnesota, so I have not had to break my streak of shirtless runs yet on November 6th. With predicted lows above freezing the next week, I may surpass the second latest, having gone without a shirt until November 11th in 1994 (the record is November 19th, set last year). I learned that my nephew, Kevin Duban, has a running streak that has passed 300 days, even getting a mile in before taking his wife to the hospital for the delivery of their first child. This would tie the DeBoers for second place with the Eshelmans, having 4 family members who have admitted to daily running for at least one year. The Pearsons of WA (Jim, Don, Joel, Paige & Hopper) are the only family with 5 Streakers.

PPS: With the temperature dropping to 26 degrees tonight and NW winds at 20-30 mph, my days of shirtless runs will end on November 19th, tying the latest I have gone shirtless when living in MN, which was achieved last year (2015)!

Lon Flaud, Jr.

LON FLAUD, JR JOINS USRSA

I first started running as a junior in high school and made the mile and 2 mile team. In the fall of my senior year I signed up for the cross-country team, made it and received the Rookie of the Year Plaque at the sports awards banquet. Made the track team again in my senior year. I have been running for fun ever since.

I have been doing 5k, 5 mile and 10k races since I hit my 30s when I started to sign up for longer races. To date, I have run 18 half marathons, and finished my first 6 of 7 marathons. In my 7th marathon I dropped out at mile 6 because I woke up sick. I plan to run this year's Marine Corps marathon to get that lucky 7th metal. :)

I set 2 goals for this year. After a 2-year break I want to finish another marathon. My other goal was to hit that day 365 of a running streak, which I'm now past 400 days and counting.

I'm lucky enough to have a huge group of family and friends that look forward to my online running posts and support my love of running.

TOM WHITELY'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It brings me great pleasure to announce that I celebrated two years on August 22, 2016. This is a tremendous accomplishment for me having had a total hip replacement in February of 2012. Prior to the operation I had 15 years of active streak running. Many people, including doctors, told me I would never run again and to find another mode of cardio. It was very disheartening because running has been a big part of my life. But I was determined to start another streak. With the good fortune of having a great surgeon diliaent orthopaedic and therapy I went from walking with a walker, to unassisted long walks, which turned into short jogs and finally a mile. The streak began on August 22, 2014.

I hope my story can inspire other streak runners that a total hip replacement doesn't necessarily mean the end of their running days. If there are any streak runners with a total hip replacement I would enjoy hearing your story. My email address is twhiteley@optimum.net. Looking forward to my third year. Keep on Running,

HIROAKI YOSHIDA'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Yes. I completed the second year of streak running! Currently I do not have much time to send you a detail update. But I can happily notify you that in my second streak year I cut my personal record of full marathon to 3:04:32 at Koga Hanamomo Marathon (March 13, 2016). My previous PR was 3:11:30. Streak running during these two years definitely helped me break the PR.

My next targets are a sub-three hour marathon and 1,000 days of streak running. Please find attached a picture of my recent marathon (Hakodate Marathon, June 26, 2016) Number 2311 is me.

FRANK CLARKE'S STREAK HITS 39 YEARS

Sorry for not getting back to you sooner. I was overseas and then away to celebrate my 80th birthday. My mileage up to and including the 9th August for 39years was 164043kms and 14246 consecutive days. Currently I am doing only 4kms per day and consider this to be minimum to call a daily run. I may have to consider around 2.5kms daily later in the year and whilst recording for my own records I will not any longer bother to report this. As of now I cannot think of a story worthy of adding to your magazine. Thank you for your interest.

I wanted to officially notify you of the end of my streak. It ended on May 11 due to a broken foot. I'm back at it again.....just day 43 [email dated 27 August 2016] but at least I'm running again.

My adult running obsession began in 2011 on Monday the 27th of June, a few days after a round of golf where I found myself running from hole to hole and enjoying it more than I ever enjoyed golf. Nearly every mile since that day has been tracked and logged electronically.

My first marathon was in the middle of night by myself in January of 2012 (6h:24m:02s). After that I needed to know how far I could go, and on a Sunday in October of 2012 I almost found out after running 65.75 miles over the span of 22 hours and 22 minutes. I say almost because I had to go to work in the morning and was forced to stop. I felt like I still had plenty of gas left in the tank.

My first race was a half on Sept 8th of 2012 (1h:46m:40). My next race was the Pain-in-The-Neck 50K (6h:34m:41s), the race was a small 5k loop and had less than 10 entrees. I fell in love with the Ultra culture on that day. Since then I have completed a couple of 5Ks (PR 21m:20s) and 10Ks (PR 44m:55s), a few half's (PR 1h:40m:26s), 2 Marathons (PR 4h:21m:37s), several 50Ks (PR 5h:32m:29s), and one extremely long and painful 100K on July 4th 2015 (18h:35m:19s).

I really enjoy running long while exploring new areas and taking pictures. Most of my miles are solo because it's hard to find someone who will run 20+ miles with me, but even harder to find someone who can tolerate me for that long.

I started my streak because a buddy talked me into it and found out about this group on the 366th day. I absolutely believe I escaped death by lightning one day, and now it is out for me.

I closed out day 4381 (12 years) with 17 miles. My total streak miles is 38274.25, with a 8.7364 per day average. I also have an 86 week racing streak. My total races for the streak are 360. I also have run backwards for at least a quarter mile for 99 days. I think I have a streaking problem!!! The group keeps me motivated.

ELLEN RUNNOE BECOMES A LIFETIME MEMBER OF USRSA

I have just retired from teaching 40 years of second grade! I loved it! I taught the last 38 years in the Wausau School District in WI and my first two years were in the Wausaukee School District at Amberg School. Each day we started off with 10 jumping jacks. The first two weeks were always in English. Then we learned how to count to ten in Spanish, French, German, Japanese, Hmong and Italian. By the end of the year we could exercise and count to ten in 7 different languages!!! Each Friday for the last few years we ran around the classroom on Friday mornings to the Happy Song! It was great fun! I enjoyed playing soccer with the kids at recess too!

I am so proud to be a member of the United States Running Streak Association and I have a t-shirt and coffee cup with it on!

Three years ago my husband and all five of our children ran the half marathon in Green Bay. My brother, Jim Schmitt, is the mayor and was very proud of us!

We live on five acres so sometimes I run with our dog (she sometimes takes a break in the pond). I like running on the road but in rain or cold weather I use the treadmill.

Our family often ran 5ks but have not in the last few years. I hope to plan for that now that I retired and have five college graduates!!! They all were in track in high school and my youngest son was in track in college.

Thanks again for this great program. I am happy, healthy and proud to be a part of it!!!

Yes, my Streak is still going strong. I also have a streak within in a streak of at least 100 miles a month. 31 Oct 16 will be 10 years for that....10 years of doing at least 100 miles every month. I know that's not very impressive compared to what others do / have done, but I am proud of it. Have a great day.

My "running career" started in 2013 as a coping mechanism. My Mom died from metastatic breast cancer. Running was the only thing to help me keep control over the emotions of grieving the loss. I still use my mile to reflect and remind myself how amazing it is to have the ability to run and to be healthy enough to lace up my shoes every day. Sam Johnston and Acelin, "my oldest granddaughter, on my run anniversary morning in New Hampshire."

SAMUEL JOHNSTON'S STREAK HITS 39 YEARS

Having run in a number of big cities around the world, my wife and I decided it was time to visit the one that has eluded both of us our whole lives. Yes, I had almost reached 75 years on the planet and had never been to the Big Apple, NYC. Oh, I had landed at JFK a time or two but never deplaned. So, after a visit in New Hampshire to see our daughter and her husband and our only granddaughter that doesn't live in Naples, Florida, and where I did my 39th anniversary run, we boarded an Amtrak train in Brattleboro, Vermont, for a six hour ride to Penn Station.

In three and a half days and four nights we did just about every iconic NYC tourist site including the Today Show.

We credit our good physical condition for our sight filled, marathon-esque adventure. And, of course, there was running.

I always run early, before daylight, a habit you easily get into in southwest Florida because once the sun comes up and starts cooking our humidity soaked atmosphere, it takes a bit more conditioning to run than I wish to acquire.

We stayed at a hotel right off of Time Square, but I decided my first morning to skip Time Square and rather to run in Bryant Park. Turns out the city that never sleeps closes Bryant Park overnight so I ran 5K around the perimeter sidewalk.

The next morning I took a left out of the hotel and was instantly in the bright as day Time Square. The last two days I did my potpourri runs where I will just meander up and down various streets. I knew going there that with our packed daily itinerary I would not make it to Central Park to do the reservoir run which is so often seen in movies. The trip there was a lot of fun. Why did we wait so long?

On the health front, I still feel great and I am hoping to make the 40 year milestone. I figure that rather than a major health issue, I have a better chance of getting some freak injury like someone shutting me down by driving a shopping cart up my Achilles tendon, but barring that right now, I feel I can make it. I hope our list of the seriously deranged, maniacal body abusers finds us all still on the active list this time next year and that everyone of you enjoys a year filled with boundless health and prosperity. Keep running.

My streak is still active going into year 3. In the past 12 months I've run 4 marathons (Marine Corps in October, Houston in January, Colfax in May, and Revel Rockies in June.) I've also run 4 halfs, a 10 miler, a 15k, and a 5k. My total run streak miles over those first 2 years of streaking equal 4200.8.

Streaking gives me discipline, which carries over into all other aspects of my life. I love being in this group. Thank you.

RICH JONES' STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I feel very fortunate to report I have reached my third anniversary of running every day having averaged over 1,000 miles each year. There's no question in my mind of the physical and mental benefits of regular exercise. As I'm now in my 70th year of life I can report that I'm not on any prescription medication, and except for my BMI which indicates I'm still not tall enough, all my "medically related numbers" are within acceptable ranges. Another good thing about reaching 70 is that I'm now in another age group for 5K runs.

One of the best runs for me this past year was an early morning outing with light snow falling in the Colorado mountains. Wow! And I was also able to do the RAGBRAI bicycle ride across Iowa again this past summer.

Reading the posts of other runner's trials and successes helps keep me going. Thanks so much for sharing your experiences.

I am happy to report that my run streak is alive and well. I did not keep track of my miles for most of this year because I felt like I was getting a little too obsessed with numbers; after I hit the daily mile, I refused to look at my Fitbit and just ran until I felt like stopping. I am proud to say that I kept my streak going in three different countries this year (Vietnam, Philippines and Singapore) and I ran in my first race ever, a 10 KM race in the Philippines. I'm looking forward to another year of streaking!

As any runner I have my lazy days and energetic days. I have been trying to get on a training schedule but working full time and motherhood makes the time fly. I just run to just run and have fun.

I am still running everyday and recently challenged myself to a 5K a day. I am currently got on a training schedule for a full marathon that is scheduled for early next year.

I love the challenges I face everyday to get myself out the door or on the treadmill to keep my run streak alive. I love the feeling of having to look forward to my run and getting it done. I will keep moving, keep pushing, and stay strong as I ride this roller coaster called life.

I am enjoying my runstreak and thanks again!!

ANNETTE RAPP'S STREAK HITS ONE YEAR

It's time for my 1st anniversary! After running off and on for 24 years in Mission Bay Park in CA, I began my streak under an early beautiful Superblood Red Moon and Eclipse on September 27, 2015. In January 2016 I began fulfilling two adventurous, personal goals of mine; living a month in every State and visiting every National Park in the United States.

Limiting my runs to an official mile allows me to safely pursue another physical challenge of maintaining my 2007 Terracache Champion standing. Other hobbies I engage in on the road are hiking and nature photography, beaded lace knitting and collecting fabrics for quilting.

I recharge my Garmin Forerunner 610 watch from my vehicle backed up by a solar panel and upload data to Garmin's online site when I have access to my laptop. Run safely!

I've had a long relationship with running dating back to joining the cross-country team in 7th grade. I've never been the fastest, but I've always enjoyed running.

I've completed 5 marathons but consider myself retired from that long of a race now. I enjoy half marathons the most but always find trying my luck at being fast during a 5k to be fun as well.

I started my streak because my wife pointed out this crazy group to me knowing full well that I'm just as crazy. It's been great and I've enjoyed the benefits of running every day. I don't see any reason to stop.

JOHN WATTS' STREAK HITS 36 YEARS

My streak anniversary was celebrated with a one mile run. Pretty pathetic. Should have been a 36 mile run, a mile for each year of the streak. I have a gimpy achilles tendon (right where it attaches to the heel) that I am trying to get well. Like many of these nagging injuries, a few weeks without running would probably do wonders. Oh well ... Injury or not, I'm still running 5 miles every Sunday evening with my running friends. I look forward to that every week so it's worth limping around a bit Monday and Tuesday. Hard to believe it's been so many years. Like many of you, I had no intention of starting a streak. I just wanted to get back in shape. I am so appreciative for the Running Streak Association that makes it possible for us all to stay in touch. Happy running to you all.

TRACEY MCKIBBEN'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I'm happy to be still at it. I don't really have anything to update. Unfortunately, I was diagnosed with Thyroid issues about 5 months ago, but once I knew what it was, I realized that I've been experiencing symptoms for the past 2-3 years. So running has been increasingly slow, sluggish and just generally not fun at all. Meds haven't worked so far, so I'm slogging along doing a slow mile or two each day. Hopefully we'll find a med that works soon and I can get back to the fun stuff, but in the mean time, I'm keeping the streak alive and am just glad that there's no time limit.

Gerard Eldering

GERARD ELDERING JOINS USRSA

I started running with my high school track team in about 1978 and running has been a pastime of mine ever since. For me the point of running is to stay fit and reduce stress. Flying in the Air Force, raising a family and running my own business are a lot of hard work and a source of pressure and tension. A run in the morning helps reduce that stress while keeping me healthy and giving me energy for the day's tasks.

When I was younger I would frequently time my runs and push myself to improve my speed and race times. But over the past decade I've come to realize that I enjoy running more when I don't have a competitive goal. So I almost always run without tracking my time and just try to enjoy being outside and moving.

Streak running appealed to me because I could set a running goal without taking away from my carefree running philosophy. I'm committed and run regardless of what the day brings (blizzard, rainstorm, and business travel) and get the stress relieving benefits of running every day.

My streak came to an end on October 6th unfortunately. A couple of days prior, I heard a pop in my right knee. Had it checked out with an MRI and have a complex meniscus tear.

I tried to run with it for couple of days but it was agonizing. Once I realized surgery was required, I decided to cease the streak.

I will be back. The Doctor said in 2-3 weeks from Wednesday's surgery I should be able to get back out running. I will keep you posted.

Growing up as a competitive gymnast and diver, I hated running. Running the mile for gym class was complete torture and I used to walk during 5k races.

After I graduated college and was no longer a NCAA diver, I got into working out. I realized I needed something to work towards and stay motivated. When I began my teaching career in Philly, I was presented with the opportunity to coach the Students Run Philly Style team at my school. This was the start of my passion for running; I was able to mentor kids in my school.

I have suffered from some injuries (overuse in my hip, stress fracture in my heel), but it's totally worth it. I have run in numerous 5k races with SRPS and have shaved minutes off of my time in that distance. I have also run in the Broad Street Race, the biggest 10-mile race in the country. This September I just finished my first half marathon and did so in under 1:50.

Other races that I enjoy are OCR like Tough Mudder and Spartan Races; anything where I can challenge myself and have fun at the same time!

I am officially in love with running and cannot wait to see what further accomplishments I can achieve!

A common saying from a famous Chinese proverb says "A journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step." As cliche as it may be, my two year streak anniversary began when I decided to follow in the steps of my wife Elizabeth who is currently 2.5 years into her streak. Together we have run many miles. Enduring the heat, the cold, the storms and beautiful scenery in our state, New Mexico!

GORDY STRICKLAND'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 1,080 DAYS

Just a quick note to advise that my latest streak is over. After months of visits to sports medicine doctors and physical therapists, and lacking any obvious traumatic injury, the physicians at the Mayo Clinic finally determined my injury to be "chronic." In the simplest of terms my right side hamstring tendons were torn away which left me with constant pain and the inability to race. I could run, but only slowly as the torn tendons made lifting my feet very difficult. Left side is frayed but still mostly attached so for now we're leaving them alone.

Got up early on October 25th for one last stumbling run prior to my surgery later that morning. Surgery consisted of locating the torn tendons, cleaning away the damage and reattaching with pins. I'll be in a brace for 3 weeks and am looking at 3-6 months of rehabilitation. With patience I should be back in shape by Spring!!!

BARRY SACKETT'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

First and foremost, thank you for everything you do to keep this motley crew together. I know I draw strength from each and every member just when I need to know I can take one more step.

My streak has escorted me through my 7th year by granting me a daily time for meditation, contemplation, and a breath of fresh air. I have had a big year, good and bad, and each day I lace up and step out the door I get a boost of confidence that I will finish the run and "Make the Day my Masterpiece." (Thanks for putting that in my head Woody.)

My big running accomplishment for the year started on my 47th belly button birthday when I took off at 5am with the plan to run 47 miles. I picked up my good friend Dave Rettig at mile 6 and kept on trucking. The breeze freshened at our back as we headed west and by the time we made it out 24 miles and were heading home, it was blowing hard and hot in our face. Dave dropped back around mile 27 and I found a couple of the stashes of food and liquid he left before we got back to his house, but I did not plan on the 10 miles I still had left to get home to my house. The last 10 miles of a 47 mile run with limited or no water or food can suck a lot. I stumbled up to a non-running friend's house and terrified his children as I begged for water, but with a little hydration I at least kept moving until I got to mile 45 and found a reserve tank that allowed me to run home.

My next big adventure was the North Face Endurance Challenge – Wisconsin 50 miler in September. Again Dave joined me as we started at 5am and ventured off road onto the trails. I started out too fast, did not eat enough early and fell on my face 4 times, but had more fun than should be legal. What a wonderful tribe of people Ultra/Trail runners seem to be. I have found a home and I plan to stay.

Fellow Streaker, Mark Jasper (his streak is 11 days longer than mine, he is #237 on the active list, I am tied for #238), drove down 6 hours to pace me from mile 28 until I stumbled across the line. He is an amazing person and has an incredible story. I will forever be in his debt for giving me the gift of finishing that distance. My finish encouraged me enough to sign up for a 100 mile race for my belly button birthday next year. Thank you streakers for understanding my twisted logic.

One of the bad things that happened last year was the loss of my father. He died on November 6, 2015, two days after my 6 year streakiversary, so last year I did not really acknowledge this day. The day he died I took off on a run with my brothers and cried for 13 really punishing miles and I have continued the grieving process with a constant padding of my feet every day since.

I do not know if it is possible to express my gratitude for the gift that is my running streak in words. I try to convince those around me all the time and I have only really been successful once (Dan Miller #436 on the active list). I know I will keep trying and share my story for all those who might care to listen. Keep streaking, one day at a time!

BRIAN DANIELS' 2ND STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

I started my first running streak on January 12th, 2014 to stay active during the long and cold Minnesota winter. That streak ended abruptly on February 26th, 2015 at 411 days when I dislocated my kneecap. I thought I could push my dead car up the driveway by myself... I couldn't.

After taking 4 months to rest and recover, I began my current run streak on July 6th, 2015. After initially keeping my mileage low to prevent re-injuring my knee, I am excited to get back to longer distances and running many races in 2017 including the Twin Cities Ultra Loony Challenge in October.

I am very excited to celebrate 9 years of being a streaker!!! This is an awesome program! I have retired after teaching second grade for 40 years! Technically I have been retired for two months. I am a member of the Wausau Health and Fitness club. I use their treadmill four days a week. It has been a nice fall and I ran outside a lot too. I love being a streaker!!!!! Thanks!!!

I mostly run to keep in shape, but also because I really enjoy it. I climb cell phone towers for a living, and it's very important to me to keep up my cardio. It makes my job a lot easier, that's for sure!

I run with my boyfriend, who also started a streak (he's 32 days behind me!). He's a good running partner — mostly quiet and just listens to me rattle on (probably while dying on the inside! Ha!). We run all of our races with my friend/family Katie. I ran with Katie in cross-country in high school, showed with her in 4-H from the time we were munchkins, and now we race!

Our favorite races are obstacle course races (we conquered Spartan Sprint and Tough Mudder), color runs, and anything with dogs... so basically anything out of the ordinary and fun. We even made tutus with bells and glitter once. Don't do it! Your house will be "glitter-fied" for months!!!

I need to give credit to Emily Osinski, who's closing in on 3.5 years this month! She is the one who told me about run streaking and challenged me to start this crazy adventure!

I've run in 5 states, countless cities, day and night, through mud, over and under things, through sickness and injury, and down highways in the middle of nowhere west Texas with my work partner following me in the truck.

It's been an amazing experience, and it ain't over yet! I'm super excited to start this next year and make more memories!

Yes, my little streak rolls on - 9yrs and counting. I'm happy to report that neither injury nor indolence have fettered my commitment to that goal. My biggest impediment over this last year has simply been an alteration in my lifestyle. No longer living as a single man (she's a runner too), I find that my previously regimented schedule is impossible to maintain. The happy news is that I have discovered that a regiment isn't necessary to continue a streak.

There have been many adjustments and alterations in this last wonderful year and they have all presented unique challenges and almost always provided exceptional rewards. Running at 3am on a sub zero morning to make a flight at 7, sneaking in a slightly boozy few miles on a Key West vacation, a 2m hurricane run the day before her VA beach half on Labor Day. Each of these was an adjustment and a challenge, but more than anything a terrific memory.

I will continue to work hard to keep my streak alive. We have a wedding approaching in May that I'm sure will present it's own set of obstacles. I can't wait to run in Greece on our honeymoon. Steak On.

BILL HOWES' STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

This is just a quick reply to let you know that my streak is still intact.

Bill Howes Royal Oak, Michigan My running career began in high school in the early 1980s when a friend pushed me to join the cross-country team so we could have 5 people. I wasn't very good but I didn't care – it was just fun.

Our coach didn't push us and I'm thankful for that. Running should be fun! No one was injured and races were exciting.

I've been a fairly average runner ever since! What I can be proud of is that my pace hasn't really changed much in 30 years so in my late 40s, I'm finally considered a decent runner - I've run 2 Boston Marathons and now regularly place in my age group.

I accidentally started my running streak on 12/23/15 when a friend wanted to do an "easy 3" on my day off. After that day, I just kept going. Currently my goal is at least 3.1 miles a day.

I'm on day #294 now. I've PR'd a few times this year as well. PRing after 30+ years of running makes me happy!

My first goal is to make it to 1 year of streaking and next is to finish out 2016. Not sure what's next!

I am 58 years old. I got back into running when I was 40 years old. I mostly ran 5K's at first. My 5k PR is 20:40. My first half marathon was the Princess Half Marathon. I placed 6th in my age group. My half PR is 1:50 48, in the Rock and Roll in Virginia Beach. I was 4th in my age group. I have done two marathons, Philly and MCM, but really did not care for them.

About three years ago I joined a local running group called CMMD. We are a foundation that raises money, through running, for people in our area suffering from cancer. Our group has also raised over $800,000 for ACS, running Philadelphia's Broad Street Run. I have run BSR twice. I came in 10th in my age group last May.

I just won the Master Division 5k for This Run Is Personnel race, sponsored by CMMD, which raised $80,000.

I started my streak by accident. A friend told me about this streaking group and I thought I would see how far I could go. I started November 28 of 2014 and will be closing in on two years in a couple of weeks. I am hoping to get to my comma, but we will see. It has not always been easy, with illness and injuries, but that is part of the challenge. I think it will be fun just to see my name on the streaking list.

As I say to my running friends: "Streak On."

PAUL YEOMAN JOINS SRI FROM ENGLAND

I started my running streak on July 13th, 2013. This would have been my mum's birthday (67th). I initially decided to start my streak as a charity fundraiser idea raising donations toward Cancer Research UK. My mum lost her battle with breast cancer back in 2001. I soon realized this was going to take on a far bigger challenge.

As I write this, I have just completed 1150 days of running a minimum of 1 mile a day. Within this time, I have completed 41 events ranging from 5K, 10K, half marathon and full marathon. Next year I will be entering my first ultra marathon.

Last year to celebrate my 40th birthday, I decided to run 4 "Big City" marathons. I completed Paris, London, New York, and Athens all in 2015.

I am getting married in December. I plan to run the morning of and through out my honeymoon!

KEITH DECKER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It has been a rewarding journey to complete two years of running every day. I had always exercised avidly throughout my life, however, as my career progressed I found the excuses to skip my workout were continually increasing. Early morning flights, foreign travel, late business dinners, jet lag etc made it increasingly easier to just go to bed.

In early November of 2014 while flying to Halifax, Nova Scotia, I read an article in a running magazine that talked about a group of runners that ran every day (some of them for decades) which led me to search the web for the USRSA. Sitting in my hotel room that night, I rationalized that if I committed to run every day for a year to qualify for the database that I would have no excuse to skip a workout. Additionally, I set a minimum of at least 5 kilometers (3.1 miles) as my goal and figured that a half hour a day would be easy to accommodate in my daily schedule. Was I wrong!

The complexity of balancing a schedule with international travel along with the demands of normal life were a real challenge. The commitment was draining at times and the road seemed long but the goal was always there for me to get to one year. My family became used to my favorite words 'I still have to run' when planning for family events.

Some of the more challenging feats to achieve the goal including running 3 miles in a parking lot at La Guardia airport during a snow storm in street clothes during a flight delay, running in the Dubai airport, and running along a frozen river 60 miles from the North Korean border in 15 degree F weather in shorts and 2 running shirts because I didn't have cold weather gear with me. I have run sick several times, saving up energy throughout the day so that I could run and then go back to bed, and I have run through a three minor lower leg injuries.

Through it all, I kept going with the knowledge that others on the 'list' had done it before and therefore I could. When I concluded my first year, I was contemplating quitting but my wife said that I had just got on the list and couldn't. It was the best thing she could have said!

I have just finished two years and I am in better shape physically than I have been in years. My goal continues to run at least 5 kilometers daily and I look forward to updating you in another year on my journey. MIA STRAND JOINS SRI FROM SWEDEN

Two years ago I wasn't running at all and now I have done my first run streak year.

After 12 years of pain from rheumatism I had a hard time to take my daily walk and I never thought I would be able to run again, at least not longer distances. One day I got tired of not being able to exercise and move my body the way I wanted. Therefore I just started to run. I didn't care if I was in pain, I just wanted to move forward.

I started to run two times a week a mile or two. After a while I could start running a little bit longer and suddenly I was running 4 times a week. It was then I for the first time read about Run streak. I immediately felt that this form of training was something I wanted to try.

I started my streak in October 29, 2015. It was the best thing I have been doing for myself for years. Since I started I haven't had more pain in my body than before my streak. I haven't been sick and my muscles have grown stronger thru the year. Mentally I have learned to be a lonesome runner.

At first my longest distance was 10k but then it suddenly it become 16, 20 and 42k. Yes, in Oslo September 2016 I run my first marathon. I did it with pain but with so much pleasure!

I haven't regret a single day that I started my streak and I have no plans to stop. As long as I can and my body is up to it I will continue my streak. I already apply for my next marathon and the journey will be to Spitsbergen Marathon in June 2017.

I look forward to healing and to start training again in a few weeks. Until then I am able to bike.

BRUCE SACKINGER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS; BREAKS ALASKA'S STREAK RECORD

I'm pleased to report that my running streak continues. As I write this, I have completed 730 days. My original goal was to break the "Alaskan" streak record of 548 days, which I accomplished on May 18, 2016. Last I checked, I was still the only Alaskan on the list, but I hope to have company soon.

Despite the inevitable march into middle age, the consistency of streaking has really improved my running this year, and I set new PR's at 5K (17:56), 10K (39:04), and the 1/2 Marathon (1:26:34), as well as a new race PR at our most important local race, the quite hilly Equinox Marathon (3:29:34).

I am also looking forward (for the first time) to running the Boston Marathon this spring, though training will be quite the challenge in the winter up here in Fairbanks! I have thought of making Boston the last day of my streak, but I'm leaning toward just continuing. We'll see. I hope you all are doing great-I love to see the updates!

ANGELA MARTLAND'S JOINS SRI FROM ENGLAND

I started running quite late, only in my early 40s, when I realised that I wanted to look after myself better. I began by using an app produced by the UK NHS called "Couch to 5k" which aims to get people running 5km within a 9-week training programme. It worked!

Feeling sure that I wanted to keep running, but not confident that I could achieve any long distances at that time, I still wanted a challenge. After reading an article in Elle Magazine by the retired run-streaker Amy Lawrenson, I was inspired to give it a go.

I began my run-streak on 24th October 2015. This would not only be the beginning of a running journey, but a life-changing experience. I never expected that this would challenge me so much psychologically as well as physically, and I never knew that I was as determined as I turned out to be.

I logged my runs on Twitter using the name @heworthflash, posting a tweet every single day of my streak. The support I received from Twitter followers, as well as friends and family was overwhelming.

I completed my run-streak on 24th October 2016, a streak of 367-days. I ran 524 miles over the course of my year, in 5 countries. I ran in 4 running events: 2 of 5km, 1 of 5 miles, and 1 of 10km. I also fell in love with trail running, and I know that's where my running heart lies. I am hugely proud of my run-streak achievement, and of the fact that I can now apply for membership of the SRI. Although my streak has finished, my running journey continues. I have registered for my first marathon in September of 2017, and I can't wait!

JIM MERRITT'S STREAK HITS 15 YEARS

Never in my wildest dreams could I ever have imagined reaching this point in my streak. Back when my streak started I had no idea that other people might be doing this or that there was this neat organization for people who do.

As I approach my 69th birthday in a couple of days, I am reminded every single day what a blessing it is to run every day. I never ran at all until I was 50 years old and after giving up a 30-year addiction to cigarettes. Hopefully my running streak will outlast my smoking streak.

This year will be my best ever for racing. It just happened that I had a 5K scheduled on my 15th Streakaversary. When I walked up to pick up my bib for the race I nearly freaked out when they handed me number "15." The race director took these photos and announced to everyone about my streak when I went up to receive my 1st place age group award. That was a great day for sure. Now on to 30. I am number 116 on the active streak list and climbing.

DON BROWN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 617 DAYS

I woke in a cold sweat. It is dark. But what time is it? Please be before midnight! I can still get my mile in! 3AM??? Crap!!! I forgot to run my mile. Biked to and from work and skipped the gym. Too busy cutting the grass before darkness came. Forgot to take 10 minutes to run a mile right outside my house. It would have taken less than 10 minutes, if I had only remembered. 617 days wasn't a long streak by anyone's standard, but it was my streak and now it is over. So I regret to inform you that as of 9/19/2016, my streak came to an end.

I took a day off and have started a new streak on 9/21/2016. When I hit a year, I'll request to be added back to the registry. Until then, I'll just keeping plugging along.

JIM MEULENDYKE JOINS USRSA

A little over a year ago I read an article about my friend's father, Patrick Ferry, who had run every day for more than 4 years and I was completely blown away. I told my (now) wife how cool I thought that was and was motivated to take up my own streak...so I began my running streak the following day. Throughout the past year I have gotten married, taken a honeymoon, gone on vacations, and traveled often for work. I have found the streak serving as the steadying part of my day - helping me become more consistent, and subsequently better, in other areas of my life. Those areas include, but aren't limited to: a more consistently caring and present husband and focusing on my health on a more regular basis.

Though I wouldn't consider myself a runner, I find it to be a hobby that serves as a great barometer to personal challenges for both mind and body. One of these challenges has given me the opportunity to join the Streak Running Club, of which I'm honored to be a member. Other previous challenges were a sprint triathlon, a half marathon (after which I promised I would never run that far again), a marathon (I did not stick to that promise), and a training commitment to attempt completing a half Ironman in 2017.

Overall I am thankful that I read the article about Dr. Ferry a year ago and decided to take on this challenge. I am also appreciative of my health throughout the streak and for a supportive wife and family. I'm not positive how long I will carry on, but I'm excited to continue taking this adventure one day at a time.

I started running at age 27 to lose weight. That was May of 2007. It soon became my way of life. That fall, I finished my first half marathon. The next fall, I finished my first marathon. My husband had run fairly conistently for a while before I started, but really increased his mileage once I started training for a half marathon. We usually race the same races.

I teach at a large, urban high school. In the spring of 2011, I started coaching the distance athletes in track & field. The fall of 2011 was my first season coaching high school cross-country. I still coach both. I volunteer with my runners in many local races.

Some of the runners I have found most inspirational in my reading include Dave McGillivray, Emil Zatopek, Jim Ryun, Glenn Cunningham, Louis Zamperini, Kathrine Switzer, & Bart Yasso. Dave McGillivray inspired me to run my age in miles on birthday, which I accomplished on my 36th, 33rd, and 31st birthdays.

Because so few ultra courses are certified, I'm currently the female record holder for 50K in Kansas.

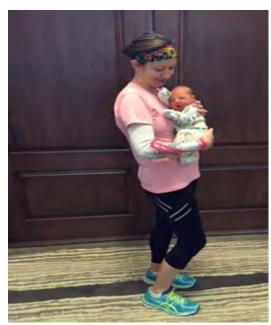

I am surprised how easy it has been in this first year to run every day. It's hard to imagine why I used to think I needed a rest day.

I'm so glad I started a running streak and I have several friends and a runner that I used to coach, who are streaking now.

I intend to keep my streak as long as I am able.

ROXANNE LORENZ'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS; MAINTAINS STREAK THROUGH PREGANCY AND BIRTH

Thank you and sorry that it has taken me so long to reply! I have a 7 week old, so life as of lately has been busy. Thankfully I was able to keep my streak going through my pregnancy! The last month of my pregnancy I was running the minimum of 1 mile/day. I ran the morning my baby was born, had him at 4 pm and then ran my mile the following day in my hospital room. Thankfully they are good sized rooms.:)

THE FINISH LINE By: Mark Washburne

As a general rule, the media that covers running mostly celebrates younger athletes. Sure, most races now have age group winners and occasionally a Masters runner will do something exceptional to garner some press. For the most part, however, the runners that grab the headlines are the winners of the major races, who tend to be younger. While our running streak association tries to celebrate all our athletes that run every day, we tend to buck the media trend by championing runners with the longest streaks, who tend to be older.

Not surprising, therefore, this issue continues our tradition of highlighting runners with outstanding streaks by featuring William Stark, 69, a College Professor from St. Louis, Missouri, on our cover. Professor's Stark's streak surpassed the forty-year mark in September – an outstanding accomplishment only achieved by 14 others in the world.

In another article in this issue, more Masters runners received much due praise with the excellent survey compiled by Steve DeBoer reported in his essay, "Traversing the Tundra After Age 50." Not surprising, the runner who compiled the most mileage after age 50 is Herb Fred, 87, from Houston, Texas. Dr. Fred, as you might recall, was featured on the cover of our Spring 2014 issue when his lifetime miles neared a quarter of a million miles. I had the honor of talking to Dr. Fred in early November and received some sad news. Dr. Fred seriously injured himself when he fell off his treadmill and decided to end his pursuit of more lifetime running miles. We, of course, wish him a speedy recovery and also much luck in the future.

Another Masters athlete that caught my attention, and who seems to get stronger as he ages, is Ken Johnson, from Huntsville, Texas. Mr. Johnson tops Steve DeBoer's list of races run after age 50 by finishing 783 races after reaching the half-century mark. While most of us race less as we age, the opposite is true for Mr. Johnson. In fact, he has already run three times as many races in his 70s, at age 75, than he ran in the entire decade of his 50s. He is now averaging 70 races a year in his 70s. If truth be told, his age defying race numbers were such an anomaly from most athletes that I decided I better contact him for a list of the races he had run in case we are challenged on the data. Within minutes, I received the complete list that included the race, date, distance, and his time. I immediately apologized for doubting the numbers and also noted "I should have known better . . . that streak runners get better and stronger with age."

Like Ken Johnson, I also like to race. On November 6th, Diane and I ran the New York City Marathon. It was my lucky 777th lifetime race, 32nd marathon, and 6th NYC Marathon - 1985, 1991, 2006, 2009, 2010, & 2016. My time of 3:46:19 at this year's finish, at age 60, was 8 minutes and 35 seconds faster than my 1985 finish - 3:54:54 - at age 29. I also qualified for my 14th consecutive Boston Marathon to be run in 2018. As for Diane, this was her first New York and second marathon after running Chicago in 2014. Diane has worked in Manhattan for the last three decades so she enjoyed the opportunity – as did I - to see her city in a whole new light by running the five boroughs with thousands of her friends and millions cheering her along the way.

As always, good luck to all as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

MEMBERSHIP—DUES

Membership in Streak Runners International and the United States Running Streak Association, Inc. is open to all interested individuals.

SRI/USRSA dues are $20.00 annually or $250.00 lifetime. Credit for one-half of all previously paid dues will be applied to the payment of lifetime dues. Once lifetime membership status is achieved, no further dues will be assessed.

A completely filled out and signed membership application must accompany the dues payment. Applications may be downloaded from our website at www.runeveryday.com, or will be mailed upon request.

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
