BRIAN CASEY'S STREAK HITS 40 YEARS

Let the record show that at 5:48am on May 9, 2017 I officially reached the 40 year mark of my running streak.

I humbly moved into the Legend category of the USRSA.

Unlike many of the Runners in the USRSA, I do not have an impressive running background or portfolio.

I was never part of a Track or Cross Country team, never won a race, never posted a great time.

I just ran....for 40 years.

When I was asked to send an article to the USRSA, I was going to keep it very short.

“40 years completed...still running”.....

But, as I thought about it, that would not be fair.

It would not be fair to all the people that my running streak touched over 4 decades. While I ran mostly by myself – I was never alone. I have a great wife and 4 children (now adults) who were always supportive. In fact, my Streak would have ended in May of '84 had my wife (Fiancé at the time) not laced my sneakers when I had a back problem.

Although running was “my deal” and something that “Dad did,” I am now keenly aware that my running streak was not unnoticed. It was not anonymous. In this day of instant everything there is something good about commitment. It is a good thing to persist, grind, work through the tough times. Adversity reveals character. I believe that is the lasting story of my accomplishment.

I received some congratulations today and it brought back some funny and sad stories that 40 years offer.

- Being escorted home by the local police as I went for a run in the middle of a 36 inch Blizzard.
- Youthful bet of running from Bergen County NJ to Belmar at the Jersey shore.
- September 11, 2001 – running home from my office in NYC because the Bridges and Tunnels were closed.

To my wife Kathy – Thank you for being there through it all.

To my children Jennifer, Shannon, Ryan and Sean – you have never known a day that I did not run. Thank you for being patient.

To the USRSA – Thank you for letting me join the Club!

Cumulative Mileage 90,228.1.

“In running, it doesn’t matter whether you come in first, in the middle of the pack or last. You can say, ‘I have finished.’ There is a lot of satisfaction in that.”

TIM WOODBRIDGE'S STREAK HITS 39 YEARS
By: Tim Woodbridge
Allentown, Pennsylvania

Thanks for the 39th anniversary wishes from the USRSA! Always look forward to that each year – as well as the chance to write about some of the events of the last year!

I was really sorry to hear about Ron Hill breaking his streak – it makes you appreciate your own streak as you see those ahead of you sometimes have to stop. My comment always used to be when people asked “will it bother you to break your streak?” – I would immediately say – “nope – because they will be closing the lid on my casket – so I really won’t care at that point...” Well, the last few years as several of the guys that I have known for a long time – had to say they just couldn’t keep going – you realize that the “streak” isn’t necessarily up to you! That said – as I read about the Mark Covert and Ron Hill of our group – you do come to that realization – that you were blessed to be able to do what you did – for as long as you did – and really just enjoy the accomplishment!

I have to admit – I really enjoy the Facebook page and all of the new runners that are starting up their streaks; hitting that 1st year; earning their comma's; etc. – It just makes you smile and root for everyone – not that it is for everyone – but it is a very inspiring thing!

I have mentioned that last couple of years – I've had to "re-behave" in terms of training regimen due to some arthritis in my knees! So only ran 810 miles this last year (total streak miles of 78,437) – but spent almost 3000 minutes in the running pool at my gym (30 meter pool with 4 ft. of water with 8 lanes to run laps in). Not a real exciting workout - but this type of training still allows me to get out and run a few races...

I joined a "Bootcamp" Group, which meets on Saturdays at 6 a.m. – did it as a bit of a challenge (the director wanted an "old guy" to join the group... that comment hurt a bit tho!) - as the director has a bunch of 30-40 year olds complaining about the workouts – he figured if I could just finish – they'd have to shut up... So I went – and I did finish the course that morning – just barely though... (I actually asked my wife if she could brush my teeth the next morning as I couldn't lift the toothbrush...) I've been doing this now for 3 months – and I do have to modify some parts of the workout – but I have to admit – it has been a real good addition to my workout even though there is very little running... We all have nick-names and avatars – so naturally mine is "Streaker"... Haven't done upper body or core workouts in 30 years – highly recommend it – assuming you have an director than understands jumping over fences etc. may look a little different the way you do it!

While I don't run it anymore (30 times was enough...) - I continue to be involved in with the Boston Marathon (the Elite Runners Fluid Stations), and makes me still feel very much a part of the race. I have joked that getting up at 4 a.m. - setting up 8 fluid stations over 22 miles of the course – then tearing down and dropping off the BAA vehicles back in Hopkinton at around 4 p.m. – it might be easier to run... So this year I had my Fitbit on – and I logged over 11 miles of running as a part of what I do that day – so I am thinking maybe I should take it easy this year and start running it again!

I did my birthday "run" again this year... the pool at the gym had a swim meet – so I bagged the one mile swim, biked 47, and then ran 12... This year will be 60 – so looking forward to that!

Always appreciate getting the newsletter and catching up with all the different streak anniversaries! So keep up the great work – and keep on running!

"Age is strictly a case of mind over matter. If you don't mind, it doesn't matter."

- Jack Benny

[Editors note: As we celebrate Tim Woodbridge's 39th streak anniversary and birthday runs, I sought a quote from comedian Jack Benny. "Happy 39th Birthday to Jack Benny!" became one of the best running gags on the Jack Benny Show, celebrating Benny's perpetual 39th birthday. By the time of Jack Benny's death in 1974, he celebrated his 39th birthday 41 times. Newspapers across the country announced Jack Benny's death with the headline "Jack Benny Dies at Age 39."]

Ronald Kmiec

The Boston Marathon Quarter Century Club By: Ronald Kmiec

USRSA streakers are not the only OCD runners out there. My longest-lived USRSA streak began on 11/28/75 and ended due to a heart attack on 11/26/2007, just 1 day short of 32 years. I'm now 9 1/2 years into my new streak. The same mindset that USRSA "streakers" possess in abundance, also motivates those runners who love the familiarity of a particular race. I would venture that the Boston Marathon is the Everest of all marathons, and to run it is the goal of most marathoners.

I ran my first Boston Marathon in 1974, six years out of the Army, and startled by the chance sighting, while traffic was stopped on Mass. Ave., of a fellow Artist Diploma student finishing the 1972 race in 2:45 when we were both at the New England Conservatory of Music. That inspiration led to what has now become another obsession/motivation for me to the point of completing 44 consecutive Boston Marathons.

It was a short newspaper article in 1991 about Neil Weygandt, who had just completed his 25th consecutive Boston finish that intrigued me, and that began my commitment, with 18 under my belt, to make this an annual rite of spring for as long as I could keep running. Neil & I had run in a number of Ultra races during the 70's, and in 1999 (his 33rd, my 26th) he joined up with me by Boston College after cresting Heartbreak Hill and noticing my name and Boston Stats on my shirt. We decided to run the last 5 miles together, tying at the finish line.

In the 2001 Boston Marathon Program Book there was a feature article about Johnny Kelley's Boston career, a listing of his 58 finishes, and the 16 runners identified to that point who had equaled or surpassed Johnny's string of 24 consecutive Boston finishes. I decided to form what has now evolved into the current Quarter Century Club. My original concept was to be known as the "Johnny Kelley Club," listing those who had met his 24 consecutive finish threshold. The BAA wasn't receptive to us using his name, so the metamorphosis into the "Quarter Century" standard was established. With the eventual cooperation and assistance of the BAA, more runners who met that criterion were identified, and the current membership now stands at 120 men and 9 women.

I formed the QCC because I believed the hundreds of thousands of runners who invest so much of themselves in this holy grail of marathoning without the prospect of winning it should have a goal that all can achieve if they persist. The QCC embodies the true spirit of the Boston Marathon, and there is a palpable excitement I sense from within the ever-increasing "crop" of new members we gain each year for whom inclusion in the QCC was a motivating factor.

While the BAA recognizes and publishes only the current Active Streak Listing, I have always maintained the "Retired" Listing to never let those who have achieved so much simply drift off to oblivion...once a QCC member, always a QCC member.

It is only fitting that the QCC has been granted special perquisites by the BAA after years of my persistent advocacy. The members symbolize the epitome of what a Boston Marathoner strives for, year after year after year. The membership includes the likes of Ben Beach, the first person to ever put together an unbroken string of 50 consecutive Boston finishes, 14 who have 40 or more consecutive finishes, another 5 with 40+cumulative finishes, and Andy Kotulski who has finished 652 marathons in 85 countries!

While there are a few QCC members among the USRSA membership, I'm hoping more of the USRSA marathoners continue their Boston streaks and are motivated to attain that 25-year threshold to join us. I'd love to hear from those USRSA members who have a Boston streak in progress how close they are to 25. Mark Washburne, having completed his 13th consecutive Boston, only has to hold on another 12 years!

"Give it hell down the hills! Give it hell down the hills!"

- Race Director Jock Semple to Amby Burfoot, en rout to Burfoot's 1968 Boston Marathon win.

DAVE MCGILLIVRAY ON QUARTER CENTURY CLUB

At the request of SRI/USRSA, the following is from the race director of the Boston Marathon, Dave McGillivray, who is currently ranked 3rd on the Quarter Century Club list with 45 consecutive Boston Marathon finishes:

“Those who have run a bunch of Boston Marathons in a row share a special bond. The race is now 121 years old and many of these folks have run close to a third of them and most a quarter of them. That’s pretty amazing. Just to be in the same place on the same day for more than 25 consecutive years is rare and then to add a marathon to the mix makes it even more remarkable. It’s a personal honor to share this unique comradery with all these folks. And, much of the credit goes to Ron Kmiec, himself a member in distinction of the club as it was Ron who took action and brought attention to the extraordinary accomplishments of these incredible runners. They all are now deeply engrained in the history and tradition of the most prestigious marathon in the world.”

The Quarter Century Club of the Boston Marathon

The Quarter Century Club was formed by Ronald Kmiec in 2001 to honor the achievements of John A. Kelly, the one person who most embodied the spirit of the quintessential Boston Marathoner, and to identify all those runners who had completed at least 24 consecutive Bostons, which was the most Johnny had completed. Sixteen were identified at that time, and the BAA began listing those with active streaks in its press releases and Results Books. The QCC became an official USATF Club, and has evolved into an association of those who have finished 25 or more Boston Marathons as official, numbered runners. The BAA currently lists only those with active streaks, but the QCC continues to recognize all those with current or retired streaks including cumulative finishes of 25 or more. QCC members meet only once each year, during Marathon weekend in Boston and along the course on Marathon day, and many communicate with each other throughout the year. A few statistics: the 129 members of the QCC (including 9 women) have a total of 4,204 Boston finishes among them, and come from 30 states (MA [38], PA [12], and NY [10] having the most), Canada [7], and Russia [1]. Ten are deceased.

It should be noted about membership in the QCC: these are statistics and results of “Finishers.” While all the individuals are “official numbered runners,” about 1 in 5 have qualified for every one of their Bostons according to the BAA published qualification standards. These will be identified at some future time when those statistics are complete. Most have, at one time or another, been granted exceptions, waivers, or other BAA-authorized inclusion into the race.

In 1978 set the U.S. Age Record of 8:54:08 (8:36 pace) for age 35, the 16th fastest U.S. time at that distance.

408 total races, including 3 Triathlons (one Half-Ironman in 2001) since learning to swim in 2001. 1 DNF: 1st race (1972 Holyoke Marathon).

Retired running streak (running at least 1 mile/day) 11/28/75 to 11/26/07 (11,687 days). This is the United States Running Streak Association 25th longest retired streak in the U.S. Retired due to a heart attack on 11/22/07 and subsequent angioplasty and implantation of a stent. New Streak begun 12/28/07 to present.

Age: 74 - Began running in March, 1971, and have run over 59,000 miles, with an annual high of 2700 miles, a low of 309 miles.

Historical analysis of the Boston Marathon and the Berlin Marathon

By: Roger A. Urbancsik

The following analysis is divided into three sections, the first of which depicts the Official Times of the 1st, 10th, 100th, and 1,000th place finishers (overall and women) in the Boston Marathon since 1975. Note that with the exception of elite runners, chip times have been used as Official Times since 2006. And note that over the past 40 years, the 1st and 10th place OA finishers have improved by 1-2 minutes, whereas the 100th and 1,000th place OA finishers have slowed by 6-7 minutes--despite advances in training, nutrition, equipment, and technology, easier qualifying times, and a huge increase in the number of runners.

The second section compares winning times (overall and women) of the Boston Marathon and Berlin Marathon since 1984. Prize money has been awarded at the Boston Marathon since 1986, and at the Berlin Marathon since 1992. Note that the Boston Marathon is ineligible for world record consideration due to its large start-finish separation as well as its 3.1 m/km average descent.

The third section includes charts of the Top Ten finishers (overall and women) of the Boston Marathon since 1975 and the Berlin Marathon since 1981. These charts were designed to assess whether the introduction of prize money influenced which nations sent their best marathoners. Each finisher's citizenship is noted, and the respective International Olympic Committee (IOC) Country Codes are color-coded by continent.

The impact of prize money is remarkable: From 1975-85, USA men garnered 63.6% (21/33) of the Top Three places, but over the past 32 years, they claimed only 4.2% (4/96) of the podium finishes. And, similarly, USA women claimed 66.7% (22/33) of the Top Three places from 1975-85, but reached the podiums only seven times (7.3%) since 1986. Moreover, these "sea change" charts show that the North American runners who previously dominated the Top Ten finishers at the Boston Marathon, as well as the European runners who previously prevailed in the Berlin Marathon, have been supplanted by African runners.

“Get going. Get up and walk if you have to, but finish the damned race.”

- Ron Hill, winner of the 1970 Boston Marathon, to Jerome Drayton during that race.

“The event that certainly tries men’s soles.”

- Jerry Nason, Boston sportswriter, about the 1945 Boston Marathon.

For those of you not familiar with the most famous fictitious detective, Sherlock Holmes, one of his most well-known quotations was, “The game is afoot!” which obviously refers to the necessity of being very physically fit to work as a private investigator, with running being the fastest form of foot power. Mr. Holmes was also noted for using a 7% solution (of cocaine), when he had no interesting cases going on and got bored playing his violin. As streak runners, we have less of a propensity for “Coke,” as things go better for us when we experience the 60% solution – that is the attempt to run daily for at least 60% of our lives. Among streak runners, it is more challenging than covering 100,000 miles (60 of our group has accomplished that).

Though Ted Corbitt and Bob Ray were the earliest US streak runners that have been certified, neither of them actually achieved 60% (Bob was at 55.9% when he retired his 38-year streak in 2005). Bob Hensley was the first to reach 60% in 1992. Mark Covert followed in 1995 and Steve DeBoer in 1996. For comparison, Ron Hill, who began his running streak December 1964, at age 26, did not reach 60% until 2005 (he was at 66.51% when his 52-years of daily runs ended in January 2017). Twelve years ago there were only 9 runners in this category in the US. Now there are 40 (though Chester T is removed from list as he has not verified whether his daily runs continue), with 8 more within 2% of that number. Bob Hensley was also the first to reach 70% in 2006, before his 3rd running streak ended. Now there are 8 that have been over 70%, including Joel Pearson, who began his streak before his 9th birthday.

Here is the list of those who have run at least 1 mile daily (along with their age and years of longest streak) for at least 60% of their life as of June 1, 2017:

Steve DeBoer	62	46 yrs.	73.57% (74.97% if include period he ran less than 1 mile some days)
Jon Sutherland	66	48 yrs.	71.99%
Steve Gathje	62	44 yrs.	71.98%
Joel Pearson	31	22 yrs.	71.91%
Dave Hamilton	62	43 yrs.	71.45%
Nick Morganti (2 streaks)	60	35 yrs.	71.29%
Mark Covert	66	45 yrs.	67.63% (dropping, 71.66% highest when he ended his streak)
Alex Galbraith	66	45 yrs.	68.18%
Brian Casey	58	40 yrs.	68.11%
William Benton (2 streaks)	67	40 yrs.	67.63%
John Roemer IV	57	38 yrs.	67.30%
Gary Jones (2 streaks)	65	39 yrs.	67.09% (dropping, as currently not running daily)

John Watts	61	36 yrs	59.55%
Charles Groseth	59	35 yrs.	59.38%
Dave Melissas	57	33 yrs.	59.19%
C. David Todd	65	38 yrs	58.94%
Tim Masters	66	39 yrs.	58.70%
Fred Murolo	60	35 yrs.	58.69%
Ken Birse	57	33 yrs.	58.69% (dropping, as currently not running daily)
Julie Maxwell	66	33 yrs.	58.38%
Bill Shires	52	30 yrs.	58.35%
Don Slusser (4 streaks)	65	27 yrs.	57.98% (dropping, as currently not running daily)

With now over 1500 individuals documented running daily for one year or longer, it is still important to recognize we are not immune to at least a couple of things, taxes being one of them. Here is a list of those who have taken their running to a new level:

Allen Kayner *	MI	11 Jan 1939 – 26 Sep 2001 age 62

*These individuals ran every day but never submitted their streaks for certification by the USRSA.

After 2007, I list the oldest streakers once they reached 1 year, except for those over age 80 (Wendell and Herb), who got listed when previous streaks ended, even though they had only reached about 9 months. To be consistent, Herb Fred could be listed 1/20/16-4/20/16, when his last streak ended.

PS If Lauren Thorson continues her daily running, she will reach 60% before her 13th birthday!

INTERVIEW WITH AUTHOR LAURA LEE HUTTENBACK

How did you meet Raven?

When I moved to Miami Beach, I would pass Raven running on the sand during my evening runs. He is a conspicuous fellow—shirtless and hairy with a mullet, wearing all black, looking a little like Forrest Gump—and I became curious about his story and why all these different people were running with him. One Sunday afternoon, I was soaking in sunshine on the beach when he happened to stop in front of my beach towel. We started talking, and he said, “I’ve probably been running since before you were born. When’s your birthday?” I told him August 1st, 1982, and he said, “Oh, that was a Sunday.” I was like, Whoa. He invited me to run with him. That Tuesday, I was waiting for him at the Fifth Street Lifeguard Stand.

Why did Raven start running?

The short answer to this question is that he became friends with two boxers named Bulldog and Killer, who were training at the Fifth Street Gym. For endurance training, Bulldog and Killer would run a few miles on the beach, and they invited Raven to join them. Raven felt like he was dying on the first run but when he finished two miles, endorphins were pumping through his body, and he felt great. He felt like he’d accomplished something, and he wanted more.

How has Miami Beach changed since he started the streak?

When Raven started the streak in 1975, Miami Beach was known as “God’s Waiting Room,” where old people were just sitting out on their porches, waiting to die. Or South Beach was known as a Kosher retirement community or a sleepy surfer town. Since then, Miami has been known for the Cocaine Cowboys, the Mariel Boatlift, Miami Vice, Gianni Versace, and now a home or vacation spot for people living glamorous, flashy lives. The city is an international mecca, and Raven has run through all iterations. He’s the one thing that hasn’t changed.

Who have you met through Raven?

Every eight miles is an opportunity to make a new friend or at least hear a great story. I met two of my best friends, Yellow Rose and Jurisprudence, through Raven. Once, when my car broke down, a Raven runner named Hitter, who is the Fire Chief of Miami-Dade County, recommended a mechanic. There is no better person to get a referral from than a Fire Chief, and I was taken care of very well. I also met a lifeguard called Teen Idol, who worked at 31st Street, two blocks from my apartment. Whenever I went swimming, I would check in with him, and he’d keep me safe. Raven’s girlfriend, Miracle, is one of the most intelligent and articulate people I have ever met. Through Raven, you meet all kinds of unique and wonderful individuals.

Take me through a typical eight-mile run with Raven.

Runners start gathering at the Fifth Street Lifeguard stand around 5:15 PM. We chat and stretch as we get ready for the run. At 5:30 PM, with Raven in the lead, we start jogging away from the water and stand toward the hard-packed sand. Immediately, Raven will launch into “Roll Call,” where, with the fanfare of a wrestling announcer, he will introduce every runner in attendance with their nickname and a little tagline or sometimes a song. For instance, with me, he always says, “She’s not moonshine, she’s White Lightning!”

And why are you called White Lightning?

Well, Raven says, “She’s fast, she’s white, and she’s from Georgia, where they make moonshine.” (White Lightning is another name for moonshine.) But another story is that, while I was walking to the Beach, two homeless men were standing on the corner of Fifth Street and Ocean Drive. One of them saw me coming and said, “Hello, Pink,” because I was wearing a pink dress. This got the other one’s attention, and he turned to look at me. Staring me up and down in one felt motion, the man announced, “Good afternoon, White Lightning.” You can get a lot of street commentary in Miami Beach, but this man’s delivery was hilarious and worthy of recognition by laughter.

That was the same day I met Raven, and the name stuck. I will admit that it can sometimes make for awkward interactions outside the beach context, like when Raven sends me letters (as mail is his preferred means of communication), he always addresses them to White Lightning, and I’m pretty sure my postman thinks I’m a drug dealer.

Does everyone get a nickname?

When you finish your first eight miles, you get a nickname, and Raven adds your name to his master list of runners, which now numbers over 2,500 people. On the first run, Raven will do a little informal interview. He’ll ask about your hobbies, your passions, obsessions, where you’re from, dietary habits, past nicknames—any little thing can inspire a nickname. Personally, I love the tradition. Knowing that Raven will give a nickname, people are more likely to reveal themselves. And a nickname makes you feel a part of something.

What are some of your favorite stories?

Um, my favorite stories come out to be about 250 pages.

Describe the typical Raven Runner.

This question really is impossible, because there is no “typical” runner, and that’s one reason that makes the group so special. The youngest runner is six, and the oldest is over eighty. Runners come from every American state and 86 countries. I’ve met conservative Republicans and lifelong Socialists. I’ve met judges, convicts, homeless people, millionaires, doctors, and lifeguards. The thing that unites us is Raven, running, and often a desire to be true to ourselves.

What was about him that made you want to write a book?

Curiosity. Every eight miles with Raven gave me another glimpse into his life, but I always came away with more questions than answers. As a person who loves to travel, I was fascinated by this man who hasn't left his hometown in over four decades. And how did a guy who looked so strange on the surface attract such varied and special individuals? What was the source of his magnetism? What is it about running that unites people and keeps us sane (or insane)? Today Raven has all kinds of back problems and injuries, yet he keeps the streak alive. I kept coming back to the question of: What does a person do when the thing he loves is both killing him and keeping him alive? Raven defies so many stereotypes of Miami Beach, and through him, I learned a history that nobody else could tell. For all these reasons, I just had to record this story of Raven, his community, and the transient city that I shared with him.

Laura Lee Huttenbach, a graduate of the University of Virginia, has been a serious athlete since her older brothers taught her how to slide tackle in soccer when she was four. In high school as a four-sport star, she was named Female Athlete of the Year for the state of Georgia. She moved to South Beach in 2011 after finishing her first book—The Boy Is Gone, the life story of a Kenyan independence leader whom she met while backpacking in Africa. During her evening runs in Miami Beach, she met Raven and became fascinated by his story. While running with Raven, she learned Miami Beach history and met characters of the past and present who were unlike any she'd ever known. ## JOHN WOOD JOINS USRSA

I am going to say my running career started in September of 2010. That was when I decided to do more than a couple of 20 minute jogs twice a week during the winter just so I wouldn't have lost all my fitness when it was time to get back on my bike. I set myself a goal of running my first 10K in a bit over 20 years before spring and the start of cycling season. I completed that 10K by the first week of December and didn't know what to do next, so I signed up for a half marathon in March. That first half turned into a second half a month later and I have yet to get back on my bike.

As I was going to turn 60 in 2015, I thought it would be a good idea to see if I could run every day during that year. So I started my first streak attempt on New Years Eve, 2014. I made it to May 9, when a rolled ankle on a trail race made me take some time off. The ankle felt strong enough to run every day after a few weeks, so I started again on June 17. This time I made it to the end of February, when a fall at home sent me to the hospital for a few days. Attempt number 3 started on March 11, 2015 and is still going.

During this first full year I ran 2,364 miles and had 10 races: 1 10K, 2 12Ks, 1 half marathon, 1 25K, 1 30K, and 4 marathons. Since September 2010 I have run 10,046 miles and counting. I also earned my Idiots certificate by completing the Fellowship of the Idiots run. It just seemed the thing to do if you are going to run every day.

No idea how long I will continue, but it has been fun.

TODD VITOLS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

No changes to my running streak – still active at 1,390 miles as of my 2 year anniversary date. As a “Clydesdale” of the running world, I'm working to increase my overall average daily mileage. My goal is to complete the year averaging at least 3 miles/day. Some days the running seems almost effortless and on other days it seems challenging just to achieve the minimum mileage. Whether it's an easy run or a bit of a struggle, I always feel great after I'm done and can claim my streak is still alive and kicking.

I'm also so very proud of my wife Cathy for joining USRSA and recently achieving her 1 year anniversary! She's tough and competitive and now we can rely on each other for making sure we get our runs in as well as spurring each other on to make each run a good one.

JEFF GOULD'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

The streak is alive, 7 years and still going. Couple of years or so to exceed the longest streak I've ever run (9+ years). Things are going well. The miles are there and consistent with the last few years at 60-65 per week, though the race times are not what they used to be :). The effort is the same. The numbers on the old watch just get a little bigger with each passing year, except now that I've passed the age of 50, I'm not accepting it :).

VICKY DOUGLAS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I cannot believe it has been two years already. Being from Minnesota it is always a challenge to get lots of miles in during eight months of the year because I hate the cold. But I brave it when I need to as do all us real Minnesotans.

I do a few trail races, 5k's and 10k's and it was my third year of the Medtronic 10 miler. I did my first half marathon at Lake Powell and a Ragnar Relay. Both with my friend who was the one that said we should become streakers. Both were amazing experiences and the training to be ready for them was just as memorable.

For the second year in a row, I spent the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday barely keeping my streak alive as last year my son was in the hospital for four days and this year I was with my mom at the hospital for seven days. The only time I left the room was to get my mile in and it was probably my saving grace.

My next big goal is to get my comma.

Other than that I am a pretty boring runner. I don't do a set distance every day. I run for fun and to listen to my music. I started running in my 40's so I always tell everyone that it is never too late to do something you didn't realize you love.

Not sure what else you would like but thank you for letting us have a spot to give an update. No one really understands what it means to run everyday.

JULIE MAXWELL'S 2ND STREAK HITS 5 YEARS

Although hampered by a nagging SI joint, I have continued my running streak. The pace has been very slow some days: 14 + minutes/mile! Not good when the temperatures have been below zero or the snow and winds are blowing. I celebrated the last day of year 5 by retiring from my job at the MN Public Defenders Office!! Now, it is nice to do my morning run without the pressure of getting to the office by 8:00 am!! Mango, my canine running partner of 10 years, still urges me to get going when I want to sleep in! A cold nose in mine wakes me up! It is our goal to step up the pace and resume running races! Yours in running,

CATHY VITOLS' STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

I've been running daily since 1/1/2016! To be honest, there have been many days when I come home from work tired and just feel like flopping for the evening. But, because I am a streak runner, it's just part of my daily routine to get a run in each and every day so no matter how tired I am – I carve out time to run and I enjoy it!

I usually run during the evening hours on weekdays and mornings on the weekend. Running is a commitment I've made to myself and commitment to a running streak is all the motivation I need to ensure daily exercise. I run indoors and outdoors (preferable) and I always incorporate some strength training too. I pay attention to my running technique (posture), and I invest in comfortable clothing and running shoes, etc.

My husband is my inspiration. His streak is 2 years on March 6!

The most I've run in my life (before my streak) was 10 miles (Medtronic Twin Cities Marathon). I may attempt a marathon someday, but for now, I'm enjoying running 1-5 miles on any given day.

JOSH MCCLEARY'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 460 DAYS

My streak definitely served it's purpose...getting me back running again at age 40. However, I had a back injury that I just couldn't run through for a few days here in early March. I took some time off and was able to race just a few weeks later, which was more important to me than the streak. I have run post-college PRs in the past 2 weekends in the half marathon (1:27) and the road mile (4:59.9). I can attribute those results to both the streak (consistency) and the wisdom in ending the streak (rest and recovery).

JENNIFER MEYER'S STREAK ENDED IN 2015 AFTER 420 DAYS

I thought I had emailed you long ago and let you know that I'm no longer streaking. My streak ended a couple of years ago.

I'm back to running plenty, but no longer streaking. My left foot deteriorated to the point where it was too painful to run on and I didn't want to cause permanent damage. I still want to run! I took an extended rest and met with various foot folks, one of whom recommended surgery (yikes!) and others who got me into some inserts and shoes that worked. So I'm back to running marathons again! No surgery, yet. Hoping to avoid that altogether. Photo of my twin sister and I running a lap around Lambeau Field at the Green Bay marathon last Spring. ## WILLIAM MIDDLEBROOK'S STREAK HITS 7 YEARS

On Friday, March 31, 2017, I celebrated the completion of running at least one mile every day without missing a day for seven years. Not bad for a 74 year old man!! Right?

I began this most current running streak on March 31, 2010. During the last seven years I have run a total of 2,558 days and 6,161 miles.

I actually began my initial running streak on February 29, 2008 and became a member of USRSA on February 28, 2009. I continued this initial streak until March 11, 2010.

My wife and I had just taken a trip to California and I returned with something that I picked up along the way and I had to go to the local Emergency Care Center for diagnosis and meds. That took me off my feet until I began my current streak on March 31, 2010.

I normally run early in the morning as soon as I have completed my Bible reading and prayer time. No matter what the weather is, I prepare for it and do it whether cold and snowing or warm and raining.

I have adopted the US Postal Service motto as my motto: "Neither snow nor rain, nor heat nor gloom of night stays these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

Of course I have changed it slightly so that my Streak Running motto is: "Neither snow nor rain, nor heat nor gloom of night shall keep me from running at least one mile every day and remaining a loyal member of the United States Running Streak Association."

I tell people that I do the daily runs just as much for mental exercise as I do for physical exercise. There is something about being out there every day that just clears the mind. I also say that I do it for spiritual exercise enjoying the beauty of God's creation all around me here in Colorado Springs or wherever I may be and also praying along the way for those who live in or near the areas where I run.

I am so grateful for the USRSA and the great incentive that they give me to not miss a single day of running at least one mile no matter what the circumstances might be nor where I might be on any given day. I consider myself to be so truly Blessed and I just pray that I will continue to have good health so that I can continue on this running streak for years to come.

AMY JENSEN JOINS USRSA

I started running on a whim I guess, helping a friend train for a sprint-tri in 2011. I ran a few 5k's that year and decided to try my hand at a half marathon in 2012. I completed my very first half in 2012 with the help of a good friend who stayed with me and pushed me along the way.

For the next couple of years I would run maybe 2-3 times a week nothing special really. I completed another half marathon in 2013 and did a number of 5k's in 2014.

It wasn't until 2015 that I started to really think about my running. I completed 2 half marathons in 2015. As the fall was coming to a close I read an article in Runner's World about a Run Streak to get you through the holidays and back to when training would start again so I thought why not, I can run for 36 days (or whatever the streak time line was). Well I hit that goal and thought I can make it to 50 and then 100 and so on it has gone.

In 2016 I completed 3 half marathons and PR at one of my favorite one's to do. As of today, April 6, 2016, I have a total of 500 RSDs. My total mileage as of today is 1,125.69 miles for the run streak.

I am planning to run in 3 half marathons again this year with hopes of adding a 4th to the mix and I am hoping to hit 1000 miles for the year. I am a bit off of the goal as of right now but there is time to make it up.

On a side note, my family thinks I am crazy to keep this going...I have said the only reason I would not run is if I am in the hospital and can't move or my legs are broken. Let's hope neither of those happen anytime soon!

JACK ANKRUM JOINS USRSA

My running/racing career restarted in 1981 at age 29. Before that, I was an average high school runner and casual jogger in my 20s. Once I started running road races, I quickly learned that the marathon was my best distance. While I had enough success in the shorter distances to be both on the Marathon Sports and Run 'N Fun race teams, my best achievements were at the marathon distance:

- 60-80 marathons
- PR of 2:28
- 3 Boston marathons (2 top 150 finishers)
- Age-group winner 45-49 Las Vegas
- 3rd in age-group at Twin Cities (45-49 and 50-45)
- Ranked twice in top 10 nationally at 50K (3:12 and 3:15)
- 10 consecutive years (1983-1992) with at least 1 marathon of 2:33 or better

Other notable running achievements:

- Half-marathon PR 1:11
- 25K PR 1:25
- Numerous top 3 age-group placings over a 30-year race career in distances from 5K-50K
- Over 100,000 miles logged since 1981

I no longer race much so that is the main reason I started the goal of running every day on 01/01/2016. Hopefully, I'll be able to maintain a daily running streak for many years.

RON SHEALY'S STREAK HITS 16 YEARS

The Sweet 16th year of my streak was completed on March 31st. This March Madness was great, but some awesome March Madness was also occurring as the University of South Carolina men made the Final Four and the University of South Carolina women went on to win the national championship.

I logged 1634 miles during the 16th year which increased my lifetime mileage to more than 82,500 miles. I am also pleased with a 52:38 10K and a 1:55:28 half marathon, both raced just prior to my 71st birthday.

I continue to be thankful to have had the ability and motivation to be an avid runner for more than 39 years and a streaker who has started his 17th year. Thanks for your congratulatory email. Every best wish to streakers worldwide.

HUY NGUYEN'S STREAK ENDS AFTER 559 DAYS

Reason why I ended my streak: I was in the midst of marathon training for a New Year's Day 2017 marathon, averaging 80 miles per week, but then I realized that I needed to devote more time to studying for medical school, as I still hadn't developed the right study habits for myself in order to balance both fitness and education with the unique curriculum my school used. I was scheduled to run 13 miles on October 28, 2016, and I had planned to study all day and hold it off till around 11:00PM. Unfortunately, I fell asleep and the clock struck midnight, ending the streak. I tend to fall apart when such a routine breaks like that, especially after 559 days, so that non-running streak developed into a miserable 115-day streak of no fitness at all. I felt miserable, gained up to 15 pounds of weight (didn't measure myself at all), and felt really lonely. Long story short, I wanted to make things right and go through the first seven weeks of the spring semester refining my study habits before I wanted to start running again.

Once I felt that my education was back on track, I began a new streak on February 20, 2017 (currently at 58 days as of today) and really regret not focusing on fitness for the prior 115 days. My diet returned to normal, and my body shape has returned to its usual fit physique. As my aerobic fitness continues to return to normal, on a maintenance 70 miles per week all on the track, I've really grown to appreciate not only the physical benefits of streak running but also the tremendous mental and emotional benefits as well. I'm constantly under stress, not just from studying but also from personal conflicts (and even *ahem* thinking about relationships with peers and a specific crush), but I am constantly amazed at how an hour or two outside on the track in the dark with just you and nature can clear the mind and help you make peace with all the questions in your life.

I finally feel like I have found the best version of myself, and I sincerely hope it stays that way for the rest of my life. I am aware that my future work life and personal life may prevent me from maintaining a very long streak like some of the amazing people I've seen on the official list, but running, especially streak running, will always be a passion as long as I live.

Attached is a photo of me on April 9, 2017, kicking a final 1:14 400m lap on the 17-mile track run, with the biggest smile on my face, hitting a new max heart rate of 198.

RODNEY WALKER JOINS USRSA

I started my running streak on my first day of retirement, December 24, 2015. I had worked for Publix Supermarkets for 35 years. I first learned about running streaks about 5 years prior and found it to be quite interesting, but my job (and the crazy long hours) weren't a good fit to try to run everyday. I decided a year or two before I retired that I would start a streak my first day of retirement.

So this writing is a long time coming and I must admit that I'm stoked to be writing it. This first year has been awesome, although challenging at times. I hit my knee on a door jam of an RV in June. EXCRUCIATING pain when it happened. After months of it never quite healing, I had an MRI done. Had a tear inside the meniscus. Not on either end, or even on the outside of it, but actually inside the meniscus. Doctor said to take 2-3 months off of running. Considered it, but was only a month away from my one-year "streakaversary." Decided to keep going, and it has, for the most part healed... I think. :-)

In March 2017, around the 15-month mark, my back flared up (I've got 2 herniated disks) and made it nearly impossible to run. I did run at least one mile everyday though and after about 25 days and 15 or so chiropractor visits, the back healed and streak lives!!! Other than those two things, I've had no other injuries.

I averaged about 2.1 miles per day during my first year. I ran 764 miles for the year which included 4 half marathons and about 10 other races (5K's to 10 milers). I also passed the 7,500 lifetime mile mark this past year.

My first year of retirement has included quite a bit of traveling (including a 24 day RV trip) so I was able to run in 12 different states. I ran 4 days in a row on Route 66. I'm a big fan of that road and enjoyed running on it.

I'm writing this on April 3, 2017, 33 days away from my RSD# 500. Looking forward to passing that milestone. I retired at a fairly young age of 51 and am thankful to have been able to start this streak. Hoping to continue for years to come. We'll see. :-) Love reading all the letters/updates. All of you are inspiring to me. Run on... for a long time.

I am a Recreation Therapist and a Certified Brain Injury Specialist at the Center for Head Injuries and an adjunct professor.

I have always loved running but began my streak after my mom suddenly passed away. I run for my patients who will not be able to run again. I run for those who can't.

Streaking has taught me a lot of things about myself and to what I can do. It is a continued journey, an adventure, and I can't imagine not running. I have met a lot of new amazing friends through my Mom's running group. For mornings I don't run and have to wait until later in the day my body and mind know it and have been known to become "Rangry." I don't see an end in sight. For my next accomplishment I want to work for is a trail race and streaking towards a comma! To many more!

RICK DECKER'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

I wasn't sure if I would be writing to tell you my streak had ended or was still going. My original goal was to run from my 59th birthday to my 60th birthday. I had started a couple months early to see if I could do it. After my 60th I was close to 500 days so I kept going and passed that day. I kept going and then decided to go for the entire calendar year (2016), which I made it to and then I was close to 700 days. Passing 700 days, then I was close to 2 years. Two years came and went and I'm still going. So here is my status as of today.

Today (April 20, 2017) was day 781. I have run a total of 1,811 miles during the streak. I guess my next goal is 800 days. After that, who knows?

I think that you have a great organization here and I am glad to be part of it.

STUART AINSWORTH'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

Big day today [email dated 26 April 2017] as it marks my 3-year anniversary. I thought I would share my recent experiences with you and other members.

I am sure many of us are offered medicals and many of us put them off. I attended my annual medical recently and was very surprised to discover after some extensive testing that sometime in the last 12 months I had a heart attack. Not the Hollywood style chest clutching, blue flashing lights sort but completely symptom less – a so called “silent” heart attack.

Many of you might now be thinking, that won't happen to me, I have a (fairly) healthy lifestyle. Well me too! Of the 5 key lifestyle indicators that increase the risk of heart attack, I am neutral or positive on each. I have below average cholesterol and average blood pressure, my BMI is within acceptable range, I have never smoked and drink very occasionally. I also exercise daily and this attack happened during my current consecutive day running “streak” which I have continued to do. My cardiologist told me that my general health and fitness probably saved me from a more serious episode and that the arteries serving my heart had naturally bypassed a blockage without any external intervention. He also told me I was fine to carry on exercising as normal without any additional constraints.

Fortunately for me I have been identified and diagnosed so preventative treatment can be started. Unfortunately for me the long term treatment is the same as for every heart attack and I now have a lengthy medical prescription to reduce the likely impact of a reoccurrence. My advice, if you are offered a medical, don't delay, book it now, attend it and take heed of the advice. The sooner issues are identified the sooner something can be done about it and the sooner you can get back to the fun things in life like running.

I am getting more involved in the phenomenon which is parkrun. I am already a Run Director for our local 5k event and we launch a junior 2k event in June. So no more lazy get ups on the weekends for us. Following my health issue above I have also been appointed as a Champion for people with heart conditions helping people out of the healthcare system and into organised activity. If any readers are interested in setting up a parkrun to add to those already up and running (sorry) worldwide please either contact me or check out parkrun.com. Last week saw over 130,000 participants in the U.K. alone all running, walking or jogging 5k at 0900 Saturday morning. Then there are the fantastic volunteers who support the event each week - maybe I can let you know about them next time??

KEVIN DUBAN'S STREAK HITS 1 YEAR

You could say that running has always been in my blood. For as long as I can remember, the 4th of July has been spent out at the Langford races in St. Anthony Park (St. Paul, MN). In high school, that 2 mile Langford race (the 4 mile option just seemed too hard!) served as a regular reminder that it was nearly time to get back into shape for upcoming football practice! I ran just that one race each year, until after graduating from the University of Northwestern @ St. Paul, when I discovered that exercise was actually necessary to maintain a healthy weight.

I ran semi-regularly after college, training for the occasional 10K and 1/2 marathon. I completed my first full marathon in 2011, running the Med City Marathon in Rochester, MN. Although I vowed to never run another marathon, I completed the Loch Ness Marathon in Inverness in the fall of 2015.

After Loch Ness, I suffered from a bit of fatigue and decided to take a break from higher mileage running/races. Since streaking runs in my family (mother's side, DeBoer), I opted to start a streak on January 1, 2016. I've been running daily ever since!

Unfortunately I had to end my streak due to a hamstring issue. Needless to say it was a very emotional event. With over 3 years of running every day, to not run and have to take a break was extremely difficult. The last day I ran during my streak was August 25th 2016.

I intend to get back to streaking soon but for now it has to be 3 or 4 days a week only.

I wish you and the Association all the best and will continue to watch with admiration those who continue to work on their run streak!

I started running in 2002 to try and combat depression. I ran my first race in 2004 – the London Marathon. Since then I have run a total of 27 marathons and approximately 25 half marathons as well as a number of 10km and 5km races. I would like to join the 100 Marathon Club (UK) in the future and that is what I am working towards.

I was challenged to run every day in December in 2015. On Dec 2nd 2015, my Mom's partner died suddenly and unexpectedly. He had health issues and was disabled, but always persisted in walking every day to try and keep his legs mobile (both were shattered and rebuilt following a motorcycle accident). I figured that if he could keep trying every day in his situation, then I (as a healthy individual) had no excuses. December is a busy month for me – birthdays, holidays, wedding celebrations – and I ran to meet them all. If you can run every day in December then you can do more. There is no excuse for me to stop at this point, so I continue.

I try to take photographs of where I have run, and where I am running, so that those who can't run can see what I see. Hopefully those who can run may choose to do something similar so that we can share our world with others.

TOM BARRY'S STREAK HITS 20 YEARS

I hit the 20-year mark with a leisurely three-mile run on April 30. Most days I go on the same leisurely three-mile run, with the occasional leisurely 2.5-mile run tossed in for variety. I also hit the weight machines at the YMCA several times a week, and walk at least nine holes of golf most every day. Nearing 67 years of age, I just want to keep on keeping on. Thankfully, I've been free of injury, dogged only by some minor arthritis in my right knee. Life is good. I'm very proud to be at 20 years, and hope to tack on some more.

TIM BAILEY'S STREAK HITS 30 YEARS

Coming up on my second time for the BIG 30 although the first was almost 30 years ago this one is just around the bend. The last 3 months I have had several 1-mile only days. Maybe a good thing though getting ready for a half iron man. Did a 50 miler in Dec.

CHULWON PARK'S STREAK HITS 3 YEARS

I've always thought that I would celebrate the 3 years of my running streak with a big race or something, but as it turns out I'm in a phase in my streak where I'm just chugging along quietly a little over a mile at a time. As a streak runner who has a long term goal of keeping the streak alive for as long as possible, my running game has changed to prioritize injury avoidance over PRs and new distances. Sure, I still plan on working toward those goals as well, but they may happen very gradually.

On May 3rd, 2014, I started my running streak with the first 50K I had ever run. I was not very prepared for it--I had recently recovered from a running injury (I forget which) and had been ramping up my mileage rather quickly. I was probably more optimistic than was physically ready, but that optimism nevertheless carried me through the entire race. The next day I went out for a very slow jog to loosen up the muscles a bit and ended up doing 2 miles. I think I did a mile or two the following days until I recovered. Before I knew it, I was at a group run telling a friend that I had been running everyday for the past 12 days and half jokingly said that I might as well start a running streak. Well, several months went by, and I had a legitimate streak going in which I would replace my usual rest days with one milers, still managing 30-40 miles per week.

I think I may have been a bit ambitious though in the first 2 years of my streak, obsessing with long distances as well as pushing my own limits in shorter distances. At least, that's what I attribute to the range of injuries that I've experienced during that time, from tendinitis to ankle sprains to plantar fasciitis. The latest of which (and the most enduring) was the PF. It has effectively reduced my running to one milers for a solid year. I think there was about a month during that year when I thought it was gone for good and I ramped up my mileage way too quickly was just as quickly back down to the maintenance miles the following month. Needless to say, I've since channeled my ambitions elsewhere and decided to keep my mileage humble and conservative for some time.

Streak running to me is a long game, so I must plan accordingly. I admit that I had gotten complacent with my one milers, as I had not found any motivation to increase my mileage. That said, I think the beginning my 4th year of streak running would mark a good time to instate a 10% increase per run, with each successive increase occurring on a monthly basis. I've always been especially inspired by fellow streakers whose own personal streak involves a minimum distance of 3 or more miles. The only way I can fathom accomplishing that feat with as low risk of injury as possible is to increase the mileage so gradually that the body hardly notices the changes. I haven't worked out the math yet to see when I would reach a 3 mile streak running at such rate, but I have all the time in the world to do that with no races or PRs in sight.

So this is where I'm at in my streak running journey. No fanfare, no fun races, no new PRs, but running just to run and to keep running, because the truth is I'd rather run a slow mile every day than to quit and start over again. I think the former is easier than the latter, especially when you are already at least a few years into your streak. With that said, I'd like to give shout out to all my fellow streakers. Streak on, friends!

STEPHANIE HALL JOINS USRSA

As an adult, I started running with a neighbor whom I could not catch and she was 13 years older. I continued to run in the neighborhood and then we entered a few races – 1981. I met folks and learned how to train and joined the Baltimore Road Runners and Harbor City Striders (a Baltimore City based running club). Continued to run and extend my distances until I was able to run marathons.

Raced through the 1990s and then still running but started bodybuilding as primary focus. Ran at least 4x a week until I caught the triathlon bug.

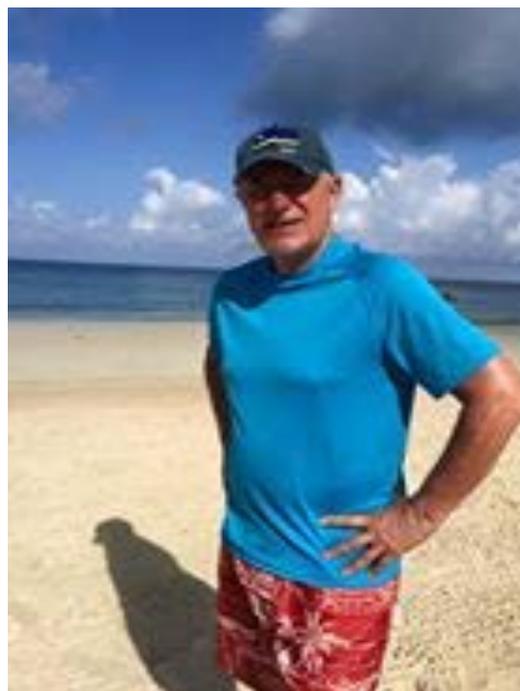

In 2013, I then swam, biked and ran. A long-time dear friend, Margaret Sherrod, made it sound so very easy – only 1 mile and at your own pace, outside or treadmill (very slow pace due to hip issue). Why not! I started on April Fool's Day, (appropriate for this journey) April 1, 2016.

Every day, I checked in with Margaret and my tri coach, Jae Sly. My year-long adventure is now complete and have started on year 2. My goal was to be eligible for the USRSA and I made it!!!

I want to thank all my family and friends who supported me. And by the way, I talked Margaret into doing a triathlon and she completed her first one.

CHRIS KATO JOINS USRSA

My name is Chris Kato and I am thrilled to join this prestigious organization. I've been hooked on running since my freshmen year at Western Michigan University in 2005. I joined the campus running club and never looked back.

Since beginning my streak in January 2014, I have strived to run at least 40 miles per week and (knock on wood) I've stayed mostly healthy and injury-free during that time. I've had a few obstacles to overcome, including brief illnesses and travel issues, but I've always found a way to get my miles in.

I typically run 3-4 major road races a year. My favorite distance is the half-marathon, but I have run 5 full marathons, including Detroit and Pittsburgh.

In addition to my personal running, I also coach Varsity Cross Country and assist the Varsity Track teams at Schoolcraft High School in Schoolcraft, Michigan.

CHRIS BUCHHEIT JOINS USRSA

I started running in 2009, when I decided to run a marathon for my 40th year to prove I could. Seriously began running in 2014 when I signed up for my first 100-mile ultra race. What drives me is the quest to find out how far I can go. I haven't found that limit yet. There's always another level.

Ultra running has taught me people are capable of far more than they believe. We hold ourselves back more than any external force. You only have to make the decision and commit to whatever your goal is, and you will succeed.

DIANE BYRANT JOINS USRSA

I started running many years ago in the early 90s when I was in college. My Dad was in his prime mid 30s and racing a lot. I was a young college student and said, "Hey, I can do that Dad." I thought I was going to die after running a mile with my Dad.

In 2010, I trained for my first half marathon in Ft. Worth. I have been running consistently since then.

I heard of streak running and thought I would enjoy that challenge. Now I have to run every day.

I'm not super fast but I honestly enjoy running. My boys think Mom is crazy but they can see how I really enjoy running. I hope to do this for many, many more years.

RICKY BRYANT JOINS USRSA

I started running 9 years ago. My wife Diane was already a runner. The first race I ran was a 5K Turkey Trot in 2008. The last race I have completed is my first 50K at the Fort Worth Cowtown 2017. I have a tattoo on my right leg with a picture of a longhorn steer and reads, "26.2 and Cowtown." The tattoo was put on after I completed my first marathon in February of 2015.

I am ready to start my adventure into trail running. This is something that I have wanted to do for a long time.

ELIZABETH SAUCEDO'S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

My 3rd year of running came and went like the winds here in New Mexico. And just like the winds, my streak continues into it's 4th year!

When I woke up on the first day of spring, 2014 I declared that would be the day I started my streak. Admittedly though, I wanted to streak to prove to myself that I could do it. The first year, for me was the hardest. I almost gave up at day 294. I remember that day. Mentally I couldn't make myself go. I was over this streak business! Fortunately for me, my hubby who also streaks gave me a pep talk and I dragged myself outside for a mile.

While 2016 came with some difficulties, there were some bright spots! Hubby got a job and I was selected as a brand ambassador for INKnBURN, a small clothing company located in Southern California. Very cool art on running gear! I like to think that I found INKnBURN because I run and that INKnBURN found ME because I run!

It's never lost on me that I get to run every day, by choice. I am truly grateful for the enduring strength my body gives me daily. I have been fortunate to connect with so many wonderful people in the last few years in the running community through the USRSA and INKnBURN. It's an amazing group of passionate people coming together to support, motivate and inspire each other! What a great thing!! Cheers to 4!

MICHAEL JONES JOINS SRI FROM ENGLAND

I am a keen amateur runner and triathlete. Accomplishments to date include 3 London Marathons, 1 Paris Marathon, the 2011 Marathon Des Sables, the 2012 Ride Across Britain (Land's End to John O'Groats) and 4 Iron distance triathlons. I have recently completed the Gower Ultra, and ran 62 miles across Britain (along the route of Hadrian's Wall) from the Bowness on the West Coast with fellow Streak Runner Adam Shaw. We didn't make it to Wallsend unfortunately, as we were unsupported, so are planning a further attempt in 2018. In the meantime we are planning a run from London to Cambridge, some 50 miles in a couple of weeks.

I am Cambridge based, which makes hill training challenging as it is one of the flattest counties in the UK, however the myriad opportunities to run past iconic buildings such as Kings College Chapel makes up for the lack of inclines!

TOM BLENNERHASSETT JOINS SRI FROM IRELAND

Today, May 15th, is day 1792 for me. I run with Brendan's Running Club in Naas, County Kildare, KTRTC (Kildare Town Running and Tri Club), the East of Ireland Marathon Club and numerous other groups depending on my schedule!

I started my streak on the 19th June 2012, a little bit by accident really. I had been running for quite some time but got disillusioned with marathon running after my 4th one in 2012. Looking back on it now my expectations were way too ambitious!

I had thought about a streak a couple of times and, after running 4 days in a row, completely unintentionally, my streak was born. It was initially 30 days, then aimed for 100 days, then 6 months and then a year.

On and on it and I went, in 2014 then I decided to see if I could streak and train for a marathon at the same time, and 15 marathons later, here I am today on the cusp of 5 years and novice status! Marathons 20 & 21 happen in the next four weeks before I hit my 5 year streakaversary.

My streak has reached 8708 miles (approx. 14015km) today. The streak does not define me, but it is many things to me – physical, mental, emotional & spiritual all wrapped into a daily run. I'm very lucky that I get to run every day and, what's more, I love to run every day.

My profile picture is my picture from the Dublin City Marathon two years ago when I finally got the 3:30 I was looking for before I started my streak.

PAULA ADAMS' STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Still going strong. Had a great year and looking forward to the next one. It was a year of trail races, mostly ultra distances. A few of them included Sky Island 50k at the Davis Mountains, Rocky 50, Bandera 100k, and Pedernales 60k. All in Texas.

This year I plan to race less often due to family needs, but I will still keep up my streak and mileage goal of an average 150-200 per month. Hopefully this year will not include any major floods where I live! Last year my closest state parks were closed after flooding in April. One of them just reopened this March. Thank you for all you do to keep the streak records and promote this lovely thing we do.

Today, May 15th, is day 1688 for me. I started my streak as a 31 day October challenge back on 1 October 2012. I got to 30 days and then decided to see if I could do 100, and said I'll stay going until Christmas (never mentioned a year though!)

I started running in 2008 kind of by accident really. I never thought I'd ever be able to get to a mile non-stop. Here I am 9 years later with numerous half marathons under my belt and 6 marathons also with number 7 coming up on 11 June this year.

It's a privilege to be able to run. I run with Brendan's Running Club in Naas, County Kildare in Ireland. I've made so many good friends through running, the sorts you can talk to for 20 miles and still have more to say at the end!

I am also a member of KTRTC here in my home town of Kildare and frequently run with the East of Ireland Marathon Group too.

Keziah is still going strong. I can't believe it's been 5 years.

As her mother I am constantly astounded that she continues to run a mile every day, even on the days when she plays 6 ultimate Frisbee games or hikes 15 miles.

I think she's crazy, but then I remember all the good things the streak has brought her. She loves playing ultimate and being strong and fast makes her a better player. It doesn't hurt her cross-country participation either.

I am attaching a photo. This is Keziah at an ultimate game but I think you can tell from her face how much she likes running.

VALERIE MOORE JOINS USRSA

I never imagined myself being a "runner," let alone becoming a marathoner or even a stalker one day. After graduating college and starting working in the real world, the opportunity arose in my company to participate in a Corporate Challenge in Boston that consisted of 3.5 miles. I jumped on the opportunity to become involved and predicted my finish time to be about an hour – at that time I never ran but only did crossfit. In the months before I started practicing and amazed myself of how much improvement I made week by week.

Race day was hot, not the ideal running conditions, but I pushed myself to limits I never reached before and ended up finishing in 30:21 – way below my estimate.

After crossing that finish line, I was hooked. I was obsessed with walking miles before then – always trying to break my daily record. Running brought racking up the miles to a whole another level.

Less than a year later in May 2016, I crossed the finish line of my first marathon in California. The journey over the year from my first race of 3.5 miles on the east coast to 26.2 miles on the west coast was surreal.

Every new mile mark I hit during training, reminded me of how far I have come and nothing is impossible. You just have to stay positive and never give up. Now I am stalker doing one mile at a time.

ADAM SHAW JOINS SRI FROM ENGLAND

I'm a hopeless runner. Never joined a running club, never wanted to join one. Never run in a big race. Races and clubs just emphasize how bad a runner I am. I'm not even sure why I agreed to start running. I'd never done any exercise until I was in my mid thirties. My adult life was work and drinking and family and just, stuff.

Then in 2004 a group of friends were doing a 10km run and suggested I join them... I have no idea to this day what possessed me to say yes but I did. When I told people and they asked me about my training regime I just laughed and wondered what the fuss was about – I had no idea how far 10km was. In the end I did three training runs of about 10 minutes each and figured I was good to go. I managed just under an hour. I must be an athlete I thought! And promptly signed up for the next year's event.

However, after that 10km and no improvement I realised running wasn't for me. Then another friend Mike Jones, fellow streaker, suggested I do a triathlon. A triathlon. Of course, not good at running and never having swum and not owning a bike, it was an obvious next choice.

So I've gone from rubbish runner to terrible triathlete. And now I've done on a few park runs, the Marathon des Sables, a triathlon a year (including some iron distance ones), and I commute to work by bike every day. And my streak started with reading an article about streakers in April 2016. And since then me and Mike have now done over a year! Woo hoo!

I have always enjoyed running. My current streak started on 5/1/16. I probably would have not had a continuous streak if it were not for my Boarder Collie, Megan, who reminds me upon rising every morning that is time to hit the road.

Of note, in November 2015, I underwent foot surgery, which broke my 250-day streak. While being worked up for my surgery, I was found to have a congenital heart defect. "A hole in my heart" surgery was suggested and after careful consultation, I declined. I am fine and will keep running as long as I can.

MICHAEL MYERS JOINS USRSA

When I was younger I did track and cross-country. Running was just a way to stay in shape for my main thing, pole vault. Anything longer than the vault runway was too long. As I got older I stopped running to pursue drinking. I did that pretty well for a while. With reckless abandon, I worked my way up from a 5k weekend of boozing to Ultra marathon binges. Then life started to come apart at the seams. Changes were needed. I rediscovered running. This time it was for my life, my sanity. With the same effort I put into my pursuit of alcohol, I worked my way over the last couple years from struggling thru 10 minutes of running to completing multiple marathons and now training for a fall 50 miler. I don't know what will come next, but grateful for what I have today.

LUCAS HENDERSON'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

My running streak is still in tact and I can't believe I'm already at the two year mark. Time sure has flown by.

Over the last year I have challenged myself to run more but also to run smarter. I've run a little over 2,700 miles in the last 12 months which includes 12 races, from 5Ks to a full marathon. For the first time in my running life, I finished in first place in a race (a 10 miler) and I went on to accomplish the same feat three more times (two 10Ks and a 5K). I've also set new PRs at every level.

A couple of other major milestones for me was getting my marathon time down from 3:43 to a 3:22 this year as well as finishing 4th in the Swamp House half marathon (with a PR of 1:27:48), 3rd overall in the St. Augustine half marathon, and finishing first overall over a four race event called the Spring Grand Prix held by Final Mile.

I've also started running before work, heading out most days by 3:15 am, instead of after work in an attempt to keep out of the dangerous heat of the Florida sun, as well as reach out to other runners on Facebook through the YVSTY running group. I'm looking forward to new challenges this year, and hopefully faster times.

GRANT NELSON'S STREAK HITS A DECADE

My streak didn't start but was rather inherited from my father. I have been told at some point we all become our parents, and that happened about 10 years ago. It started after my second marathon in 2007. A few weeks prior, my Father, Roger H. Nelson, ended his streak after 27 plus years. My running up to that point was geared towards weight management matters to counteract the late night beer and pizza. However I noticed the release running gave me, a time alone for thought. I don't remember having a goal in mind when starting the streak, rather just felt compelled to do it. I have never been vocal about the streak. On guys trips it has just become a given that "Nelson is going to run."

I think one of the most rewarding things about the streak is the additional things you see in life. In 10 years I have accumulated some interesting runs, mostly the result of traveling across 5 continents. Sneaking out of our work compound in the Democratic Republic of the Congo was memorable, moving across the red clay streets in the early morning, getting a few unusual looks as I made my way through a 3 miler.

A recent trip to Western Australia was memorable as well, getting to run next to grey kangaroos along with some impromptu sprints from the swooping Magpies (got to close to the nest). I have learned about the feral dogs in South America, mostly through my trips to Lima, Peru, and having had a number of incidents with the street dogs.

Back in the states my favorite cities to run are San Francisco, Portland, Madison and Chicago. Summer runs in those cities are great when you have daylight but still have quietness across the city. My runs at home have been interesting as well. Having lived in 3 states in the past 5 years, it seems weather occurrences always make for some good fun. Spending 3 summers in Phoenix, I learned running at 4pm in 116 is not a great idea. Neither was stepping out for a run when a haboob is visible. Most recently living in Denver I have learned what it is like to run through 14 inches of snow as well as understanding that at any point in the summer there might be an impromptu hailing and lightning storm. Another interesting run was when a transformer box blew up next to me (took a few moments to realize I had not been shot).

My running these days usually just consists of a 5k loop. Generally mornings to get it knocked out before the day fills up, and to ensure my 5 year old Rhodesian Ridgeback gets his exercise. I do like to throw in a trail run every now and then here in Denver however I do miss the Arizona and Austin Greenbelt trails from my previous residences (probably because trail runs were much easier in those altitudes!).

I started working out at a CrossFit gym about a year ago and have really enjoyed it. It was a lot more challenging than I expected, generally getting humbled every day except when there is a good bit of running. I usually go about 5 times a week. My short distance speed has increased dramatically but still lucky to break 21 mins in a 5k.

I am sure year 11 will bring even more memorable moments, most likely due to a child my wife and I are expecting in November (our first). Running with jogger and a dog will bring some rewarding visuals for other joggers out in Denver.

JAYSON MEYER JOINS USRSA

I started running when my mom gave me the option of either joining the swim team or joining the track team in high school, and speedos really weren't my thing. I ran track and cross country as a redshirt for Indiana State University from 2000-2002, and ultimately decided that organized running wasn't meant for me, so I ran on my own, however I felt.

I quit running completely in 2003 due to a knee injury. In 2006, I was diagnosed with a life threatening pulmonary embolism due to poor circulation caused by my job. After a year on blood thinners and a 5 year taper, I started running again. I haven't had a circulation issue since I started streaking, and I jokingly tell people that I'm literally running for my life, but in a weird way, it does make me feel like keeping the streak alive is keeping me alive, or at least keeping my blood pumping.

Since October 22nd, 2009, I've run 65 races, 7 of which were first place finishes, and 11 were second place finishes. 20 of the races were half marathons with a best time of 1:13:42, and 9 marathons with a best of 2:39:30. I ran both the Boston Marathon and the Chicago marathon three times each. One month before my 30th birthday, I ran a personal best mile time of 4:30. I celebrated my 30th birthday, by running 30 miles. I am currently coached by Matt Ebersole of Personal Best Training in Indianapolis.

BRIAN FUNK'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Everything went well during year 2 so the streak is still in tact.

My wife is almost a year ahead of me (she'll be at 3 years next week), which makes things a lot easier. We're accountable to each other and can make sure before going to bed that the other got in at least a mile, even on the busy days.

In the last year, I ran a marathon, a trail 25k, a half marathon, a 10k and a 5k. Most of my runs were out the front door in Minneapolis with Jennifer or our dog, Koa, but some of the coldest and icy days kept me on the treadmill. In addition, I made the most of new locales when traveling (Los Cabos MX, LA (pic from the trails above Griffith Park Observatory on 9/11 attached), Boston, Houston, Nashville). I'm not setting records but I'm having fun!!

TRAVIS ENGLISH'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Well, my 2-year marker is in the books. As of day 730, I've logged 2,506 miles. The first year, my goal was to average 3 miles a day, which I did. I wanted to bump up a bit. My year 2 average was 3.6 miles a day. Had a few injury phases, but, nothing severe.

I'll give a shout out to the Reddit group, "amileaday." It's a pretty deeply unofficial branch of this club. I'm a somewhat regular contributor. Pretty good group of folks over there, doing weekly check-ins, and trading war stories.

My life has a good bit of business travel in it. And, I've found daily runs to be a great way to experience places at ground level. I map out runs from a hotel the night before. Then, go see the city: Boston, Maine, St. Louis, Orlando, Las Vegas, Atlanta, San Antonio, Sacramento. Next month, I'll be in Toronto in the summer. It's great.

I gained a running partner this year, of the four legged, chocolate Labrador variety. He's not streaking, per se (I leave him at home on long days). But, he's as good as any alarm clock. He knows when its time to go.

Thanks for being here. I'm always humbled and inspired to read these pages when they come out. The longest I've ever run is a half-marathon. I won't embarrass myself by admitting how slow a pace I keep. And, I live in California, so I can count rainy cold days on one hand. I read these pages and figure: If y'all can do what you do, there's no reason I can't put in a mile or three tomorrow morning.

TOM WHITELY DECLARED BY “RECORD SETTERS” TO HAVE RECORD FOR “Most Consecutive Days Running One Mile With A Total Replaced Hip”

I have received a letter from Record Setters acknowledging my record of having the “Most Consecutive Days Running One Mile With A Total Replaced Hip.” You can also find it at <https://recordsetter.com/world-record/consecutive-days-running-mile-total-replaced-hip/50880?autoplay=true>.

Thanks and have a nice day.

Tom Whitely
Fairlawn, New Jersey

[Editor’s note: Tom Whitely’s streak with a hip replacement lasted 768 days – 8/22/14-09/27/16. SRI/USRSA does not keep track of athletes with hip replacements and cannot verify this record.]

TIFFANY LAMBERT’S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

It's been a great two years and I hope to make it many many more!

I started streaking because being a rotating shift worker had me down on my fitness, so I resolved to run everyday (I didn't know about the group at first). It ended up being a wonderful thing that I looked forward to and something accomplished everyday.

A few highlights:

Best streak day-April 17th 2017, my first Boston Marathon.

Weirdest streak day-January 2016, running 5 miles in the corridors of the Pentagon while having to sleep at work during a blizzard.

Silliest streak run-Nov 2016, 1.1 miles around the Statue of Liberty in Boots and a sweater the day after the NYC Marathon (yes, there's a video, and yes people looked at me like an escaped crazy person).

Most exciting streak day-day 730, finding out that I made MSgt in the Air Force and being but a day away from my 2-year streak anniversary.

Thank you for running this group and being such a force of encouragement!

Tiffany Lambert
Alexandria, Virginia

CHRIS KARTSCHOKE’S STREAK ENDS AFTER 539 DAYS

I thought that I had notified you guys, but maybe I didn't. I broke my tibia on November 6, 2016. My current streak started in January 2017, so I am back on it but not at a year yet.

FALAMACK ZALTASH’S STREAK HITS 4 YEARS

Thank you for allowing me to be part of this amazing group. With much gratitude,

ROBERT MALUSZEK'S STREAK HITS 2 YEARS

Just completed my second year of my running streak 730 days or is in 731 with 2016 being a leap year. My second year totals have dropped off from my first year due to a couple of injuries that limited my miles. But my streak continued despite my wife calling me crazy.

Seems I have had more crazy runs in my second year to keep my streak going, one includes me running in my business suit and shoes in the rain. This has inspired me to start writing in my mile log a short note on my unusual runs.

I would like to hear from other USA streakers on their stories of crazy runs or to what lengths they have gone to keep your streak going. I think this would make a great story for one of the newsletters.

My sister Kori Malyszek Angers started a streak that is currently over a year which I keep telling her to send in her data to the US Running streak to get on your list. Looks like US running streak list has a few family members on it, and we want to join that group.

Finally a Shout Out to the other four USRSA runners that share my start date of May 25, 2015.... Tracy Kulwicki, Tiffany Lambert, Kevin MacFarland and John Miller. Congratulations on two years!

	Total Distance	Day Avg.
Year 1 2015 – 2016	1,152.44	3.16 miles
Year 2 2016 - 2017	842.72	2.30 miles
Totals to date	1,995.16	2.73 miles

If you can fill the unforgiving minute

Yours is the Earth and everything that's in it,
And---which is more---you'll be a Man, my son!

THE FINISH LINE

By: Mark Washburne

What is a streak runner? Most members of our association would say it someone who runs every day. There is, however, more than one kind of streak runner. I am reminded of that fact after reading the article, “UNBROKEN: Ben Beach Reaches the Half-Century Mark in Boston” by John Hanc that was published in the 121st Boston Marathon – Official Program. This April, Bennett “Ben” Beach, 68, from Bethesda, Maryland, became the first athlete to complete 50 consecutive Boston Marathons. Mr. Beach has the top spot in the Quarter Century Club (QCC), a group that recognizes athletes who have run at least 25 consecutive Boston Marathons. As noted in our cover story of this issue of TSR, the founder of QCC was Ronald Kmiec, 74, a Concert Pianist from Carlisle, Massachusetts.

Besides being a Boston Marathon streak runner, Ronald Kmiec is a daily streak runner and part of our running streak association. In the early days of our association, Mr. Kmiec wrote one of the most dramatic articles for this newsletter called, “11,687 Days: A Streak Comes to an End,” that detailed the end of his running streak due to a heart attack and surgery. Started on 28 November 1975, Mr. Kmiec’s streak lasted until 26 November 2007 – one day short of completing 32 years. In November 2007, Mr. Kmiec had the 14th longest active running streak in the United States that would soon be listed as the second longest retired streak. Today, that same streak by Mr. Kmiec ranks on our retired list as 25th in the United States.

Ronald Kmiec, however, did not give up daily running after his heart attack. The next month, on 28 December 2007, he started another running streak that continues to this day. He also never stopped his Boston Marathon running streak. This April, Mr. Kmiec completed his 44th consecutive Boston Marathon and now ranks 4th on the QCC list. After reading the article that he had founded QCC, I reached out to Mr. Kmiec for his own story on the topic. I am grateful that he agreed to the writing assignment (see page 7). I am also grateful to the Race Director of the Boston Marathon, Dave McGillivray, who ranks 3rd on the QCC list, for also sending a note on the club and the QCC founder Ronald Kmiec (see page 9).

While I am a long way from joining QCC, I did finish my lucky 13th consecutive Boston Marathon in April. Does that make me eligible to join the Eighth of a Century Club? In his kindness, Mr. Kmiec encouraged me to run another dozen Bostons so I could join QCC. At 61, I told him I thought it was unlikely I had that many more years of running 26.2 miles in me. I did say, however, that I had already qualified for the 2018 Boston Marathon (and even booked my hotel room) so I hope to be back for #14 next year. After 2018, I plan to take it one year at a time for how long I can last running the historic course from the start line at the Town of Hopkinton to the finish line on Boylston Street in the City of Boston.

My other big news this quarter is that I reached 10,000 consecutive streak days on May 17th. My 10K running day began at 5:30a.m. with a 3 mile run with my favorite streak running (and everything else) partner Diane - her running streak, started on 21 March 2013, reached 1,519 days on that day. My 10K running day ended with a 6:30p.m. race called The Mind Matters 5K in Madison, New Jersey, where I won my age group.

Good luck to all of you as we each run the roads and trails – every day!

STREAK CERTIFICATION

Once a running streak reaches a year in duration it is eligible for listing by SRI/USRSA. Listing of one's active or retired running streak requires a fully completed and signed streak certification form, which may also be downloaded from the SRI/USRSA site or mailed upon request. Although membership is not a requirement for listing, the SRI/USRSA appreciates all contributions to its cause.
